STORY OF WPA SPENDING HALTS PLEA FOR FUNDS

World Fair Project Stirs Congress.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt failed to send up an emergency plea to congress today for an extra 150 million dollars for the WPA. A bad bit of timing by the propaganda bureau of the New York office of the work-relief agency is credited with the change of plan.

President Roosevelt.

Morning papers today carried front page stories concerning the construction of a $250,000 building by the WPA at the New York World's fair. Folk dancing, puppet shows, recitations, and concerts by WPA pay rollers will be featured, Lieut. Col. Brehon Somervell, WPA administrator in New York City, announced.

Message Ready to Read.

The President's message to congress was ready for reading to the two houses at noon. It pleaded that added funds were needed if 150,000 persons were not to be thrown off the rolls each week between April 1 and July 1. It stressed that persons not really in need of relief were being eliminated as rapidly as possible.

The disclosure of the World's Fair project, attacked on the floor of the house this afternoon as typical of WPA waste and extravagance, caused a change in White House plans. Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early said that, due to press of other business, Mr. Roosevelt could not complete the message today.

Bipartisan Criticism.

Criticism of the World's Fair project came from both the Democrats and the Republicans. Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.] told the house it would cost the taxpayers a million dollars inclusive of the $250,000 construction cost and declared it was proof of the WPA's refusal to obey congressional demands that useless and frivolous projects be abandoned.

"The President asked for 875 million dollars for the WPA for the five months between Feb. 1 and July 1," Taber said. "Congress gave him 725 million dollars, a cut of 150 millions, stipulating the rolls should be combed for professional reliefers and useless projects be abandoned. It is now evident that that has not been done nor is there any intention to do so.

"When excessive overhead is considered and the expense of political employment, it can be said safely that at least 200 millions of the 725 million dollars allotted by congress has been totally wasted.

Waiting Lists Compiled.

"The WPA sent out letters to their branches urging them to compile statistics showing long waiting lists of applicants for relief in order that a good case might be made before congress. This New York World's Fair project is evidence that WPA racketeering is still popular with the New Deal. It's a stinking mess that has revolted even the New York City Democrats."

Representative Robert G. Allen [D., Pa.] added his protest. "I'm against spending for any such project," he said. "It would demonstrate that work relief is an established way of life for the nation."

"Is the WPA, established as an emergency agency, to be publicized before the world as a permanent American institution?" inquired Representative Leo E. Allen [R., Ill.].

Strengthens Economy Movement.

The publicity given to the project added strength to the opposition in congress against appropriating more money for the WPA for the current fiscal year. Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.], chairman of the subcomittee which handles such appropriations, said he had been given no reason to change his opinion that 725 million dollars was enough to carry the agency until July 1.

The WPA building at the world's fair will contain a small theater, an open air court with a band shell, exhibit rooms, and a gallery where paintings and other works by WPA artists will be on display. The federal theater groups will give plays.

30,000 Shamrock Parcels from Eire Go Out in U. S.

New York, March 13. — [Special.] — Thirty thousand packages of shamrocks, the largest pre-St. Patrick's day shipment of the tiny plants ever to arrive here, were in the mails tonight for distribution throughout the United States. The shamrocks arrived from Eire today on the United States liner President Harding. Many of the shamrocks were in green boxes that bore the inscription: "May the message of Erin shamrocks bring joy to those away."

CAPTURE ARMED BOY TERRORIST OF ST. CHARLES

Fugitive Robs Home, Kidnaps Couple.

Lynwood Hale, 16 years old, an automobile thief and house burglar, walked away from the St. Charles School for Boys in Kane county Saturday.

The authorities there, following their custom covering the forty or more annual escapes from the institution, did not notify police or the Kane county sherif of Hale's escape.

As a result:

1. Hale broke into a farm home near St. Charles and stole a revolver, $5, and some clothing.
2. He went into St. Charles after dark and broke into two stores and filled his pockets.
3. He virtually kidnaped a man and a woman in Geneva at the point of a pistol and compelled them to drive him to the outskirts of Elgin.

Seized by Elgin Police.

All this occurred during his forty hours of liberty. He was captured early yesterday by Elgin police. Last night Elgin, St. Charles, and Kane county authorities voiced protests against the school's system of silence on escapes, bringing to fulfillment a prediction made only last week by A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare, that "a scandal is possible at St. Charles any time."

"The officials at the St. Charles school never tell us about dangerous young criminals escaping," declared Joseph Huber, marshal of Elgin police. "The last time I learned officially of an escape was about a year ago, yet I know that about forty or fifty tough young hoodlums get away from there every year. The officials, who are state employés, tell us they don't need our help."

Mayor I. G. Langum of St. Charles was equally critical. He has complained frequently about the school's policy of silence. As a result a legislative investigation is to be opened at the school Thursday.

No Notice of Danger.

"We are never told of escapes," said Mayor Langum. "We are never given any notice of the danger we are in. Our womenfolk might be raped, robbed or slain by escaping criminals. The reform school officials don't notify the authorities of escapes because if they can recapture their own prisoners they can minimize the escape records."

The escape of the Hale boy was typical, it was said. And the results were terrifying to at least one woman and a man. Hale, whose home is in Rockford, and who had been put on probation there four times before being sent to St. Charles for auto theft, simply walked away from the school. He was a trusty, and as such had extra privileges.

Saturday night Hale stole into the

THE GIANT WARNS THE DWARF

FORCE SECESSION VOTE BY SLOVAK PARLIAMENT

Prague Bows Under Fuehrer's Threat of Invasion.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 13.—Czecho-Slovakia tonight again surrendered to Adolf Hitler, who seized one-fifth of that republic's territory through the peace of Munich last September. A German threat of invasion was said to have hastened Czecho-Slovakia's submission.

Nazi officialdom was jubilant at 11 p. m. when word was received from Prague that the Czecho-Slovak government had accepted unconditionally all German demands for another break-up of the Czech state.

Terms of Ultimatum.

Germany's ultimatum included:

1. Secession of Slovakia and Carpatho-Ukraine [Ruthenia] and a reorganization of Czecho-Slovakia into three "independent" states — Slovakia, Carpatho-Ukraine, and Bohemia. These states may be formed into a loose federation under German protection.
2. "Correction" of the borders of Moravia so that it would be divided between Bohemia and Slovakia, leaving Bohemia greatly reduced in size and importance.
3. Reduction of the Czech and Slovak armies to mere police forces, with Germany being delegated to protect the "independent countries."
4. Reorganization of the Czech cabinet on terms fixed by Germany.

The German note warned that a "new division of territory has become unavoidable." It demanded the expulsion of Jews and all political refugees "who are obstacles to Prague's loyal coöperation with the Germans."

Additional Demands Feared.

In view of a Nazi campaign against alleged Czech oppression of Germans in Moravia, Czechs in Berlin expressed a fear that the Berlin government would demand additional concessions for small German minority groups in Brunn and its neighborhood. The great Skoda munitions works are located at Brunn.

News of Czecho-Slovakia's acceptance was received in Berlin several hours after Hitler had conferred with the Rev. Father Joseph Tiso, who was deposed as premier of Slovakia by the Czechs in an effort to crush a separatist plot. He flew to Berlin at Hitler's request.

To lend emphasis to the German ultimatum to Czecho-Slovakia, Nazi officials announced they had mobilized 14 army divisions. They said the divisions were ready to march into Czecho-Slovakia from four different directions if the Czechs failed to come to terms.

Where Troops Are Concentrated.

The troops are concentrated near Dresden, Leipzig, Breslau, and Reichenberg, capital of Czecho-Slovakia's former Sudetenland, and in former Austrian territory along the border of Czecho-Slovakia.

Responsible circles said 25,000 black uniformed Hitler guards and Death Head guards were massed near the border.

[Another dispatch from Berlin said Nazi political quarters expected German troops to march into Czecho-Slovakia even if the German ultimatum is wholly complied with. The Nazis suggested the troops would enter Czecho-Slovakia tomorrow [Wednesday] in order to "restore order."]

Republic Will Be Further Weakened by Reshaping.

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, March 13.—(AP)—The Slovak parliament has been summoned to meet tomorrow, upon order of Adolf Hitler, to decide whether it wants to go its own way as a state independent from Czecho-Slovakia.

Karl Sidor [new Slovak premier] [A. P. Wirephoto.]

On the demands of Germany's Fuehrer, President Emil Hacha of Czecho-Slovakia tonight summoned the parliament to meet at 10 a. m. in the Slovak capital of Bratislava to "decide about the future existence of the Slovak nation."

Under Nazi pressure, a vote favoring independence was predicted in Prague.

State Faces Another Split.

Should the parliament vote to secede, the Czecho-Slovak state, already greatly reduced less than a year ago by the September dismemberment at Munich, again would be reshaped. Slovakia, which had 134,317 Germans, or 5.59 per cent of the population, and Carpatho-Ukraine [Ruthenia] would form one or separate republics under Nazi tutelage.

Bohemia and Moravia, the Czech sections in the western part, would be all that would remain of Czecho-Slovakia.

The summoning of parliament was preceded by a series of bomb explosions at Bratislava while Slovaks rioted against Czechs.

Hitler's decision to seek Slovak independence in a "legal" way lifted a veil of uncertainty about German intentions toward the present autonomous province since President Hacha last Friday attempted to nip the independence movement by ousting the Rev. Father Joseph Tiso, the premier, and his cabinet.

Bows to German Wishes.

Hitler communicated his desires to Tiso during their conference in Berlin today. Tiso then advised Karl Sidor, a member of the central Czecho-Slovak cabinet who succeeded Tiso as premier at Bratislava.

In turn Sidor asked President Hacha to summon the parliament which had not been scheduled to meet until March 28. Sidor issued a statement saying he was resigned to German wishes.

Tomorrow's parliament vote, he said, not only will be "of importance to us but to al lof central Europe."

Earlier today Czech official quarters said the government had decided to protest to Berlin against the activities of German minority groups in Slovakia and Vienna radio broadcasts which were keeping the independence issue boiling in Slovakia.

Attack Foreign Agitation.

Agitation from abroad was fanning the country's internal crisis which, they said, otherwise could be considered solved.

It was not known, however, whether the protest actually had been delivered, since other developments came so rapidly.

As a result of last week's decisive steps to check the separatist movement, in which troops were moved into Bratislava and several members of the government arrested, it was expected Premier Rudolph Beran's federal Czecho-Slovak government would be revamped.

Four members of the cabinet are likely to be dropped. They are the one-eyed minister of defense, Gen. Jan Syrovy, who took over the reins of government in the September crisis; Gen. Alois Elias, minister of communications; Dr. Georg Havelka, minister of propaganda, and Dr. Vladislav Klumpar, minister of social welfare.

Fascist Leader May Get Job.

One of the new ministers may be Gen. Rudolf Gayda, Fascist leader. He claims to have 60,000 troops behind him, and 2,000,000 other followers.

An official announcement of the summoning of the Slovak parliament said:

"It will be an historical day for the Slovak parliament and the Slovak nation because it will decide about the future and the existence of the Slovak nation."

The decision to call parliament was

A Streamlined Medical Team Saves a Life

The life of an expectant mother was saved early today through the perfect coöperation of three services—ambulance, emergency transfusion, and radio.

Shortly before midnight William Thoms, an electrician, telephoned the Chicago Maternity center at 1336 Newberry avenue. "Send a doctor quickly," he pleaded. "My wife is seriously ill." His wife, Emma, 27 years old, had suffered a hemorrhage.

Dr. Harry Carter sped from the maternity center to the Thoms home in the Buena Oaks hotel, 4301 Broadway. He found Mrs. Thoms' condition critical. He telephoned back to the maternity center.

"Send an ambulance," he directed, "and radio the emergency squad to meet us at Randolph street and the Outer drive."

Use New Type Ambulance.

Within a few minutes a new type ambulance, driven by Donald Whedon, was on its way from the Chicago Ambulance board, 571 Jackson boulevard. This is an ambulance service supported by the city and business groups. At the same time police radio was asked to put a call over the air for the emergency squad.

The emergency squad, equipped with medical apparatus and maintained by the maternity center for just such cases as Mrs. Thoms', was made up of Dr. Harry Benaron, Nurse Laura Noodle, and Richard Bush, a medical student. The squad raced to the outer drive and Randolph street, where it met the ambulance carrying Mrs. Thoms and Dr. Carter. Dr. Benaron and his assistants boarded the ambulance-hospital.

Treatment Begins.

As it sped toward the Chicago Lying-In hospital, 5841 Maryland avenue, Drs. Benaron and Carter and the assistants gave Mrs. Thoms a glucose injection to combat loss of blood. They also typed the blood.

Meantime the maternity center had notified the hospital that a transfusion case was on the way. Blood donors of several types were hastily summoned. When the ambulance drew up to the hospital Dr. Benaron called out the type of blood needed. A donor was selected and the transfusion effected.

A few minutes later Mrs. Thoms was reported doing "fairly well."

IF YOU LIKE TO WALK, SEE MR. OFENLOCK; HE KNOWS A PLACE

The streets in Lake Forest are no ordinary streets. They wind to and fro. They seemingly run in circles.

Philip Ofenlock and his wife didn't know about these streets when they drove around Lake Forest yesterday. The Ofenlocks live at 2427 Warner avenue in Chicago, where most streets run straight.

As they drove along the engine of their car sputtered and died. It was out of gas. Mr. Ofenlock started looking for a filling station. He found one. Then, carrying a can of gasoline, he started back toward his car.

He walked and walked. He put down the can and rested.

When he passed a house which he recognized as one he had seen before, Ofenlock appealed to a passerby. He asked to be taken to the police.

Chief of Police Frank Tiffany was sympathetic. He sent Ofenlock out with a squad car to search for his wife and car. Ofenlock recalled that the street where he had stalled had an "Elm" in it.

"Elm Tree road?" asked police.

They toured Elm Tree road, exploring every bend and turn. Then they went into another street. After several miles they came upon the car. Mrs. Ofenlock was pacing beside it on Old Elm road, three miles west of Elm Tree road, near Highway 41. Mr. Ofenlock had been gone 90 minutes.

"Next time I'm in Lake Forest," said Ofenlock, "I'll bring a hatchet and blaze a trail."

STUDENTS OF TWO COLLEGES SELL SHORT ON CHARM

The girls of Mundelein college and the boys of Loyola university sat down, in their separate schools, last week and took stock of each other. The stock, it turned out in a poll taken by the Loyola News, was surprisingly low.

Loyolans, the girls say, are "rather smooth, but with a few noticeable bumps." They should practice up on both their dancing and their conversation. They are snobbish and they spend too much time talking about basketball and swimming meets.

The Mundelein girls, the boys say, are practical in their dress, but not glamorous. They dress cleverly, "do a fine job of fixing their faces," but wear [Thumbs down, Loyolans!] low heeled shoes. They are good dates, the boys agreed; "simple souls, but rather nice."

You may find this hard to believe, but the survey ended with both schools saying they ought to get together more. In a social way.

Swap 2 Wives, 2 Mules, Farm, and 2 Children

Russellville, Ala., March 13.—(AP)—Authorities arrested four persons today in what they described as a wife swapping deal that included the trading of two children, two mules, and 80 acres of land.

Sherif D. C. Nix said the warants charged bigamy against W. D. Johnson and Odell Brand, neighbors, and their wives.

Four on Wedding Trip.

Johnson and Mrs. Della Brand and Brand and Mrs. Annie Fay Johnson drove to Fulton, Miss., in Johnson's automobile and were married Feb. 24—the day the two women obtained divorce decrees that did not permit remarriage for 60 days—the sherif said. The divorces were obtained on grounds of cruelty.

Police Chief L. A. Jackson of Red Bay, Ala., said Annie Fay Johnson Brand told him her former husband, Johnson, deeded 80 acres of land to Brand and gave them two mules in the swap. Johnson and his new wife were to receive custody of two of the five Brand children. Johnson has two children by a former wife, the officer said.

Two Freed on Bond.

Brand and the former Mrs. Johnson were at liberty today, each under $300 bond, Sherif Nix said, while Johnson and Della Brand Johnson remained in custody, Johnson in default of $1,500 bond and the woman of $1,000 bond.

Brand and the former Mrs. Johnson are caring for all seven of the children, Police Chief Jackson reported.

Sons Picket for 5c Sodas, So Papa Makes Them Pay

Newark, N. J., March 13.—(AP)—Frank Rose didn't mind it when the neighborhood boys picketed his confectionery store in protest against a boost in the price of sodas from 5 to 10 cents, but he capitulated when his two sons joined the pickets. "You seem to have forgotten that you always got your sodas for nothing," he told the sons. "Now they're a nickel to you, same as everybody else."

announced after a critical four hour session of the federal cabinet, meeting under President Hacha.

The call for parliament came on the first anniversary of Germany's annexation of Austria, an event which followed the proclamation on March 9, 1938, by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of a plebiscite on Austrian independence.

After tonight's federal cabinet meeting the ministers remained within call, ready to go back into session on a moment's notice. They awaited a full report of the Hitler-Tiso meeting.

"Slovakia is as good as lost," said Czech officials.

Bomb Blasts Rock Bratislava.

BRATISLAVA, Czecho - Slovakia, March 13.—(AP)—Deadly bomb explosions tonight punctuated the separatist demands of Slovaks who engaged in violent anti-Czech demonstrations and heard their leaders virtually declare their independence of the Prague central government.

The bomb explosions, in which six persons were reported killed and fifty injured, came in succession during a defiant demonstration at which Alexander Mach, propaganda chief in the ousted Tiso cabinet, declared "Slovakia is now governed by Slovaks—the Czechs have no more to say."

The demonstration was in celebration of the release of Mach, who had been held by the Czechs since the Prague government deposed the cabinet of Dr. Joseph Tiso.

Crowd Hails Hitler.

"The fate of Slovakia is being decided in these moments," Mach shouted to the echo of "Sieg Heil!" and "Heil Hitler!" from both Germans and Slovaks. "Perhaps within half an hour we shall hear news of great importance from the Berlin radio."

[His forecast was followed within a few minutes by the announcement of Adolf Hitler's order for the meeting of the Slovak parliament tomorrow.]

Mach added that the talks between Hitler and Dr. Tiso in Berlin were bringing a "favorable" solution to the situation.

Turbulent scenes marked the demonstration, participated in by thousands of shouting, excited Slovaks and Germans.

At first the police banned the meeting, which had been announced for Bratislava's Liberty square. Thereupon the demonstrators gathered in the State Theater square, where they were confronted by police with fixed bayonets.

Police Charge Demonstrators.

Unable to reach the theater balcony, Mach mounted a balcony of the Carlton hotel and began his speech. The propaganda chief had not gone far before a police officer gave the order to his men to load their rifles. There were clicks as the cartridges slid into the chambers and saber swinging mounted police charged in from side streets.

Shouts and screams swelled from the madly pushing crowd. Several demonstrators set off stench and smoke bombs and there were pistol shots.

Mach and other leaders ducked their heads under the balcony railing and retreated hastily into the hotel. Telephone negotiations followed and police finally lifted the ban on the assembly.

Mach then was escorted triumphantly to the theater balcony, where he resumed his address.

Demand Release of Slovak.

There were more enthusiastic shouts of "Heil Hitler!" and demands went up from the crowd for the release of Prof. Bela Tuka, Slovak leader, who apparently was still in custody of the Czechs.

As Mach concluded his fiery address explosions reverberated in the distance. Harassed police dashed off to dozens of emergency calls.

In German quarters it was said that the six reported dead were in an apartment house owned by a Jesuit order near the old city hall.

One bomb exploded in a German owned shoe polish factory, another wrecked a building under construction near the international bridge leading to Germany, and a third blast was set off on the bridge itself but caused little damage.

Windows of a building occupied by the German party newspaper, Grenzbote, were smashed by a group of unidentified persons.

DIPLOMATS' WIVES FACE A PROBLEM: WHO'LL FIX HAIR?

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, March 13.—With the biggest party of the season scheduled for Saturday, a hundred wives of Moscow diplomats are facing a problem. They can't get their hair waved because the communist party congress has taken over the big hotels with their hair dressing salons.

Women who returned recently from Paris and London have taught the newest "hair-dos" to hairdressers at the big hotels here, but now are borrowing curling irons or practicing finger waving.

The party will be a costume ball given by Augusto Rosso, Italian ambassador who formerly was at Washington, D. C., and his American wife. Most of the guests have already rented brocade costumes from the Moscow Theatrical trust and elaborate hairdresses are necessary with such costumes.

Circus Worker Sentenced for Compensation Fraud

Rochester, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—John E. Smith, 50 years old, a part time circus employe, pleaded guilty in Circuit court today of having made false affidavits to qualify for benefits from the Indiana unemployment compensation fund. Judge Robert Miller fined him $20 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days on the penal farm. Unable to pay the fine, Smith will have to remain on the farm for seventy-five days.

UKRAINE UNITED BEHIND STALIN, REDS ARE TOLD

MOSCOW, March 13.—(AP)—The eighteenth congress of the soviet communist party was told today that "all Fascist aggressors will break their heads" against an "unprecedented unity" of the people in the Ukraine. The speaker was Nikitta Khruschoff, an alternate member of the political bureau of the central committee and secretary of the central committee of the communist party in the Ukraine.

"We have in the Ukraine," he said, "an unprecedented unity of the people around the party and around Stalin. The union between the Ukrainian people and the great Russian people is mighty and invincible."

[There has been a movement among non-Russian Ukrainians in recent months for an autonomous nation of all Ukrainians. It has gained greatest attention in Poland and Carpatho-Ukraine, which may be cut off from the rest of Czecho-Slovakia by German intervention in favor of Slovak independence.]

BRITAIN, FRANCE KEEP HANDS OFF SLOVAK CRISIS

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—Great Britain and France watched the Czecho-Slovak crisis with some anxiety tonight, but it was not expected they intended to intervene.

The two countries, along with Germany and Italy, said they would guarantee Czecho-Slovakia's shrunken borders after the Munich accord in event of "unprovoked aggression." However, the agreement was never formally reached directly with the Prague government.

Czecho-Slovak approaches to Germany regarding the guarantee brought the answer that Britain and France had not taken the step, so why should Germany? Britain and France signed an annex to the Munich accord of Sept. 29 "on the basis that they stand by" a previous offer of an "international guarantee of the new boundaries of the Czecho-Slovak state against unprovoked aggression."

SAYS U. S. SLOVAKS OPPOSE ACTION BY SEPARATISTS

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 13.—(AP)—V. S. Platek, president of the National Slovak society, which claims 60,000 members, declared tonight Slovaks in America were "bitterly opposed to any such separatist movement" contemplated in Czecho-Slovakia.

He made public an answer to a request from a European news agency for the views of American Slovaks on the Czech crisis.

"We are categorically opposed," the cable read, "to any brutal interference on the part of Germany in Slovakia. American Slovaks are convinced that only in Czecho-Slovakia will the Slovaks endure as a valuable member in the community of cultured nations. The radical separatist movement does not come from the heart of loyal Slovaks and is detrimental to Slovaks."

PITTSBURGH PACT CITED AS BASIS OF SLOVAK CLAIM

Declare Czechs Agreed to Grant Autonomy.

The Czecho-Slovak republic, one of the European democracies set up as a result of the world war, flourished for twenty post-war years. Yet always there were rumblings of dissent, generally based on the desire of the Slovaks for autonomy. The Slovaks said this had been promised in the so-called Pittsburgh pact, signed in the United States on May 30, 1918, before the republic was born. Hitler has profited by this situation.

The Slovakian part of the population, half as numerous as the Czechs, has made frequent demands for self-government. Their leaders often referred, in their cry for autonomy, to the Pittsburgh pact. The background of the pact, therefore, needs explaining.

Started Separately.

Before the world war Czechs and Slovaks were under the rule of Austria-Hungary. The Austrians dominated the Czechs; the Hungarians kept the yoke on the Slovaks. In the United States and other countries emigrants started separate movements to win freedom for both Slovaks and Czechs.

These movements gradually blended into one, reflecting conditions in the home lands. On Jan. 12, 1917, the allied nations listed as one of their conditions of peace the liberation of the Czecho-Slovaks.

Thomas G. Masaryk was president of the Czecho-Slovak National council and leader of the revolutionists who planned to throw off Austria-Hungary's control. He came to the United States in the spring of 1918. After speaking before a huge mass-meeting in Chicago on May 5 he went to Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh Pact.

After a conference with leaders of Czech and Slovak organizations of America he drew up the Pittsburgh pact. It said:

"We approve the political program which endeavors to unite the Czechs and Slovaks in an independent state.

"Slovakia shall have its own administration, its own parliament, and its own courts.

"The Slovak language shall be the official language in the school, in office, and in public life.

"The Czecho-Slovak state shall be a republic; its constitution shall be democratic.

"The organization of the coöperation of the Czechs and Slovaks in the United States shall be intensified.

"The detailed regulations for the establishment of the Czecho-Slovak state are left to the liberated Czechs and Slovaks and their legal representatives."

Legality Challenged.

Masaryk and eleven others representing the Czechs and fourteen representing the Slovaks signed the pact. The Czecho-Slovak republic was formally proclaimed on Oct. 28, 1918. Masaryk, still in the United States, was elected president. He floated a $10,000,000 loan before he returned to Prague.

The Slovaks did not get their autonomy. One of the arguments of the Masaryk government was that the pact was signed in America and on a legal holiday and hence was not binding. The Slovaks pointed to a government resolution of Nov. 11, 1918, whereby "everything done by Prof. Masaryk, all agreements and promises [made by him] remain in force."

The Czechs then said the government must adjust itself to changing conditions and cited the clause in the pact that "detailed regulations" be left to "the liberated Czechs and Slovaks." Through the years weighty points have been made by both sides. Now over the bickering factions looms the shadow and swastika of Hitler.

POLAND SOUNDS OUT HUNGARY ON 'DIRECT FRONTIER'

Free Slovakia Would Isolate Ruthenia.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 13.—Poland's desire to achieve direct frontiers with her ancient ally, Hungary, through division of autonomous Carpatho-Ukraine [Ruthenia] was discussed tonight in government circles in Warsaw following Adolf Hitler's intervention in the Czecho-Slovak crisis.

A long conversation between Foreign Minister Col. Josef Beck and Andrew de Hory, the Hungarian minister, was held this afternoon. President Ignace Moscicki later called Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, Poland's "strong man," and Col. Beck into conference at his apartments in the Warsaw castle.

Would Be Isolated.

Authoritative political circles admitted that the secession of the Slovaks from Prague would present a new opportunity for the much desired common frontier with Hungary. That appeared to be the only possible solution if Carpatho-Ukraine should find itself isolated geographically by the proclamation of Slovak independence. Manifestly Carpatho-Ukraine could not exist economically in such a position.

It was recalled in this connection that Beck declared recently that Rumania was no longer opposed to the common frontier. It was understood that De Hory reported to Budapest immediately after his conversation with Beck and this evening he again got in touch with the foreign office here.

Frontiers "Already Fixed."

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 13.—Premier Paul Teleki today told the official Hungarian news agency that Hungary's frontiers with Slovakia already were definitly fixed and would be occupied tomorrow on both sides.

"Whatever happens within Slovakia," he declared, "is an internal affair of that country. Hungary is watching the course of events very closely."

GERMANY GREETS DEPOSED SLOVAK PREMIER AS HERO

Hitler's Guards Present Arms as Tiso Passes.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 13.—Adolf Hitler's Germany today paid high honors to the man who is expected to bring about the final doom of the already mutilated state of Czecho-Slovakia.

The man was Dr. Joseph Tiso, erstwhile premier of Slovakia whom the government of Czecho-Slovakia deposed for plotting a secession from Prague. Summoned to Berlin by Hitler in order that the Fuehrer might acquaint him with his wishes in the crisis, Tiso was received with honors usually given a chief of state.

Arrives by Plane.

He arrived by airplane with Wilhelm Keppler, German secretary of state in the foreign office. Keppler a year ago played the crucial rôle in the overthrow of the Austrian government by presenting an ultimatum from Reichsfuehrer Hitler to Kurt Schuschnigg, then chancellor. Another passenger aboard the plane was Franz Karmasin, leader of the German minority party in Slovakia.

At noon employés in the chancellery were ordered to change their everyday uniforms for gala outfits and to be ready for a formal reception, but efforts were made to keep secret the name of the person to be received. The person's identity was disclosed this afternoon when Hans Doernberg, chief of protocol, went to the airfield to welcome Dr. Tiso in the name of the German government.

Greeted by Fugitive Minister.

The Catholic priest, with a muffler covering his clerical collar, was also greeted by Ferdinand Durcansky, fugitive minister of communications in the ousted Slovak government.

Hitler's bodyguards presented arms when Tiso arrived at the chancellery. The time between his arrival and his call on Hitler, Tiso spent in conference with Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister.

Tiso conferred with Hitler for an hour and a half. When Tiso emerged from his conference, his aids said he would fly back to Bratislava via Vienna early tomorrow morning and make an important announcement to the Slovak parliament which has been summoned to meet at 10 o'clock.

After his conference with Tiso, Hitler summoned Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party; Von Ribbentrop, and Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels to discuss the situation. It was reported that Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Nazi No. 2, who is visiting in Italy, has been summoned to Berlin.

Topic of Parley Secret.

Von Ribbentrop, who met Ambassador Bernardo Attolico of Italy while Tiso was in the chancellery, called the deposed Slovak premier to the foreign office later in the evening. The subject of their conversation was kept a secret.

Six agents of the GSP [secret police] tonight prevented any one from approaching the visitors from Slovakia and their German guides.

Open Bids for South Side Filtration Plant Tunnels

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, yesterday opened eight bids for construction of two sixteen foot water tunnels in connection with the proposed south side filtration plant. The tunnels are to run under the shore line from 73d to 78th streets. The low bid of $1,679,250 was submitted by the Leininger Construction company of Chicago. Hewitt said that PWA engineers must approve the chosen contractor before a contract can be let.

SLOVAK 'DREYFUS' TRIAL RECALLED BY NEWEST CRISIS

Dr. Tuka Imprisoned for Urging Autonomy.

The Slovak separatist movement, which is expected to result today in the final break-up of the Czecho-Slovak republic, is of long standing. Students of Central European affairs recalled last night the Slovaks' drive for autonomy in 1928 and the resulting trial and imprisonment of Dr. Adalbert Tuka in circumstances paralleling the famous French Dreyfus case.

Dr. Tuka was the leader of the Slovakian People's party, a deputy in the Czecho-Slovakian parliament, a professor of international law at the University of Bratislava, and a contributing editor of the Slovak, an autonomist newspaper.

Dr. Tuka contended that the Pittsburgh agreement—which provided for the formation of the Czecho-Slovak republic—automatically released the Slovaks if they became dissatisfied with their union with the Czechs after ten years.

Branded Treaty Illegal.

Moreover he contended that the Pittsburgh treaty was illegal, first, because it was signed merely by private citizens representing American Czech and Slovak societies, and, second, because it was dated on Memorial day in 1918 and therefore invalid before the law.

The Prague parliament voted to surrender Dr. Tuka to the court at Bratislava on a charge of high treason. He was charged with plotting armed rebellion to break the bonds holding the 1,800,000 Slovaks to Czecho-Slovakia and throw them in with their old masters, Hungary. He was refused a jury trial and appeared for ten weeks before a court of three judges.

Had 50,000 Armed Followers.

Witnesses charged him with founding a semi-secret armed "Rhodobrana," patterned on the lines of the Austrian heimwehr—a Fascist home guard. The "Rodobrana" was alleged to have engaged Col. L. Kovacs, a Hungarian, as military adviser. Despite the Fascist trend of the organization the prosecution charged that Tuka tried to line up communists beside the 50,000 armed members of the "Rodobrana."

It was charged that Dr. Tuka planned to occupy Bratislava with 18,000 Slovakian autonomists in November, 1928, throwing out the Czech officials and occupying the railroads and public buildings throughout Slovakia.

Dr. Tuka denied plotting treason and asserted he acted only for the love of the Slovakian people in demanding autonomy within Czecho-Slovakia.

Sent to Prison; 15 Years.

A light sentence was expected, but Slovakian followers were stunned when the court found Dr. Tuka guilty and sentenced him to fifteen years in prison, with three years' loss of civil rights and permanent deprivation of the title of professor. A mob of 10,000 followers gathered around the court building howled their protests. The newspaper Slovak was suppressed for printing an article by the late Father Andreas Hlinka, recent leader of the Slovak People's party, stating that 500,000 Slovaks would back up Tuka solidly.

Dr. Tuka was sent to the old state prison at Leopoldau and chose solitary confinement which gave him an allowance of one and a half years for each year served. But he read and wrote arduously and after two and a half years was nearly blind. He was moved to the newer prison at Bratislava. He was granted an amnesty on June 4, 1937.

CZECH REPUBLIC FACES ANOTHER CUT IN ITS SIZE

Secession of Slovakia from Czecho-Slovakia, which Czechs last night admitted was likely to happen when the Slovak parliament meets today under the pressure of Adolf Hitler, would reduce the country to a third of its pre-Munich size.

Before the September crisis brought cession of territory to Germany, Poland, and Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia was an elongated state of 54,244 square miles and more than 15,000,000 population.

Since the separation of Slovakia would cut Czecho-Slovakia in two, separating the western part of Bohemia and Moravia from the eastern part of Carpatho-Ukraine, the secession would mean that only Bohemia and Moravia would be left. The area of Bohemia and Moravia, inhabited mostly by Czechs, has an area now of only 18,158 square miles and a population of 6,804,876.

Slovakia, to whom it is proposed to grant independence, has a population of 2,450,096 and an area of about 14,600 square miles. Carpatho-Ukraine, which then would be severed from Prague, has a population of 552,124 and an area of about 4,206 square miles.

VOTE TO INDICT 2 IN RESTAURANT UNION TERRORISM

Grand Jurors Act After Demand from Owners.

True bills charging malicious mischief were reported to have been voted yesterday by the grand jury against Andrew Varvares and James Crowley, officials of the Hotel and Restaurant Employés' union, local 563.

The jury took action after a committee of restaurant owners had complained to the state's attorney that the union was conducting a campaign of terrorism and vandalism in its efforts to obtain members.

A telegram addressed to State's Attorney Courtney by the committee was received by First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley, who called Capt. Daniel Gilbert into a conference to discuss action. The message was signed by Martin J. Harding, A. J. Boyd Pixley, D. L. Tofenetti, C. H. Marquis, Walter Powers, Ray Johns, and C. N. Johnson Sr.

Speedy Action Urged.

"Recent terrorism and vandalism against the Chicago Restaurant Owners' association requires immediate action through complete coöperation of all law enforcing agencies," the message said. "Windows have been broken, stench bombs have been exploded, individuals have suffered physical beatings, and intimidation has been widespread.

"The undersigned have been appointed as a committee to represent the restaurant owners and would appreciate a conference with you to give you a first hand picture of the situation."

Mr. Crowley telephoned the committee that his office would coöperate to the fullest extent in stopping the reported wave of vandalism. He ordered the case involving the two union officials to be taken before the grand jury immediately.

Seized After Window Smashing.

Varvares and Crowley were arrested Feb. 24 by Sergt. James Barbeau of the Marquette station after four bottles had been thrown through four display windows of the County café, 1901 Harrison street. Sergt. Barbeau said he saw Varvares throw the bottles and pursued him to an automobile in which Crowley sat waiting.

Varvares also was accused of slugging Nick Pangakos, part owner of the restaurant, in which Varvares was trying to organize the employés. William Chrones, a partner of Pangakos, testified yesterday before the grand jury.

Acting Police Commissioner John Prendergast said all police had been instructed to guard restaurants and to watch for acts of violence or vandalism against the places in which union organizers have been active. Varvares and Crowley will appear in Felony court today on the County café charges.

A DENTIST RUNS OUT OF FILLING FOR ACHING VOID

Dr. S. Theo Jonas, a dentist who runs a school for dental mechanics at 10 West Jackson street, made a stab at press agentry yesterday. He decided to cast $1 bills into the noonday crowd on State street.

Dr. Jonas said he was bringing prosperity back to the world. The money cast to the winds, he predicted, would "go 'round and 'round" and soon every one would be tossing dollars out.

His plan was to toss out ten new $1 bills. A crowd of his pupils was dispatched to State street to observe and garner what they could. But the wind played havoc with the $1 bills. The pupils seemingly retrieved none of them, and the passersby got all.

Seeing this, the good doctor brought his philanthropy to a sudden end. He said he had thrown out ten bills. Observers counted only seven, two of which, lodging in a crack, were rescued by the dentist's assistant.

FREE YOUTH WHO LEARNED ABOUT GIRLS FROM GIRL

A charge of disorderly conduct against Charles Brodman, 19 years old, who sought to learn about girls from psychology books, was dismissed yesterday in Boys' court. On Sunday Brodman called on Miss Sylvia Izaks, 17, of 5012 North Sawyer avenue, in an attempt to patch up a quarrel. Her father, Louis, called police when the quarrel continued. What Brodman learned in books was doing him no good. Izaks signed the complaint against Brodman, but did not appear in court. The youth, who had spent the night in the Albany Park jail, was freed.

CAR OWNER ACTS TO TIE UP POLICE IN OWN TOW ROPE

Wins First Tilt in Elgin War on $1.50 'Tribute.'

John P. Burita of 562 Lincoln avenue, Elgin, is as fond of his car as the next man. Like all others, he dislikes having any one else touch it, especially the police.

Mr. Burita also is fond of movies. With his wife he drove to an Elgin theater last Tuesday night to see "You Can't Take It with You." When he emerged he found that he couldn't take his car, either. It was gone.

Police Order It Towed Off.

Police had ordered it towed away. They did this, they said, because it was parked in such a way as to block a driveway. Mr. Burita couldn't get it back because he refused to pay the $1.50 fee John Zimmerli Jr., garage owner, charged for towing it away.

Mr. Burita descended upon the police force. They were polite, but uncompromising. Mr. Burita would never get his car back, they said, until he paid the charge.

He offered to bet them he'd have it back within a week without paying. The police didn't even reply. So Burita, being an attorney with offices at 10 South La Salle street, went to work.

Files Suit Against Garage.

Saturday morning he filed a replevin suit in the Elgin City court against Zimmerli, not only asking for the return of his car on the ground of wrongful detention but also demanding $1,000 damages. He denies he was parked illegally.

Yesterday he "won" the bet police wouldn't take. His car was delivered to him by the sherif pending a hearing of the suit on April 3.

"I'm not a bullhead trying to inconvenience others," said Burita. "I just feel it's illegal for the police to put my car in the hands of a private individual and then compel me to pay tribute to recover it. And with me it's any amount for defense, but not one dollar and a half for tribute."

REPORT COMPTON WILL NOT BECOME O. S. U. PRESIDENT

Columbus, O., March 13.—[Special.]—It appeared tonight that Dr. Arthur H. Compton, University of Chicago physicist, would not be able to accept the presidency of Ohio State university because of undisclosed obstacles.

Trustees of Ohio State announced they had held a conference with the scientist about the matter and had discussed the possibility of his accepting the position, although it was not formally offered to him. It is the policy of the board not to make a formal offer until a prospect indicates he will accept it.

Dr. Compton returned to Chicago after the conferences, which were held yesterday and today at Marion, O., forty-five miles north of here. It was said the matter also had been discussed with the Chicagoan on two other occasions. The Ohio State presidency has been vacant since last July 1.

Yankee Clipper Flies from Baltimore to New York

Port Washington, N. Y., March 13.—(AP)—The Yankee Clipper of Pan-American Airways, first of four 41½ ton flying boats designed for trans-Atlantic service, landed at 2:45 p. m., Chicago time, in Manhasset bay today after a 4 hour 35 minute flight from Baltimore. The length of the flight was due to Capt. Harold E. Gray's having made a wide arc over the Atlantic to solve a navigation problem. He brought along a crew of ten. The clipper will remain here several days. When the first transoceanic shakedown cruise will start has not been announced.

RIVERS BACK UP; BRING THREAT TO DRINKING WATER

Show Result of Lake Diversion Cut.

The constant threat to Chicago's water supply caused by the reduced diversion from Lake Michigan into the Illinois waterway was emphasized yesterday when heavy week-end rains forced the current of the Chicago and Calumet rivers to run backward.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said that as a precautionary measure extra chlorine was used in treatment of the water taken from the lake when it was found that polluted water was flowing from the Calumet river into the lake. While there was no immediate menace to the city's drinking water, Hewitt said, the situation illustrated the need for increasing the flow of lake water into the waterway.

Control Gates Closed.

A heavy flow of water from the Chicago river into the lake was prevented by closing the gates of the control works at the mouth of the river. The river water at the mouth was more than an inch above the lake level. There is no control mechanism at the mouth of the Calumet, however, and the polluted river water flower freely into the lake until the river level was reduced by opening the waterway gates at Lockport.

City water officials said that if a strong southwest wind had been blowing simultaneously with the backward flow of the Calumet the polluted water would have been carried out to the water intakes at the 68th street and Dunn cribs.

Reduction Effective Jan. 1.

The reduced flow became effective Jan. 1 under a United States Supreme court decree which limited lake diversion to an average of 1,500 cubic feet a second. Efforts are being made to restore the old diversion of 5,000 cubic feet through federal legislation.

EINSTEIN SOLVES ONE OF SCIENCE'S GREAT PUZZLES

New York, March 13.—(AP)—A single law to explain all the phenomena of the material universe, thus solving one of the great mysteries of science, has been found by Prof. Albert Einstein. He announced this today, on the eve of his 60th birthday, in an interview with his friend, L. E. Levick, New York newspaper man and member of the National Association of Science Writers.

Einstein calls the mystery the unified field theory. It aims to bring together gravitation, magnetism, and matter under one "unifying mathematical concept."

For four years, since leaving Germany a voluntary exile, he has been working on this problem at the institute for advanced study, which is endowed by the Bamberger family of Newark, N. J., and is housed in Princeton university. The study began 20 years ago, when "relativity" was finished, and before it is complete, Einstein hopes to be an American citizen. He does not make public the nature of his announced discovery.

WOUNDED ACCIDENTALLY WITH PISTOL.
Anthony Lerch, 35 years old, 5444 Wellington avenue, a postoffice clerk, was wounded slightly yesterday when a pistol was discharged accidentally in a garage at 2809 North Pulaski road. William Covers, 35, of 419 North Springfield avenue, a chauffeur, had been showing Lerch the pistol, which he wanted to sell.

VALLEY FORGE TEACHES LESSON: GUARD LIBERTY

Indolence Costs Rights, Historian Warns.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Harrisburg, Pa., March 13.—American liberties were won only by fighting for them. To the handful of statesmen and theorists who formulated the principles of the independence movement must be added the long roll of the military heroes, the undisciplined frontiersmen who took their rifles from the cabin walls and marched forth to become the heart of the continental army.

One hundred years before the revolution the frontiersman, Nathaniel Bacon, had foreshadowed such a rising when, with his farmer mob, he charged the palisades at Jamestown, shouting:

"Come on, my hearts of gold; he that dies on the field lies on the bed of honor."

Daring Mad Anthony Wayne.

It was Mad Anthony Wayne, who led daring and successful battles from Stony Point to Fallen Timbers, who had the key to the situation when, in the dark days of the early part of the struggle, he said that American liberty would never be established until the American army learned to beat the British in the field. This was not easy to contemplate in the beginning. The British had won their fame on the fields of Europe. The Americans were untried.

But the Americans had something back of them that the professional and mercenary forces of England did not have.

This something is found in the union of thought between religion and the dream of freedom that took place in the frontier churches, such as the spirit that emanated from the Rev. Samuel Doak at Sycamore Shoals before the battle of Kings Mountain, and that found in the old Paxton church near here. Its more practical side was nurtured by the constant necessity of Indian warfare.

Gets Ready to Defend Home.

"I have this day cut holes in my house and am determined to hold out to the last extremity," wrote John Harris, the founder of Harrisburg, before one of the Indian raids of the early days, raids which led in 1763 to the Conestoga massacre and a march on Philadelphia demanding future aid and a new policy toward the redmen.

The Rev. John Elder was pastor of the Paxton church, the oldest Presbyterian church in America save one in Maryland. He had been born in Scotland and had fled to Ireland and later to Philadelphia and the wilds of Lancaster. What he had seen disgusted him with government in the old world, the tyranny of stewards and understrappers, and he was determined, before he landed here, to find freedom. In this sense the independence movement was really born across the seas.

Six months before Washington was made commander in chief, the Paxton farmers were eager for war. The pastor, now old, preached on the text: "Let us break their bonds asunder and cast away their cords from us."

"O, Lord God of the universe," he prayed, "if Thou art unwilling by divine grace to assist us, do stand aside and let us fight it out."

A Gun in His Pulpit.

He had preached for years with a loaded gun in the pulpit beside him and every man in the congregation was armed.

Gen. Wayne came out of the hills of the Valley Forge section. He had hauled hides from his father's farm to the Potts store at the Forge. He had gone to the Philadelphia academy, had worked as a surveyor and organized the Chester Minute men, had seen action at Quebec and Ticonderoga and had become a colonel before the revolution called him. He was sent by Washington to take Stony Point on the Hudson, a little Gibraltar, 150 feet high, surrounded by water and a marsh. There were British batteries, royal artillery and a garrison of 600. Wayne attacked at 11:30 p. m. on July 15, 1779, with 1,350 men.

"Never in the whole history of mankind," writes Samuel W. Pennypacker, former president of the Pennsylvania Historical society," has there occurred a situation which gives more forcefully the impression of absolute solemnity—the silence, the stern resolution of the musket grip, the morass in front with hidden uncertainties, the dangers and hopes that lay beyond the threatening mountain and the deep darkness of the midnight. Wayne at 11 o'clock sent a paper to his dearest friend, asking him to look out for the education of his little son and daughter and to go to his widow."

Wayne, Shot, Begs to Go On.

Wayne was struck by a ball in leading the assault. When he became conscious he said: "Lead me forward. Let me die at the fort."

To Washington, after the victory, he sent this note:

"The fort and garrison with Col. Johnston are ours. Our officers and men behaved like men determined to be free."

There is a relation here between such an effort and the scene of the Rev. John Craighead, for instance, preaching under an oak tree and telling the men to go out to Washington, "and let God and liberty be your slogan. Let it ring from mountain to mountain."

Something had happened to the American army before this, however. That was the crucible of Valley Forge.

Dr. Harry Emerson Wildes, historian and sociologist, who lives in a cabin at the scene of this terrible experience of Washington's army in the winter of 1777-78, has just written in "Valley Forge," published by MacMillan, a survey and description of all the evidence touching this turning point in the revolution.

Faith Claims a Victory.

"The men who came to its windswept, snowclad acres in the stormy December, 1777," he wrote, "were battered, hungry, sick, and in distress. Abandoned, as they thought, by the civilians of the continental congress; deserted, as it seemed, by their own states, the ragged, barefoot volunteers huddled helplessly about their smoky greenwood fires. Defeated at Brandywine, at Paoli, and at Germantown, they had not lost their confidence nor weakened in their morale until the smooth tongued statesmen had seemed to turn against their army's leaders. The fearful winter, despite its tragic hardships, had taught them that their courage, fortitude, patience, and unstinted fealty to ideals would bring them eventual victory. A disciplined, resourceful, and heartened army marched away from Valley Forge."

Penn Has Clear Vision.

William Penn had a clear vision that he was planting the seed of a nation when he sailed for the Delaware, but he did not dream of such a struggle as this.

"No history now extant," wrote Washington, "furnishes an instance of an army suffering such uncommon hardships as ours has done and bearing them with the same patience and fortitude. To see men without clothes to cover their nakedness, without shoes, for want of which their marches might be traced by blood from their feet, and almost as often without provisions as with them, marching through forests and snow and at winter taking headquarters within a day's march of the enemy, without home or hut to cover them until they could be built, and all without murmur, is proof of patience and obedience that in my mind can scarcely be paralleled."

A Lesson Bequeathed.

The Valley Forge Park today, with the graves of unknown dead and its beautiful memorial chapel, is America's monument to this winter of doubt and sacrifice, but something more is needed, according to Dr. Wildes. He writes:

"The lesson of Valley Forge must not be lost. The continental troops who came as unrelated, virtually independent groups from separate states went forth a welded national army. Their Spartan endurance of distress and disaster had taught them the need for a federated union of free men, enlightened and politically equal, if their ideals of liberty, democracy, and the pursuit in peace of happiness were to be realized. They had staked their lives, their fortunes, and indeed their honor in the furtherance of these great aims; they had displayed a fortitude unexampled in the history of mankind in the face of physical suffering and spiritual anguish. They had set a pattern for the world to follow. . . .

"No such inheritance can be kept safe without continued watchfulness.

"Honor to the memory of the sufferers at Valley Forge is best expressed by zealously serving the ideals for which they labored."

Editor's note—The eighth and final story of this series will tell of the westward march through Pennsylvania after the revolution, the opening of the northwest territory, and the meeting there of a new stream of migration from New England.

CHARGE U. S. GOLD CREDIT TO BRAZIL WILL HELP NAZIS

Senators Assail Scheme as Double Dealing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—The deal by which the Roosevelt administration has pledged some $120,000,000 in gold and exchange credits to Brazil was denounced in the senate today as a species of double dealing which will benefit the trade of Nazi Germany and other European countries more than that of the United States.

Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's negotiator, accused of "dry cleaning" U. S.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.], a member of the foreign relations committee and Democratic whip of the senate, began the attack on the Brazilian credit deal and was joined by four other senators.

Only President Roosevelt's "Dear Alben" Barkley, the Democratic leader, rose to defend the transaction. The spirited assault on the deal, coming from Democratic senators, indicated that the administration will have great difficulty in obtaining congressional approval of the proposal to lend $50,000,000 in gold to the Central Bank of Brazil.

Exchange Credits Included.

In addition to the proposed gold loan, which is supposed to be repaid with Brazilian gold when, as, and if it is mined, the Export-Import bank is to make available about $70,000,000 in dollar exchange credits to Brazilian importers. No congressional authority is required for the Export-Import bank operations.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] declared that Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister, who concluded the credit deal with the state department last week, "gave this country the finest dry cleaning it has ever experienced."

"I have read recently that the Brazilian government has outlined a five year armament program under which they propose to make an expenditure of $100,000,000, of which about $70,000,000 would be spent in Germany and approximately $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 in Great Britain, and that the United States would be favored by the purchase of about $7,000,000 worth of airplane equipment," Senator Reynolds said.

Points to Brazilian Default.

Reynolds reminded the senate that Brazilian federal, state, and municipal bonds held by American investors which are in default aggregate about $360,000,000.

Senator Lewis suggested that the credit deal violated at least the spirit of the Johnson act, which forbids loans to governments which have defaulted on their war debts to the United States government.

"I very much deplore that our country and its instrumentalities—I may say its officials—can find it agreeable to enter upon an agreement to pledge the money of the United States in a loan to a country which, having had many, many millions of our country, will pay nothing, promise everything, and do nothing," said Senator Lewis.

"I yet more deplore that there seems to be a process of government prevailing in this, my country, by which great undertakings can be entered upon with no effort of coöperation with the legislative body, despite the law of congress which forbids, if we read it aright, the very lending to countries that are in default, such as Brazil.

"In particular I must protest for myself against what we would call double-dealing."

Warns of Taxpayers' Loss.

When Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] asserted that the losses from the Brazilian loan would have to be sustained by the taxpayers, Senator Barkley said the same would be true if borrowers from the Home Owners' Loan corporation failed to pay.

"Of course, if the HOLC becomes a failure, the taxpayers will have to settle," said Senator Borah. "But in that matter we are dealing with our own people. We are endeavoring to take care of them under adverse circumstances.

"But I do not think the taxpayers are willing to engage in loans all over the world, knowing that they will have to take care of them in case of failure to pay, and we know that there will be a failure to pay. We now have some 12 billion dollars out, due and unpaid."

WHIRL ON STOLEN CASH FUN WHILE IT LASTED, SAYS GIRL; GETS JAIL

Miss Dorothy Alice Peet, well groomed, well dressed, and well fed, a 160 pound roly-poly redhead, expressed this philosophy yesterday in Felony court: "It was fun while it lasted."

Dorothy Peet.

Miss Peet, 20 years old, stole $282 from the home of Arthur Davis, 5741 Kimball avenue, where she was employed as a maid. For three days she had a whirl with new clothes, a permanent, and champagne dinners at a loop hotel. Then came the law.

"I never had any pretty clothes before," said Miss Peet, contrite but unrepentent. "It was grand. Now I'm ready for jail." Judge Matthew D. Hartigan imposed a sentence of sixty days.

PAPA CUTS BOYS' HAIR AT HOME; HALED TO COURT

In recent months Harold Wilkinson has been cutting the hair of his three children in the kitchen of their home on South Union street in Aurora. He's pretty good. No soup bowl. Once in a while neighbor boys drop in. Mr. Wilkinson cuts their hair for a quarter.

And this has brought down on Mr. Wilkinson's head a lot of trouble. Last week he was arrested. Yesterday he was haled into the Kane County court, at Geneva, of Judge Olney C. Allen. He faces a fine; possibly a jail term.

For Wilkinson is charged with practicing the barber's trade without a license. His principal defense is that since he can't get a license, but does no harm, and pleases his neighbors, what difference does it make to the state of Illinois? "In fact," says he, "I was on relief for a while but now with my haircutting and a part time job I'm getting by. What is the state going to gain if it puts me back on relief?"

C. H. Belmonte, president of the Aurora Barbers' association, was the first witness after the jury box was filled late yesterday. He testified that he had seen Wilkinson cutting the hair of two neighbor children last Sept. 3. They are Ralph White, 6 years old, and his brother, Robert, 9.

Before any more witnesses could be called Judge Allen adjourned court for the day.

DELAY ICE CREAM MONOPOLY CASE TO ARGUE BRIEFS

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday continued until March 22 the case against forty individuals and corporations who are defendants in the so-called ice cream industry monopoly case. The defendants had filed briefs attacking the indictment. Daniel B. Britt and Thomas H. Daly, special assistants to the attorney general, filed an answer yesterday defending the indictment. The briefs will be argued before Judge Philip L. Sullivan, who is out of the city.

RIGID EXCHANGE CONTROL TIES UP TRADE IN BRAZIL

Payment of Bills Beset by Weeks of Delays.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 13.—While Brazil has not been entirely free from the effects of the depression, it may be considered as being the South American country least hit by the world's commercial crisis.

The cost of living here is low compared with that of other South American countries. Possibly it went up from 15 to 25 per cent during the last three years, but nobody has felt it. The rise in the cost of commodities, rent and other items has been developing slowly and not sharply, as in some other countries.

Brazil counts on coffee as the basic export commodity capable of bringing in sufficient foreign exchange to pay for imports. But, because of the government's new coffee policy, many growers in the state of Sao Paulo have neglected their plantations and turned to the raising of cotton.

Burn Low Grade Coffee.

Other products are being exported from the central states which finally have understood that coffee may turn out to be just as much of a drug on the market as rubber is today in the Amazon valley. The government burns a large quantity of low grade coffee, as production is far above the demand for export. The government has granted a moratorium to coffee growers, as well as credits to raisers who are ready to plant and produce only high grade coffee.

The national budget for the fiscal year 1939 appears to be fully balanced; this, however, does not mean that it really is. President Getulio Vargas, with his dictatoria' power, may decide to increase expenditures, while revenues may be below the figures stated in the budget.

At any rate, the policy of paper money inflation which, up to the last quarter of 1938, appeared to be the only course open to the government to meet ordinary and extraordinary expenses has been cut down. On Jan. 31, 1939, the circulation of paper money in Brazil had decreased substantially.

Foreign Exchange Scarce.

Acquiring foreign exchange is still the principal problem of the government. President Vargas' policy of suspending payments on all federal, state, and municipal loans held abroad relieved substantially the foreign exchange market and permitted the Banco do Brazil to supply importers with the necessary foreign currency to meet their drafts, but the bank and government still are greatly handicapped.

The recent agreement with the United States was designed to free the movement of exchange as far as these two American countries are concerned.

Foreign firms selling to Brazil have to sell their drafts to the Banco do Brasil. They receive milreis at the official rate of exchange, which is considered as being from 15 to 20 per cent below the real value of American dollars or British pounds. The government's exchange policy may favor Brazilian manufacturers, but on the whole it appears to be inadequate.

Some Restrict Credit.

The barter trade agreement with Germany has, in part, relieved the situation. Germany absorbs the bulk of the cotton exported from the northeastern states and also buys a fair quantity of coffee.

In spite of all this, European exporters who do not enjoy the benefits of a barter trade agreement are restricting their credit to Brazilian importers. This is because of the fact that while importers here pay the full value of the imported merchandise when the drafts are due, the Banco do Brasil never allotted the necessary exchange at once. Four or five weeks elapsed before the exchange was allotted, then another five or six weeks were necessary to get the exchange board's authorization for the transfer of the cash overseas.

French manufacturers and exporters have objected strenuously lately and many Brazilian importers are unable to meet the French requirement of cash in advance for orders for goods. No exchange is obtainable here without the presentation to the Banco do Brasil of a bill of lading, consular invoice, and the certificate of the commerce department of the country where the goods is purchased.

An Advantage for U. S.

The United States, however, enjoys a preferential status. Through the efforts of the state department, American drafts are immediately converted into dollars at their maturities and the cash is transferred to the exporters promptly. American public utility companies, however, were unable to transfer any of their profits to their parent companies in the United States. The new agreement is designed to relieve this situation.

Brazilians living abroad are allowed only 500 milreis [about $25] a month, while Brazilian students and persons in hospitals abroad may get from $50 to $100 on presentation of a certificate of college registration or of a hospital certificate duly certified by a Brazilian consul.

Minnows by the Millions Move Into Ogden Slip

Millions of minnows moved into Ogden slip near the mouth of the Chicago river yesterday. It is the annual spawning season. The quantity was said to be the largest in 20 years. There were a large number of dead fish, attributed to the stagnant, polluted water resulting from the closing of the control gates at the mouth of the river.

FILES CONTEST IN SENATE FOR VAN NUYS' SEAT

Grave Frauds Charged by Indiana Editor.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Raymond E. Willis, Republican editor of Angola, Ind., charged in a petition filed with the senate today that his opponent, Senator Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.] obtained his election last Nov. 8 by wholesale frauds on the part of the Indiana Democratic machine.

Raymond E. Willis.

The petition, a volume of 345 pages, containing specific charges, exhibits, and affidavits, requests a senate investigation and a recount of the votes cast in the senatorial election. The Democratic Indiana Supreme court issued an injunction forbidding a recount of the ballots by state officials.

Hope to Expose Corruption.

The petition does not expressly seek the unseating of Senator Van Nuys and it is known that the national and Indiana state Republican committees have no illusions about what the overwhelmingly Democratic senate will do in this respect. The Republicans, however, are more concerned about exposing the corruption of the McNutt-McHale-Townsend-Minton machine to make certain its undoing in 1940.

Mr. Willis declared today that he would be a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination in 1940. If nominated, he would oppose Senator Sherman Minton, a vociferous New Dealer, in the election. The Republicans regard Minton as a push-over for 1940, since it is generally conceded that Senator Van Nuys ran as well as he did because of his popularity as an intended victim of President Roosevelt's purge campaign.

Marked for Slaughter.

The Indiana state house machine undertook to coöperate with the purge and marked Senator Van Nuys for slaughter. However, when he threatened not only to run independently but to tell all he knew about political corruption in Indiana the machine at the state convention renominated him.

The Republicans also are motivated by the belief that a senate investigation of the Indiana election system will deflate the presidential boom of Paul V. McNutt, former governor and now high commissioner to the Philippines. It is this consideration, more than anything else, which may induce Democratic senators who are not enamored of McNutt as a presidential aspirant to support Mr. Willis' request for an investigation.

Goes to Elections Committee.

The petition went to the committee on privileges and elections, between whose chairman, Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], and Senator Van Nuys, there is a natural affinity, both having been marked for the purge. Senator George called a meeting of his committee for Thursday to consider the petition.

Senator Van Nuys, who was confined to his home with a cold, said he would study the petition and issue a statement tomorrow.

Apparently more concerned about the petition than Senator Van Nuys, however, was Senator Minton, who kept the one copy on file most of the afternoon and made it difficult for reporters to obtain access to it.

"I believe, and thousands of other citizens of Indiana believe, that I was defrauded of the seat in the senate that now is occupied by Frederick Van Nuys," Mr. Willis states.

Cites Election Returns.

The petition cites the official election returns, giving Willis 783,889 and Van Nuys 788,386 votes, a majority of 5,197 for Van Nuys. Arch N. Bobbitt, Indiana state Republican chairman, wrote an accompanying letter expressing the conviction that "in an honest election Mr. Willis would have been declared elected.

"If a fair senatorial election is to be obtained in Indiana in the future, it is essential that conditions which foiled the will of the electorate in the last election be remedied," the petition said.

"I believe there will never be a fair election held in Indiana until the methods by which this particular victory has been won are completely exposed and the perpetrators of such methods are punished."

Makes Detailed Charges.

The petition makes detailed charges concerning the election in Vanderburgh, Lake, Marion, Sullivan, Vigo, and St. Joseph counties, and sets forth the following conclusions:

1. That there are valid reasons to believe there were frauds in both paper ballot and machine voting, and that the voting machines were tampered with. Frauds and errors in the counting of paper ballots also are charged. Election officials failed to remove from the lists the names of persons not qualified to vote and the total number of persons illegally on the voting lists was 10,000 and probably exceeded 25,000, the petition charges.

2. That voters were intimidated, Republican workers assaulted, and persons engaged in work on relief projects influenced.

3. That vast sums of money were collected through an organization commonly known as the "Two Per Cent club," but officially designated as the Hoosier Democratic club; that this money was used in the election, and that large sums of this money were collected by pressure of fear upon public employés. Much of the money was donated by corporations, indicating they were paying into the club a percentage of profits derived from business transacted with the state, according to the petition. This organization ["the Two Per Cent club"] contributed more than $100,000 to the campaign fund of the state Democratic committee, it is charged.

4. That this "Two Per Cent Club" was created to enable individuals in the Democratic state organization to avoid prosecution for violation of both the federal and state corrupt practices acts. Senator Frederick Van Nuys charged in 1938 that the "Two Per Cent club" was formed in violation of both the federal and state corrupt practices acts and threatened to demand a senatorial investigation of its activities, the petition recalled. Further, it is charged, that the funds collected by this organization were used to the benefit of Mr. Van Nuys in the election and that he knew the funds were being so used.

Hangs Self in Office

MARGARET MacKENZIE.

Five years ago, while despondent over his divorce, Kenneth B. MacKenzie hanged himself in his office at the Welding Engineer Publishing company at 608 South Dearborn street. He was secretary of the company founded by his father.

Since then MacKenzie's sister, Margaret Jean, 24 years old, had brooded over her brother's death. Early yesterday she visited his office. She wrote a note to her mother, Mrs. Gertrude MacKenzie. Then she hanged herself in the same manner used by her brother. Her note to her mother said she feared she was losing her sight.

The young woman, a graduate of the Starrett School for Girls, was in charge of the circulation department of the company. She lived with her mother at 7321 South Shore drive. A coroner's jury decided she committed suicide while temporarily insane.

GREEN DEMANDS TO KNOW SOURCE OF KELLY'S FUNDS

Says Machine Spent 2½ Millions in Primary.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Dwight H. Green, Republican nominee for mayor, said last night that the fight at the polls April 4 will be between the people and the Democratic organization. Green spoke on the south side at 7427 South Chicago avenue and at 7517 Yates avenue.

"Mayor Kelly has just returned from a nice vacation in Florida," said Green. "He should be fully rested now and ready to answer questions to which the people demand answers.

Four Questions Hurled.

"The people demand that Kelly, and no one else, tell them immediately and plainly these four things:

"1. When will you force the resignation of your pals, James B. McCahey and William H. Johnson, as president of the board of education and superintendent of schools?

"2. Why are tax bills being held up until after election?

"3. Why did your machine spend 2½ million dollars to get you nominated?

"4. Where did your machine get that 2½ million dollars?"

Clement A. Nance, running mate of Green for city treasurer, told the Yates avenue crowd: "We must encourage private industry to put thousands of young people back to work. There is no substitute for employment by private industry."

First Voters Counseled.

A group of women who are about to cast their first votes was given instruction yesterday at the volunteer women's Green committee headquarters. Hazel Goodrich, a representative of the election board, supplied the facts. Mrs. Frank Specht, president of the Chicago Federated Charities, called women voters "Chicago's frozen assets."

"There are more women than men of voting age," she explained. "They pay 52 per cent of the city taxes. They own 40 per cent of the real estate and they spend 85 per cent of the money spent in retail stores. Yet they have not demanded a voice in the running of the city"

Dr. William H. Reid, head of the drive to get one million pledge cards signed for Green, said more than 23,000 were turned in yesterday.

DOWNING WITHDRAWS FROM COURT RACE IN INTEREST OF HARMONY

Macomb, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—State Senator T. Mac Downing of Macomb today cleared the way for a united Republican party in the fourth Supreme court district race by withdrawing his candidacy.

Judge Albert M. Crampton.

Senator Downing announced his withdrawal in a letter to Municipal Judge Albert M. Crampton of Moline, the only other announced candidate. Republicans from the 4th district, comprising fourteen counties, will nominate Judge Crampton in the district convention in Quincy on April 10.

Fourth district Democrats will nominate their candidate in a convention at Rock Island two days later. Carl B. Berter, a Quincy attorney, today became the third Democratic candidate. He will oppose Circuit Judge Loren E. Murphy of Monmouth and State's Attorney Francis C. King of Rock Island.

17TH COURTNEY AID FIRED FOR BACKING KELLY

Donald Korshak yesterday became the seventeenth assistant state's attorney to lose his job following State's Attorney Courtney's unsuccessful primary campaign for the Democratic mayoral nomination. He was told by First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley that effective tomorrow he would be on the pay roll no longer.

Donald Korshak.

Crowley, acting for Courtney who is in Hot Springs, Ark., told Korshak, the latter said last night, that room had to be made for those who were loyal to Courtney during the campaign. Korshak worked for Kelly during the campaign. He has been an assistant state's attorney six years.

Another veteran put on the skid by Courtney is Mal Coghlan, who has served six years under Courtney and four under the previous Republican state's attorney. Coghlan has refused to yield to the request that he resign.

KELLY SENDS OUT SOMETHING NEW IN CAMPAIGN MAIL

Seeks to Avoid Charge Taxpayers Bear Cost.

BY PARKE BROWN.

A novelty in political campaign postal matter is reaching thousands of Chicago voters who cast Democratic ballots in the primaries Feb. 28.

The return address in the upper left hand corner of the envelope reads: "Office of the Mayor, City of Chicago." The letterhead bears the same wording reversed, "City of Chicago, Office of the Mayor," with the city seal at the left and the name of Mayor Kelly in the upper right hand corner.

In former years voters received letters of this character with a distinct impression that the taxpayers were paying the bill.

Letterhead Explains.

This time no chance is being taken that such a suspicion will be aroused. On the flap of the envelope and just above the city seal on the letterhead appear the words: "Not printed or mailed at public expense."

Inquiry at the headquarters of the Democratic organization in the Morrison hotel and at the offices of the All-Chicago committee brought replies that Mayor Kelly is paying the entire cost of the printing and the mailing and that none of the work has been done in the city hall or by city employés.

A part of the letter to voters follows:

"The vote given me in the Democratic primary was so gratifying that I take this means of expressing my thanks to all Chicagoans who participated in the Democratic primary.

Hails Indorsement of Program.

"I do not consider the results of this primary so much a personal victory but rather an indorsement of a municipal program which places the material and social progress of Chicago above all other considerations.

"During the campaign I felt sincerely that the people of Chicago want to continue the revival of our famous 'I Will' spirit. The results of the primary indicate that this is true. They also indicate that Chicagoans have no sympathy with campaigns in which Chicago's good name is attacked either by outsiders or by those interested only in political power."

Mayor Kelly closed the letter with an assurance that his success on April 4 will mean that Chicago will go forward with civic projects, meaning better homes, increased employment, more recreational facilities, and general planning for the welfare of all citizens.

BUSINESS IS EVERYBODY

By CALEB

THERE always has been, and still is, a too great tendency to identify the Businessman as a special type of the human species. He is looked upon as someone different and apart from his fellows . . . a member of the racial family to be observed critically, because in his calling he is "not as other men."

Unconsciously, as a result of this attitude, even businessmen themselves fall into defensive, apologetic or explanatory groups. Many have felt unwarrantedly, yet of necessity, compelled to justify themselves to their communities—in paid-space advertising and other forms of public relations literature.

All this perversion of understanding is civic and social "lost motion"—the more deplorable because it is so contrary to even an elementary analysis of the facts. For business, in actuality, is a concern of everybody . . . the total adult population of any area, whether urban or metropolitan.

The farmer is in the business of assisting Nature to feed, house and clothe his fellows, through his production and distribution of grain, timber, cotton, wool and livestock. The banker is a collector and purveyor of funds, whose own prosperity in turn depends on the good fortune of everyone depositing or using those funds. Every buyer is a seller to someone else; every seller a buyer from someone else. Whatever lines of demarcation set aside particular individuals or classes are arbitrary, not actual.

The truer view of business as a composite of all the work of all the world's workers, makes for two other truer views as to what will cure many, if not most, of the country's industrial wrongs. One is the mutuality, rather than antagonism of all business interests: emphasizing the need to slacken criticism and to renew cooperation. And the second is like unto the first: recognition that inquiry, indictment, malediction, unfair-practice charges, propaganda pro this and con that—are disastrous substitutes for plain hard work. More furrows in the business plowlands, fewer furrows on the business-critic's brow, are the real need of the hour.

The whole obvious paradox of Business being everybody, not certain somebodies, proves that independence, whether of individuals or of institutions, is ultimately interdependence. The wisest approach any man can make to his own success lies in forwarding the success of those around him.

BANKER ACCUSES MOTHER AND SON IN SWINDLE CASE

Two on Trial in Scheme to Mulct Illinoisians.

Danville, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Government witnesses wove a web of evidence today about a mother and son on trial in Federal court here on charges of fraudulently using the mails in a scheme by which they swindled Illinois investors out of $125,000.

The defendants are Mrs. Maude Ault, 48 years old, who lived at the Majestic hotel in Chicago prior to her arrest last Sept. 17, and her son Robert Eugene, 28, who spells his name Alt instead of Ault.

The trial began this morning after a jury had been chosen quickly in the court of Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Accused of Faking Story.

The defendants are accused of mulcting Chicago and downstate investors of large sums of money supposedly to help them collect the estate of a wealthy bootlegger whose existence, according to the government, was invented for the purpose of putting over the swindle. The defendants are accused of telling their victims the bootlegger offered Alt half his estate of 30 to 50 million dollars to help win his release from prison and they needed money to fight the case.

A government witness today was Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National bank of New York. He was brought from the east for a seven minute appearance on the witness stand.

His name was said to have been used by the mother and son in perpetrating the swindle. It was charged they also used the names of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States Supreme court.

Denies Knowing Defendants.

Aldrich testified he didn't know Mrs. Ault or her son, never saw them until today, and knew nothing about the estate they said they would inherit.

The government's first witness was Mrs. Ault's brother, Lorenson K. Bandy, now of Monticello, Ill. He testified he invested virtually all his wealth before he learned the truth about his sister's fantastic scheme.

Bandy said Mrs. Ault lived with him from 1930 to 1934. He then resided in River Forest, a suburb west of Chicago, and was employed as an engineer for the Western Electric company.

He said she and Robert told him they were friendly with a Max Orendorff, a wealthy man who owned large tracts of land near Peoria and Canton, Ill., and in Texas. Orendorff, they said, had been sent to the penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for bootlegging, but they were in a position to help him, for which he would give them half of his estate.

Tells of Supplying Money.

"I furnished money for Robert to go on trips which he said he was making to Washington, New York, California, Texas, Wisconsin, and Canada in connection with the case," Bandy told the jury. "I gave him sums that were sometimes as large as $500 and $600."

In his opening statement to the jury United States District Attorney Arthur Roe said one of the early victims of Mrs. Ault and her son was Newton F. Grey, who has an office at 39 South La Salle street, Chicago, and lives in Evanston. Roe said the Chicago business man gave the defendants about $76,000.

The schemers told their prospective victims, the district attorney said, that they would get returns of 200 to 1 if they would help them obtain a share of the huge estate that had been offered young Alt.

The Girl Scouts of troop 24, sponsored by Olivet institute, settlement house at 1441 Cleveland avenue, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their founding with a style show last night.

The show depicted Girl Scout uniforms for work and play from 1913 to 1939. For 1913 the hiking uniform consisted of a white middy and voluminous, cover-all black bloomers. For 1939 it is a soft green blouse and very brief green shorts or slacks.

Claire Simpig of 1936 Mohawk avenue is leader of the troop, which now has thirty-two members. Dolores Martin of 1744 East 69th street, director of girl's work at the institute, is her assistant.

DAWSON PICKED AS AMBASSADOR IN PANAMA POST

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt nominated William Dawson of Minnesota today to be ambassador to Panama. Dawson is the present minister to Uruguay.

Mr. Roosevelt also sent to the senate the nomination of Laurence A. Steinhardt of New York to be ambassador to the soviet union. His appointment was made known several days ago.

Dawson, a native of St. Paul, is a career diplomat of thirty years of unbroken service. Dawson will take the post at Panama City left vacant by the transfer of Minister Frank P. Corrigan to Venezuela as ambassador to that country. The Panama appointment makes that nation the third Latin American republic in recent months to have its diplomatic representation raised to ambassadorial status, the others being Colombia and Venezuela. The United States will now have nine embassies in Latin America, the others being in Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Peru, Cuba, and Mexico.

Twice a Judge, He Finds He Isn't Even a Citizen

Frankfort, Ky., March 13.—(AP)—For more than half a century Richard B. Hearn, 82 years old, of Newcastle, Ky., thought he was a citizen. He voted, served on juries—and was elected police judge of two different towns. But when he applied for an old age pension he found that his father, who came from Ireland seventy years ago, hadn't made citizenship arrangements. Hearn became a citizen today.

Auto Frightens Horses; Their Driver Badly Hurt

Joseph Starzynski, 1116 Darrow avenue, Evanston, was driving a team of horses in Dempster street, near Dodge avenue, in the suburb yesterday when the horses became frightened by a motor truck. They reared, throwing Starzynski from the wagon. He suffered serious chest and leg injuries and was taken to St. Francis hospital.

U. S. ARRESTS TEN IN KOKOMO WPA MATERIALS PLOT

Ex-Mayor and Aids Named in Fraud Charges.

Kokomo, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Ten men, including former Mayor Olin R. Holt and four former officials in his Democratic administration, were arrested late today on federal indictments charging conspiracy to defraud the government in a WPA scandal here.

Olin R. Holt.

The indictments were returned last week by a federal grand jury in Indianapolis, but were not disclosed until today. An eleventh man was indicted but his name was withheld pending his arrest.

The defendants are charged with having diverted WPA materials and labor to private enterprise. At times as many as 100 WPA workers, including truck drivers and foremen, allegedly were used on private jobs.

Tells Plot's Ramifications.

The conspiracy began in 1935 and ended with the change in the city administration here last Jan. 1, according to United States Attorney Val Nolan. He listed four instances of alleged frauds with which he will support the general charge. They are:

1. Under fictitious names the defendants collected $10,000 from the city for bricks taken from a building that was bought and razed by the WPA.

2. Gravel from a city pit was removed by the WPA and sold to private parties.

3. WPA workmen were used to repair and maintain privately owned contractor's machinery.

4. WPA labor was used to crush stone that was sold to the city, thereby increasing the profit to private parties.

Complaints that members of the Holt administration were misusing federal building materials and man power were made early last summer. At that time a group of WPA workmen went to Indianapolis and informed State WPA Administrator John K. Jennings that material was being bootlegged and was being used for private purposes.

U. S. Agents Intervene.

Not until demands for an official inquiry became insistent, shortly before the Nov. 8 election, was any result obtained. Two agents of the federal division of the WPA came here from Chicago. Their findings were placed in the hands of the federal attorney and the indictments followed.

Former city officials under indictment, in addition to Holt, are Carl J. Broo, Holt's law partner and city attorney in his administration; George H. Morrow, city engineer under the Holt régime; George Mix, former assistant city engineer, and William H. [Mel] Good, former city clerk.

Others indicted are Joseph M. Tarkington, former chief clerk of the Kokomo office of the governor's unemployment relief commission; Lincoln F. Record, former WPA street project superintendent; T. Carl Heady, treasurer of the Sumption-Heady-Hunt company, a materials supply concern; James A. Harmon, former WPA foreman, and Lester E. Ratcliff, former WPA supervisor for Howard and Tipton counties.

Kills Mother by Accident While Loading Small Rifle

Dixon, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Melvin Johnson, 32 years old, accidentally shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Emma Johnson, in the kitchen of their home yesterday at Harmon, near here. A 22 caliber repeating rifle was discharged just after he had cleaned and loaded it. A coroner's jury exonerated him of blame.

POPE VOICES DESIRE FOR PEACE; RECEIVES AMBASSADOR KENNEDY

VATICAN CITY, March 13.—(AP)—Determined to strive for world peace, Pope Pius XII. turned today to routine labor from the historic ceremonies of his coronation. One of the first acts after his coronation yesterday, it was disclosed today, was to pronounced an allocution before the cardinals reiterating his desire for peace.

Today the pope received Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to London, who had attended yesterday's coronation as the official representative of President Roosevelt. With the envoy were Mrs. Kennedy and all of their nine children except Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., who was unable to come here from Spain. Kennedy said the pope expressed "great admiration for President Roosevelt because he [the pope] always admired his stand for religion." Kennedy said also that Pope Pius "expressed gratitude to President Roosevelt for having sent a representative" to the coronation.

This afternoon Cardinal Maglione, the new papale secretary of state, was host at the papal summer palace to the cardinals and members of the papal court and foreign missions.

MADRID SEIZES 4 FOREIGN REDS AS REVOLT LEADERS

MADRID, March 13.—(AP)—Four foreign communists accused of directing the Madrid communist political bureau were seized today as Gen. José Miaja's president [loyalist] defense council cleaned up the remnants of last week's revolt. Communists were removed from civil positions.

The four foreigners seized were three Russians and a Frenchman who were said to have arrived from France several months ago. They were charged with directing the communists here from behind the scenes. Madrid was returning to normal siege conditions, with the Nationalists [Gen. Franco's troops] still entrenched to the northwest and west. The National defense council met tonight and was believed to have discussed its program of seeking an early peace with the Nationalists—a program interrupted by last week's communist uprising.

INDICT FAIRFIELD EX-MAYOR, NOW A WPA FOREMAN

Fairfield, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Jerd V. Smith, foreman of all WPA projects in Wayne county, was indicted by a special grand jury today on charges of forgery. He is accused of forging the names of city employés to $670 worth of checks while mayor of Fairfield.

Smith was told about the indictment and not arrested until he had time to arrange for a bondsman to assure his immediate release. Counts of the indictment charge Smith forged ten checks for amounts varying from $14 to $117. The checks were drawn on the state motor fuel tax fund to pay employés of the Fairfield street department.

Pilfering Housewife Wins Year Probation in Thefts

Municipal Judge Oscar S. Caplan yesterday placed Mrs. Evelyn Zajac, 20 years old, 2530 North Kedzie avenue, on probation for one year for pilfering milk, hot pies, and laundry from her neighbors. Detectives found her ironing clothes which had been taken from a neighbor's wash line in the basement. Neighbors began missing various articles after the Zajacs moved in recently.

JURY TOLD HOW CIO SIT STRIKERS WRECKED PLANT

Case Outlined in Firm's $3,515,872 Suit.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 13.—[Special.]—The acts of sitdown strikers in seizing the Apex Hosiery company's plant on May 6, 1937, and wrecking its machinery were described to a federal court jury here today in a statement opening the company's suit against Branch No. 1, C. I. O. Hosiery Workers, for $3,515,872 damages.

The suit, was brought under the Sherman act which allows triple damages, and the sum demanded represthree times the alleged amount of loss suffered by the company during forty-nine days the plant was held by C. I. O. forces.

Describes Union's Tactics.

Sylvan H. Hirsch, counsel for the company, told the jury that the only issue in the case was the sitdown strike. The United States Supreme court ruled two weeks ago that sitdown strikes are illegal. Counsel for the union told the jury the issue was whether the union had violated the Sherman anti-trust law by interfering with interstate commerce.

Hirsch told the jury that prior to May, 1937, the plant had been an open shop, employing 2,500 persons at the highest wages paid in the industry in Philadelphia.

A month earlier William Leader, president of the American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers, had written to William Meyer, president of the company, and submitted a proposed agreement for a closed shop, and said he expected a signed agreement at once. Leader told Meyer he would hear more from him later.

Meyer, the jury was told, had no further word from Leader until the afternoon of May 6, when the union leader appeared in front of the company's plant at the head of a crowd of 8,000 persons. Sixty office workers, maintenance men, and foremen stayed in the plant and all others were sent home.

Parley Refusal Recalled.

Leader then sent a Philadelphia police inspector into the plant to inform Meyer he wanted to talk with him. Meyer replied that because of the noisy crowd outside it would be impossible to talk there and suggested they meet in the office of his attorney.

Then, it is charged, Leader shouted that he declared a sitdown strike and the announcement was followed by the hurling of bricks, stones, and pipes through the factory windows. A number of men were sent inside the plant to open the doors.

The crowd rushed in. Office equipment was smashed and files were destroyed. Meyer implored Leader to stop the destruction, and Leader replied: "What about signing the agreement now?" When Meyer refused to sign, the few employés left in the plant were attacked and some of them were injured.

During the forty-nine days the plant was held many delicate machines were destroyed, according to Hirsch.

WHY TAKE CHANCES WITH HEAD COLDS?
If you feel a head cold coming on — take no chances—call a doctor at once. He will probably suggest a light liquid diet and put you to bed. Only Nature can cure a cold and you can help Nature best by getting plenty of rest.
To rest comfortably, you should be able to breathe freely thru your nose. Here's a simple thing that will help ease your breathing and thus promote restful sleep. If your nose is stopped up with mucus, due to a cold, get a jar or tube of Mentholatum at any drug store. Put some in each nostril and snuff it up as far as you can. Mentholatum is a mild, cooling ointment containing menthol, camphor and soothing oils. It stays put in your nose and gives off clearing vapors for hours. This action helps to open up your breathing passages and soothes the rawness inside your nose. If your cold is "farther down", rub a liberal quantity on neck, throat and chest.
Remember, don't take chances with head colds—call a doctor at once. Then get some Mentholatum to help relieve head cold miseries. Used by millions for over 40 years. In jars and tubes, at all druggists—only 30¢.

SHOWDOWN NEAR ON REPUBLICANS' SPENDING SURVEY

Urge G. O. P. Loyalty in House Test.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Both Republican and Democratic leaders today expressed confidence of victory when the house votes tomorrow on a motion to discharge the G. O. P. sponsored committee investigating Democratic state spending.

Although the house is nominally controled by the G. O. P., 79 to 74, the fact that nine Republicans switched their votes last week leaves the outcome in doubt. Determined to line up the Republicans for the showdown, R. J. Branson, house majority leader, will call a party caucus after the house convenes.

Stelle Attacks G. O. P.

It was believed that Speaker Hugh W. Cross will rule that 77 votes are required to discharge the investigating committee. Even so, Democrats boasted they control enough Republican votes to put their motion over.

Acting Governor John Stelle today issued a statement attacking the Republican economy campaign. He asserted that Republicans have never been for economy but now find that the subject provides them with "cheap political advertising."

Stelle dared the Republicans to cut 10 per cent—their objective—from amounts set up in the proposed state budget for relief, old age assistance, school funds, and road funds.

"The state administration will welcome a fair and impartial inquiry and I will insist that a Republican head the joint committee if the members named to the committee are sincere in their efforts to conduct a fair investigation and are not merely intent upon a mudslinging campaign," Stelle's statement said.

Cross Makes Reply.

Speaker Cross tonight replied to this suggestion for a Republican chairman for the joint senate-house committee, which Republicans charge is a "whitewash attempt." It was created after the G. O. P. committee.

"I note your reservations as to the scope of the authority of the committee, and as to what Republican should serve as chairman," Cross replied. "Until these reservations are clarified I am unable to set forth my position in this matter."

Cross and Floor Leader Branson joined in a letter to Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Cook county Republican central committee. They commended Moore and the committee for insisting that all Republicans give complete support to the economy drive, as pledged in the party platform.

Election Board Opposes Advance Voting by Jews

The Chicago election board yesterday adopted a resolution opposing action by the state legislature to permit orthodox Jews to cast their mayoral ballots before April 4, the statutory election day, which falls on the Jewish day of the Passover. The board held that any change in the present law is impractical. The chairman of the board, Harry A. Lipsky, is Jewish. The other commissioners are Mrs. Mable G. Reinecke and William B. Daly.

The flowers resemble lilies and are of chocolate color, with stems six feet high and blossoms three feet long and twelve inches wide at the top. Their botanical name is amorphophallus rivieri.

ASSEMBLYMEN TO EAT CABBAGE DINNER TONIGHT

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Members of the legislature will sit down together tomorrow night at their eighth biennial corned beef and cabbage dinner, which Representative Matt Franz [D., Chicago] has been managing as a St. Patrick's day celebration since 1925.

This affair is the one big bi-partisan social event of each biennial session of the general assembly. It is an occasion for much speechmaking in the ribbing vein. Tubs full of corned beef and cabbage are consumed.

Speaker Hugh Cross, a Republican, is chairman of the committee arranging tomorrow night's dinner. Acting Gov. John Stelle, a Democrat, will be toastmaster.

FEDERAL HOUSING PROJECTS REPORT 'NET GAIN' IN YEAR

Analysis Shows Profit Is Really a Loss.

Real estate experts last night asserted that Chicago's $16,000,000 federal housing projects would have shown a heavy deficit in their first year of tenancy if the tax burden they normally should have borne had not been saddled upon the owners of private property.

The deficit would have been $355,459 from the time the buildings were opened to tenants on Jan. 25 last year until last Dec. 31—if the government had allowed its property to be taxed.

But the government pays no taxes on this experiment in housing approximately 2,400 families. Instead of the estimated $494,355 which private owners would have been taxed for the same property, the government only pays the city what it calls a "service charge" of $39,741 a year.

Report "Net Gain" of $99,165.

And so the bookkeepers of the Chicago Housing authority were able to show a $99,165 item they called "net gain" in the report they submitted yesterday at the CHA's annual meeting.

But even that net gain, according to real estate experts, did not take into account one of the major principles of real estate management—setting up a reserve for depreciation sufficiently large to replace the buildings when they are obsolete or worn out.

There was a depreciation item in the CHA's list of expenses—$107,847 paid to the United States housing bureau for rent, depreciation, etc. No figures were offered to show how much of that was for depreciation alone.

But if all the $107,847 had been for depreciation, real estate authorities said, it would have been far too low by the accepted standards of real estate management.

CHA officials said they had no records showing how much of the $16,000,000 cost of the projects went into the buildings.

Sees Need for $240,000 Reserve.

Mark Levy, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, said, however, that $12,000,000 would be a fair estimate of the buildings' cost in the three projects: the Jane Addams houses, the Julia Lathrop homes, and the Trumbull Park homes.

Mr. Levy, an advocate of public service building corporation housing, said that on that basis $240,000 a year should be set aside annually for depreciation.

This figure, he said, was based upon a generous estimate of 50 years for the life of the buildings. And it is his opinion that they will become obsolescent in a shorter time because they are of plainer and less attractive architecture than those built by private enterprise.

The report on the operation of the projects was made by Miss Elizabeth Wood, secretary of the CHA, which rents the housing groups from the United States Housing authority.

Rentals Total $585,380.

Quoting from the records of the CHA treasurer, Edgar L. Schnadig, she gave the total rentals from the time of the opening to Dec. 31 as $585,380. Total expenses for the period, including current operating expenses, were $486,215.

Among the expenses listed was the $39,371 service charge, intended as a gesture toward paying for fire and police protection, schools, garbage removal, and all other civic services.

Ignoring the $454,624 in taxes which private property owners are forced to pay for the government, the bookkeepers arrived at the $99,165 "net gain." This sum, it was explained, will be used as a reserve for "replacements, repairs, and redecoration."

Rent Row Delays Occupancy.

The first apartments were ready for occupancy in September of 1937. But government officials spent so much time bickering over the amount they should charge for rent that it was not until the following January 25 that tenants began moving in. Rates range from $20 to $22.50 for two room apartments up to $28.50 to $33.50 for the largest apartments of five rooms.

By May 2 all but 170 apartments were occupied. The last were occupied in June.

Sherman Aldrich, general housing manager, reported that the total loss caused by vacancy in the 2,414 residential units was $172.50. Uncollectable rents totaled $776.

The CHA lease from the government expires next September, when, Miss Wood said, a long time lease or a purchase plan will be arranged.

SAM HAS HOT TIME ON BIRTHDAY SPREE; GETS 15 DAYS IN JAIL

Samuel H. Kahen of 1426 Madison street is a junior clerk in a WPA project at the county assessor's office. Last Wednesday was his 35th birthday so he went to the Palmer House to celebrate in bang-up fashion. He wined and dined in his $5 room.

Life was enjoyable until next morning when the hotel presented a $23 bill. He could not pay. Police took him to the detective bureau where he set fire to some papers in the bull pen outside the bureau of identification room. He was moved to a cell. A few minutes later police found him burning his underwear.

In Felony court yesterday Kahen had this explanation. "I was cold," he said. Judge Matthew D. Hartigan decided 15 days in the Bridewell on a charge of arson might help keep him warm. At the end of this sentence Kahen will face trial for defrauding the hotel.

MR. HOPKINS AND THE RAILROADS.

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins of late has been addressing business men, telling them that this administration is their devoted ally. Everything, he says, is going to be done to hasten economic recovery. Rehabilitation of the railroads, he believes, is one of the first problems to be attacked. He hasn't confided, as yet, what is to be done, but he has described the spirit in which the job is to be undertaken. "We have all dedicated ourselves" he said, "to the maintenance—the successful maintenance—of our American system of free enterprise."

This is good news if it is true, but unfortunately there has been little evidence from Washington that confirms Mr. Hopkins' prospectus. The New Dealers' breast pockets are bulging with bills having to do with transportation. Mr. Hopkins must have forgotten to tell his fellow New Dealers of his devotion to "our American system of free enterprise" because they have been busy forging new and stouter chains.

As if present forms of railroad regulation had not worked enough harm, the New Dealers are now proposing superregulation by something to be called the Transportation board. This agency is supposed to coördinate all the various forms of transportation regulation now existent. Lest the interstate commerce commission prove recalcitrant, the new board is given the power to supersede the commission. To make it quite certain that the job will be done badly, it is provided that the chairman of the board 'shall not be nor have been affiliated or associated directly with any type of transportation or with any person or company engaged therein." He must know so little about transportation that nobody in the transportation business has regarded him as worth hiring. Thus qualified by ignorance and incompetence, he is to be given supreme command of the key industry in the nation's economy.

Mr. Bland, who introduced that bill, is chairman of the important house committee on merchant marine and fisheries. Maybe Mr. Hopkins' devotion to traditional American ideas is so intense these days that as an administrative official he feels it would be improper to communicate with a member of the legislative branch.

But that explanation will not cover the recent meddling of the TVA in transportation matters, because the TVA is under the administration's control. The TVA has been finding out of late that even with subsidized power as an attraction industry is not being lured into the Tennessee valley rapidly enough to put the scheme across. Accordingly TVA has demanded that the railroads also contribute a subsidy. As the interstate commerce commission could not be trusted to give a wholly favorable decision on the merits of the proposal, congress has been asked to reduce the rates by statute. Even the most ardent believers in rate making from Washington are agreed in condemning rate regulation by congressional fiat.

The example of the TVA has inspired a flood of bills from all sections of the south. These bills would require the interstate commerce commission to slash railroad charges in the south in disregard of all logical considerations in rate making. Little attempt has been made to disguise the obvious fact that these bills are intended to promote regional interests regardless of the destruction of railroad values which may result.

Maybe the Democratic congressmen and the TVA don't put much stock in Mr. Hopkins' declarations, and if they don't the reason is not difficult to find. About the time Mr. Hopkins was making his speeches Mr. Roosevelt was appointing Thomas R. Amlie to the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Amlie is a self-confessed collectivist and a firm believer in government ownership. Evidently Mr. Roosevelt was not consulted by Mr. Hopkins in the preparation of his declaration of the administration's policy toward business.

THE ELITE DODGE THE PICKETS.

The domestic life of the New Deal has been clandestine of late. The picket lines of the hotel service strike in Washington have tested the integrity of illustrious social planners in high governmental place and many of them have surreptitiously sacrificed their ideas to their creature comforts. They have thrown themselves, as much on the q t as possible, in with what the planned society knows as finks, the persons who took the places of the striking hotel employés.

If the New Dealers had proved to be of sterner stuff they would have sat on the curb and have spent the nights under a striker's placard rather than sneak through the picket line when backs were turned or, as our own Mr. Sabath, dodge in and out of the hotel drug store to get a cigar and snatch a night's rest and a few meals on the side.

The better people and the truly good couldn't take it when the pickets were thrown about their accustomed places. They didn't like to be called finks but that could be avoided by taking to the coal holes, the fire escapes, and the freight elevators. The New Deal has principles for other people and fleshpots for itself.

EVERYTHING SHORT OF WAR.

Persons in or out of the government who advocate giving every aid "short of war" to Great Britain and France ought to know that they are talking deadly nonsense. Aid to a belligerent is war. If the United States makes common cause with two European powers in a colonial conflict with other powers it must accept all the consequences. A victory for the side it chooses becomes imperative. It cannot stop short of using all possible means to avoid defeat.

It may be emotionally gratifying to some people to think of a painless participation in an African crusade, contributing materials without men, but once that road has been taken it must be followed to the end. The United States went all over this thing in the world war and started with just such expressions as are now being heard. If we are to guarantee the integrity of the British and French empires it will mean conscripts in uniform. They will be demanded and again they will be furnished.

There was such talk in 1916 and '17. The result was that the people who so talked found themselves desk jobs while 4 million of their fellow citizens who had kept their mouths shut put on uniforms, and 2 million of them went to France to make Europe safe for the democracy it has today. A nation goes to war when it takes sides. Americans who think that they can do everything except furnish armed men are indulging their emotions in a dream which may be pleasing to them but will be a nightmare to the persons who will have to do the unpleasant work such sentiments will make necessary.

YES, THERE SHOULD BE NO GAMBLING.

Gambling in one form or another is an almost universal personal habit which hasn't the general sanction of the people as an aggregate. Individually they will do what they collectively do not countenance. Their private practices and their public theories do not agree. They won't sanction what they will do. Consequently there are statutes which express the public policy but not individual opinion.

A large body of law rises in these curious conditions, in which what is regarded as a sound policy is rejected by most of the people as inapplicable to them when they want to do otherwise. In such a contradiction law enforcement has its oddities. When gambling has at one and the same time both popular support and popular disapproval, it can be made to pay political subsidies to get public patronage. Slot machines are regarded as gambling devices, although they are not constructed for a game of chance. If chance were an element there wouldn't be any slot machines.

The player of a machine isn't gambling. He is merely poking his money into a sucker trap which is intended to pay the joint keeper's rent, the syndicate's rakeoff, the manufacturer's profits, and the politician's percentage, if any. If the machine paid the player it wouldn't be there. Just the same, the pleasure of feeding nickels, dimes, and quarters into it is exciting, regardless of losses, and people who know that the only way to beat it is to leave it alone will give it all their spare change and then get a five dollar bill broken to keep on.

The law has been busting and confiscating slot machines ever since they were put on the market and with a repetitious regularity keeps at this sort of thing just as if it were a fresh experiment and were preventing persons who ought to be saving their money or using it for their own rent from paying the joint keeper's rent. The whole trouble with the enforcement of laws against gambling was stated in the beginning. The general habits of the people are not in accord with their composite ideas.

CENSOR McNINCH.

[New York Daily News.]

The Federal Communications commission has renewed its drive for power to censor the radio, in contravention of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech. That is what its adoption of a recent report gotten up by two of its members amounts to, though Chairman Frank McNinch says the FCC has no desire to censor radio programs.

This report listed fourteen types of programs which it said might form the basis of punitive FCC action against broadcasting stations. This punitive action can consist in revoking a station's license, the FCC having power to revoke or renew licenses every six months.

The fourteen types of dangerous programs, as listed by Variety, are:

"[1] Fortune telling in any form. [2] Astrology or other fake sciences. [3] Solicitation of funds. [4] False, fraudulent, or misleading advertising. [5] Defamatory statements. [6] Failure to allow equal opportunity to discuss all sides of controversial issues. [7] Programs bordering upon the obscene. [8] Programs offending religious or racial groups. [9] Taking sides [as broadcasters] on political, religious, or racial matters. [10] Cliff-hanger kid shows [horror programs]. [11] Booze glorification. [12] Interrupting concerts or music to insert advertising announcements. [13] Too much advertising in general. [14] Too many phonograph records."

The FCC is to decide when any program comes under any of these heads. There are seven members of the FCC, which we call Censor McNinch and his six dwarfs. Well, make it five dwarfs. One of the commissioners—T. A. M. Craven—has the courage to protest this grab for FCC censorship power, to the grave annoyance of Mr. McNinch.

The FCC is one thing which cannot be blamed on the New Deal. It was set up in Hoover's time; and to a certain limited extent it is necessary. It is needed to allocate wave lengths and kilowattages to the different stations to keep too many stations from cluttering up one wave length or jamming one another off the air.

But that is all it is needed for. And its current attempts to establish itself as a board of censorship of everything that goes on the air should be stepped on, and stepped on hard, by both parties in congress.

We think, for one thing, that the six month license period is too short. This keeps the broadcasters on tenterhooks, unable to build for the future. The period should be at least three years; or better, stations should be granted permanent franchises revocable only after appropriate government lawsuits regularly fought through the courts.

ODD LITTLE STREETS.

The quaintest street in Chicago? Well, without claiming to have seen all the highways and byways in town, we will vote for Alta Vista terrace. We walk down it occasionally, coming away from Wrigley field, and feel as if we were in a scene from "David Copperfield." It suggests Victorian England of the lower middle class. It's only a block long, and narrow; and its neat little houses, standing shoulder to shoulder, are all of the same design with minor variations of façade. Quite old worldish, without affectation. It runs from Grace to Byron street, at 1047 west.

When the second Fort Dearborn was built in 1816 the soldiers found the pine trees that were needed for palisades four miles to the north, and floated the logs down the lake shore to the mouth of the river. What of it? Well, four miles north of the old site of the fort, right now, you will find Pine Grove avenue. Just an echo of history in a street name.

Bickerdike square sounds like a London address in a murder mystery tale, doesn't it? Well, it's in Chicago, between Ohio street and Grand avenue, a block east of Ashland. We never saw it, but must take a look some day. Maybe they've got something there.

* * *

Squares are fairly scarce in this metropolis, but we have had some beauties, now much deteriorated. Aldine square [Vincennes avenue at 38th street] was the best, and in its heyday could be compared with any of London's, which it imitated. No doubt the federal housing project in that region has destroyed all traces of the Aldine period.

SPRING'S SECRET FLOWER.

A day like this you would have said to me,
"Please lay aside your book; put on your wraps
And come. There's something I want you to see."
Oh, it was fun to follow you! Perhaps
We'd climb a mossy ledge or seek the wood;
Then kneeling down you'd brush brown leaves apart
To show me where the pink arbutus stood
Holding a pearl within each petaled heart.

In that Eternal Land when you have shown
Me all the City's wonder: avenues
Of gold along the sea, a gleaming throne,
The white-winged angels, saints with golden shoes,
Then down a little road I hope we'll go
To find where Heaven's pink arbutus grow.

A Mansion on the Main Stem.

Probably several dozen have beaten me to it, but the house on the northwest corner of Diversey and Sheridan road [3-9-'39] never was the Lehmann mansion, which stood in spacious grounds on Clark street opposite the "car barns." The house on the corner was the home of Rudolph Schloesser, a well-to-do German private banker. The architect was my cousin, E. H. Frommann, still living. Carl B. Roden.

The other sharpshooters on this range have placed the vanished Lehmann mansion on the present site of the Elks Memorial. "After the Schloessers moved out," writes R. E. Maginnis, "this house was occupied by Thomsen von Colditz," . . . "A Looper" recalls from his boyhood a tale about this house with an absconding banker as its central figure.

A Thousand Years of Coupon Clipping.

If C. O. R. thinks that the West Shore railroad bonds, running 475 years, represent a world's record in the prophetic vision of financiers [3-9-'39], he would do well to take a look at the first mortgage 4s of the Toronto, Grey, and Bruce railway. One might call them millennial bonds, because they are noncallable for 999 years. Dated Jan. 1, 1884; due Jan. 1, 2883. La Salle Street Larry.

A BOY LOOKS AT A SHREW.

Jimmie's mom is always cross.
We're 'bout the same years old,
And I am just as bad as Jim
But my mom doesn't scold.

When Jim's mom gives him chores to do
She never asks him "please"
And scolds him right 'fore other boys
'Bout wearin' out his knees.

I s'pose that havin' boys around
Is pretty bad, but heck—
Mom's always lived with dad and me
And she's not cross a speck.

The neighbors say that Jimmie's mom
Ain't educated much,
But dad says kindness doesn't come
From reading books and such.

I think and think about it lots
And get most awful blue,
But boys can't go to grown-up folks
And tell them what to do.

I reckon I'll just have to pray—
And wouldn't it be fine
If God would really listen and

A Chicago Prophecy Written in 1876.

If, in the year 1911, the belated traveler who has just missed the air-boat at Sitka, shall curiously look over the volumes in the Alaska State library, warmly bound in sealskin, he may chance to alight upon this modest pamphlet. He will be a Chicago man and will have left behind him, a week before, a proud and opulent city of two million inhabitants; a city built of noninflammable materials, partly within and partly without the forty miles of boulevard which the foresight of the present has wisely and liberally provided for the use of the future. Will it be too much to ask of him to telegraph a sprightly review of these then forgotten pages to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, by the new process? My heirs will cheerfully pay the expense. Joseph N. Balestier.

[This paragraph was written by Balestier for the second edition of his "Annals of Chicago," originally published in 1840 and reprinted in 1876. He was then living in Brattleboro, Vt. His granddaughter married Rudyard Kipling. Data supplied by Carl B. Roden of the Chicago Public library.]

WHERE HAS DIPHTHERIA GONE?

No single triumph of modern medicine has been attended with more spectacular results than the conquest of diphtheria. Not many years ago if a reputable physician had announced that this disease could be banished through establishing immunity by means of minute injections of toxin he would have been regarded as "touched in the head." Nevertheless this has come about. The public press no longer carries the announcement that an outbreak of this dreadful scourge has necessitated the closing of schools.

The opening scene of this drama was staged in a Berlin hospital nearly fifty years ago, where on a memorable day in 1890 a little girl's life was ebbing away, her body poisoned by diphtheria. There was no medicine, no plan of treatment that the learned faculty could suggest. Von Behring, who had devised an antitoxin by immunizing horses, had tested his new serum on animals. Although favorable reactions followed, it had never been given to a human being. Learning of this patient he offered his services and the new remedy—if the parents would permit its use. He explained that it was the only antidote that carried the slightest hope.

The transformation was as startling as it was successful. The temperature dropped, the child regained consciousness, the struggle for air ceased, and recovery was complete and uneventful. The laboratory had again triumphed over a fatal epidemic illness. Soon antitoxin was utilized throughout the civilized world and the death rate was cut to approximately one-third its former level.

Early diagnosis, larger doses of this agent, and its more prompt administration still further mitigated the ravages of the infection. It is safe to say that hundreds of thousands of grown men and women are alive today because of the beneficent rôle of this discovery.

Then came another forward step when it was found that animals injected with a combination of toxin and antitoxin would develop in the blood large quantities of a neutralizing chemical, which would be retained for some time. After submitting to this process, subsequent exposure to the germs was attended with no danger whatsoever. Learning of these experiments, Von Behring himself tried it on humans and they, too, exhibited immunity. This was the so-called toxin antitoxin mixture, which has now been replaced by a similar preparation called toxoid.

A very minute amount of this latter material [alum precipitated] will protect almost any one. Whether safety has been attained or not can be determined by applying a simple skin test devised by Schick. Boards of health, school authorities, and physicians generally have coöperated in recommending universal adoption of this procedure which is even simpler than vaccination against smallpox.

If diphtheria exists today it is due wholly to gross ignorance. It is so much easier to guard the child against the malady than it is to cure him once he has become ill. Unfortunately now and then we will encounter parents who say they do not believe in vaccination or immunization. No one can quarrel if they apply this only to themselves, but to fail to take precautions with trusting little ones is to assume a greater responsibility than most of us are prepared to shoulder. Due to the widespread use of toxoid great cities with millions of population are now practically free from the disease. At this time of the year, particularly, we should make certain that every youngster is fully armed against those infections which can take life so quickly and some of which may be attended with disastrous after effects.

Should the affliction come, however, a culture of the throat will prove its presence—whereupon prompt administration of the antidote is demanded. This may be introduced directly into the circulation or deep within the muscles.

Irrigation of the throat is helpful and a solution containing a teaspoonful of salt and one of baking soda to a quart of hot water will aid in relieving pain. Do not permit these little sufferers to sit up. Keep them flat in bed and allow for a prolonged period of convalescence. Those caring for the patient should be armed against the disorder.

ENLARGEMENT OF COLON.

O. T. writes: What causes an enlargement of the colon in the neighborhood of the sigmoid curve? I believe this is known as Hirschsprung's disease. Will diet help? Is an operation necessary?

REPLY.

This is probably a congenital defect, although it may be acquired. In some cases a partial obstruction lower down in the colon is responsible for the stretching. Symptoms are constipation, some abdominal distress, and malnutrition. Operation is usually advised in children if the deformity is extensive. Adults in reasonably good health should be spared surgery. Nongas forming foods should be used, and heat and massage are helpful.

FAINTS AFTER EATING.

Mrs. G. writes: What causes a person—presumably in good health—to faint after eating a sizable meal? This has happened to my husband twice. On each occasion we were in a well known, high class restaurant.

REPLY.

Probably the size of the check. Fainting is due to an insufficient supply of blood to the brain and is usually a temporary episode. Psychic effects should be considered. If the attacks continue, a careful physical examination is in order.

X-RAY ADVISED.

C. S. P. writes: What can be done for a jawbone that is considerably damaged by absorption of pus from dead crowned teeth? The condition must have been present for some time although there was no pain.

REPLY.

An X-ray is suggested to determine the extent of the damage. If foul, necrotic areas remain they will need to be removed. Building general health is about all that will be needed.

NO.

V. R. writes: Is it possible for diphtheria germs to remain alive in the body for nine years?

REPLY.

No. Even in Methuselah's time, germs would not live that long. In some instances the organisms may remain alive within the throat for as long as a year. These persons are known as carriers. While not susceptible themselves, they can spread the disease to others.

HORSE POWER TAXES.

Chicago, March 4.—If the political party in power does not soon lower the state registration fee for automobiles it will be leaving good campaign ammunition for the opposition to use in the next election.

I can think of no more foolish method of taxing than that based upon the antiquated S. A. E. horse power formula, which takes into consideration only the total number and size of bores of the motor. This formula is based on an assumed piston speed, which speed is now about twenty-five years out of date. Why should a "square" motor pay more than a long stroke motor when the weight, displacement, horse power, gas consumption, and all else may be the same? The only reason lies in social inertia which makes us slow to bring about changes, which causes our state to be known as the state with laws forty years behind the others.

Don't let any one kid you. It is the weight of the vehicle and not the bore of the motor that wears out the pavement. Furthermore, engineers tell us it is the single bump of the extremely heavy vehicle that cracks the pavement rather than the repeated bumps of the light vehicles.

Consequently, our tax should be on a weight basis or, better still, on gasoline only. That penalizes the constant users, the heavy and expensive vehicles, and the poorly conditioned vehicles. And besides it is relatively painless.

The state says it needs all of the motor taxes it now receives. All right, slash the registration fee on pleasure cars to a nominal flat sum and raise the gas tax if necessary. But I don't think it will be necessary, because, as THE TRIBUNE has pointed out, the state is now wasting much of the $57,636,000 it received in 1938 by trying to lay concrete on every side road. W. GILBERT.

FOR STUDENTS OF HISTORY.

Des Plaines, Ill., March 9.—Philip Kinsley's historical articles are splendid. We wish they might all be put in pamphlet form for the use of our classes. Pupils are eager to read and report on them. These articles are all fascinating, interesting facts which should become a part of every American's education.

Mr. Kinsley is a careful reporter and we don't have to wonder about the value of his statements.

A GREAT ADDRESS.

San José, Ill., March 7.—In my judgment the recent 150th anniversary speech of Chief Justice Hughes ranks as one of the really great addresses of our day. Such words as "We are not here as masters but as servants," and also "The wise use of power," "wisdom and restraint," strike a responsive chord in the heart of every true American. I believe the "good sense of the American people" is beginning to manifest itself once more. PAUL R. NESTLER.

DELICATE SUBJECT.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Why is it necessary to have one's date of birth on the driver's license registration card? I think it is both unnecessary and very objectionable to most persons of an age which they would rather not have made public. In my opinion either of the bills before the legislature to remove the requirements for listing the date of birth should be passed. A READER.

SONS OF LIBERTY.

Chicago, March 6.—The President, in his address to the joint session of congress commemorating the 150th anniversary of the 1st congress, rightly gives thanks that we have not reverted to those systems of concentrated self-perpetuating power against which the representative democratic system was successfully launched several centuries ago. He also decries the taking of private property without due compensation, and unwarantable searches and seizures, lack of freedom of speech, press, and religion, and asks if we should assume the attitude of the Levite who pulled his skirts together and passed by on the other side, thereby lending encouragement to those who today persecute religion or deny it, answering his own interrogation with an emphatic no!

How can the President reconcile these sentiments with his warm message of congratulations to the Russian government, which was founded on the taking of private property without due compensation, unwarantable searches and seizures, suppression of freedom of speech and the press, and glorified the idea that all religion is merely dope for the people?

It would seem that the President went the Levite one better; instead of passing by on the other side, he actually crossed the street and patted the culprit on the back. EDWARD A. JOERS.

A FAR-FLUNG FAMILY.

Chicago, March 9.—I thought so well of yesterday's TRIBUNE, especially the writeup on the front page, that I purchased three. They will be widely distributed. One goes to my cousin, Percy G. Charles, Kitchikan, Alaska. The second to my brother, Harry Charles, London, England. The third—well, I have an aunt at Shanghai, China, and a sister at Durban, South Africa. They both should see our Chicago product, made up and produced in my neighborhood; so I'll have to buy another. How's that for distribution? FRED J. CHARLES.

AFTER SIX YEARS.

Gary, Ind., March 7.—After reading "After Six Years" in Voice of the People tonight, I could hardly wait for paper and pen to put down my feelings.

My only regret is that we, the people who love and honor President Roosevelt, and respect his honest and earnest effort to heal the ills of our country, cannot give him the encouragement he must always sorely need.

There is no other American who could have taken Roosevelt's place when he became President and within a few weeks dispelled the hopeless fear and panic which gripped our country.

I think it is a pity that our Presidents enter the White House with hope and eagerness, with only their country's best interests at heart, and have to bear the criticism of people who, if placed in that position, would flounder hopelessly about, having no idea what to do.

Let us, then, whether Democrat or Republican, also be real Americans and recognize genius coupled with rare sympathy and humane understanding and love of country which our President now possesses. MRS. MAURICE JOLY.

AGE VS. YOUTH.

Chicago, March 6.—It would be interesting to know the age of the editor who wrote "Age in Command" in your issue of March 6.

What did Napoleon, Alexander, Condé, or Hannibal do for civilization?

Youth is all right in its place, but allow it to get out of place and civilization stands still or will retrograde; we are witnessing this very situation in Europe today.

No! The progress of the world depends on age in command. N. H.

DOG POUNDS.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Ottawa, Ill., March 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am administrator of an estate, and wish the following information. Mr. A, a bachelor, died leaving an estate of medium size. He had a niece who is also dead, but her husband is living; also, the niece left several children.

1. The husband of the niece states that she left a will in which he was to have her share of any estate that might otherwise go to her. Is he, in this case, if there was such a will, entitled to the money, or does it go to the niece's children?

2. If the husband married again would the children by the second marriage be entitled to anything?

3. If there was such a will as above referred to would he have to produce a copy of the same before he could expect payment?

4. Mr. A had a number of brothers and sisters living in Germany. No one seems to know anything about two of them and after diligent search of his belongings and inquiry among living relatives I fail to get any information. Would I, as administrator, be responsible if, after the estate is settled, some heir should turn up? J. C.

1. If the niece died before the bachelor, then it seems probable that his will is so worded that the gift to her would lapse. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing the wording of the will and the order in which the parties died.

2. See 1.

3. In general the party in custody of the will is required to file it in the office of the clerk of the Probate court.

4. In general the wording of the will controls unless the will can be set aside on proof of undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, March 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My aunt recently purchased a piece of property, and the trustee who held title as trustee gave her only a quit claim deed.

1. Why did he not give her a waranty deed?

2. If she sells she will have to give a waranty deed. M. S.

1. Presumably because he saw no reason for personally backing up a transaction in which he was functioning only as trustee.

2. This will depend on whether the purchaser is satisfied, as was also true in the previous transaction.

CAPTURE ARMED BOY TERRORIST OF ST. CHARLES

Fugitive Loots Home and Kidnaps Couple.

farm home of Roy J. Chrystal, three miles west of the city of St. Charles. The family was away at the time, and Hale took a gun, money and clothes. Then he walked into the city. He looted two stores. The fugitive spent Sunday hiding near Elburn. After dark he made his way to Geneva.

Holds Up Couple in Geneva.

His next appearance spelled terror for Miss Elsie Mullins, of Aurora, and Roy Eberly, a former police chief of Hinckley, in De Kalb county. Eberly is now an oil salesman and a special policeman. He once played baseball in the minor leagues and was owned for a time by the Boston Red Sox.

Miss Mullins and Eberly had been to a movie in Geneva, and had parked their car in a nearby lot. As they got into the car they heard a voice saying, "This is a stickup." They looked around and saw a young man with a gun who, in Miss Mullins' words, "looked as tough as any gangster in the movies." The holdup man was young Hale.

Eberly started to resist, but Miss Mullins restrained him. At the time, she said, she felt resistance might mean death.

"The robber," related Miss Mullins, "jumped into the back seat of our car, and ordered us to drive on. First he said he wanted to go to Chicago. Then he said he wanted to go to Rockford where he lived. He growled and barked out his commands. I never guessed then he was only 16 years old.

Keeps Gun at Neck.

"I don't know what might have happened if Mr. Eberly finally hadn't talked him out of whatever intentions he had. Mr. Eberly told the robber he had sickness at home, and that if he had to drive all the way to Rockford, he would be delayed and the delay might be fatal at home. All the time the robber kept the gun at Mr. Eberly's neck. He finally left us at Elgin."

Miss Mullins and Eberly promptly notified the Elgin police. They gave a detailed description, and said they though the gunman was a desperado or a maniac. Marshal Huber ordered all squads to search for the man. It was early Monday morning. Not long afterward Sergt. Charles Struckman and a squad found Hale walking down a dark road. He surrendered without resistance and handed over his stolen revolver. It was empty.

Young Hale quickly revealed himself as a St. Charles fugitive. He was taken to the Kane county seat at Geneva and questioned by Assistant State's Attorney W. Ben Morgan. He confessed breaking into the Chrystal farmhouse, the two St. Charles stores, and the holdup of Miss Mullins and Eberly.

Burglary Warant Signed.

Chrystal signed a burglary warant against Hale last night. Eberly and Miss Mullins also are expected to sign complaints. It is planned to prosecute Hale for the house breaking and the store lootings, and, if possible, to send him to a stricter institution than St. Charles.

Capt. William T. Harmon, managing director of the school, admitted last night that local police had not been notified of Hale's escape.

"It's true we didn't report the escape of Hale to police or the sheriff," said Capt. Harmon. "That is not our policy. St. Charles is not a penal institution. It has neither walls nor cells. The boys live in cottages and do farm work. Prior to his escape Hale's conduct had been very good. He had never given signs of running away. We didn't miss him until Saturday night, and it was our intention to go to his home in Rockford Sunday and look for him there."

Twenty Lashes Discontinued.

Ten or eleven years ago boys who escaped were punished with twenty lashes from a strap. This corporal punishment was discontinued after a year's trial. Since then there have been at least twenty-five escapes a year. This figure is that of school officials. Mayor Langum of St. Charles and Marshal Huber of Elgin double that figure.

In any event, conditions have grown so serious, that a legislative committee will investigate. Senator Thomas P. Gunning of Princeton heads the committee.

It has been charged that boy criminals are dumped with young dependants who are not criminally minded, but who are influenced by their corrupt companions. According to Mayor Langum the school maintained its policy of silence even to covering up the reported shooting of one of two boys who escaped last week. The boy, he said, was shot when recaptured by a school guard.

Gets 30 Days in Bridewell for Police Operative Fraud

Harvey Cook, 3142 Broadway, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court to thirty days in the Bridewell for trying to run his own city police force. Cook accepted money from Herman Grau, 3138 Clark street, for purportedly obtaining for Grau a job as special operative of the police department. Cook said yesterday he thought it would be an easy way to make money. He was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

BETWEEN MEAL LULL PROBLEM OF RESTAURANTS

Because the public insists on being fed three times a day, restaurant operating companies have had difficulty in adjusting themselves to new wage and hour legislation. The lull between meals is what causes the trouble.

Something of their difficulty was indicated yesterday by Ray C. Jones, new president of B-G Foods, Inc., in addressing stockholders at their annual meeting.

"Wage and hour legislation has been something of a burden," he said. "If the hours of work included just the hours of actual activity the problem would be different. But we have to serve people when they are ready to eat. The lull between meals makes the restaurant business vastly different from a factory."

B-G Foods, he said, is subject to wage and hour laws of nine states in which the company operates. In contrast with taxes totaling $144,000, the company's net profits in 1938 totaled $85,372.

SONSTEBY SAYS CITY'S CRIME AT NEW LOW MARK

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court told members of the Illinois Vigilance association last night that Chicago today has less vice and crime than ever before in its history. He spoke at the association's annual dinner at 19 South La Salle street. About 150 persons attended, among them eleven police captains.

The chief justice's praise of present conditions was given in answer to remarks by the Rev. Philip Yarrow, executive secretary of the association, who charged that crime and politics are allied, and that conditions in the 1st ward were worse than in any other area in the country.

"The black picture painted by Dr. Yarrow doesn't really exist," said Chief Justice Sonsteby. "Maybe he's too close to the conditions he's investigating. Today there is less vice and crime in Chicago than ever. The police have done a good job in cleaning up."

TRIES TO BLIND HIMSELF WITH A POCKET KNIFE

Earl Knight, 50 years old, was taken to the County hospital yesterday for an emergency operation on both eyes. He had attempted to gouge them out with a pocket knife in his hotel room at 120 West Madison street. Physicians said his sight probably would be saved.

At the hospital, where Knight was said to be a mental case, he refused to explain his action. Police found a note saying: "Everything I possess goes to Mary Juszko, 721 North Racine avenue. My folks in the old country are well-to-do. She, however, is honest and poor." It was signed "Earl Knight, formerly Paul V. Smiarski."

Miss Juszko told police she had been a friend of Knight for five years.

4 SLOT MACHINE BANDITS ARE SENT TO PRISON FARM

Four slot machine bandits were sentenced yesterday in the Lake county court at Waukegan to the state prison farm at Vandalia. James Lamczyk, Edward Valentine, and Edward Thomas got six months each. George Lamczyk was sentenced to eight months, and a third Lamczyk brother, Frank, 16 years old, was turned over to juvenile authorities. The gang was captured Thursday through the Lake county police radio dragnet. They confessed looting slot machines in eight taverns in Cook county. The four sentenced yesterday pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of a revolver.

MURPHY ORDERS SHAKEUP IN U. S. ATTORNEY CORPS

Wants Employes Placed on Merit Footing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Shakeups in United States attorney offices are expected as a result of general orders from Attorney General Frank Murphy to divorce justice department employés from politics and to place them on a merit basis.

William J. Campbell, U. S. attorney at Chicago.

No specific instructions have been issued, but statements made by Murphy have resulted in reorganiztion plans by the various attorneys and aids throughout the country.

Broad phases of the program will be taken up when United States attorneys gather here in April for a study of parole systems. This subject is being considered by a special committee, appointed by the President and including Supreme Court Justices Reed and Frankfurter, seeking a plan of putting professional employés of the government under civil service.

CAMPBELL PLANS CHANGES.

William J. Campbell, district attorney in the Chicago district, said yesterday that six or eight assistants probably will be asked to resign from his staf by the end of the week. He has organized a commtitee of the presidents of the Chicago and Illinois Bar associations and several law school deans to guide him in filling the vacancies.

The committee, he said, will recommend possible candidates for staf positions and also pass on appointments made by him. Campbell said he plans to confer tomorrow in Washington, D. C., with Attorney General Frank Murphy on his orders to put assistant district attorneys and other employés on a merit basis.

BREAKS AT TRIAL FOR SLAYING OF AMERICAN GIRL

VERSAILLES, France, March 13.—(AP)—The calm of Eugene Weidmann, who is on trial charged with murder for profit, broke for the first time today as he confessed before a jury that he killed the 22 year old American dancer, Jean de Koven, of Brooklyn.

"I am not in a state to explain," Weidmann, a former German convict, replied to appeals for an explanation of his action. "I can only confess."

An account was read to the court of how he met Miss de Koven on July 21, 1937, in a Paris hotel, took her to his villa "La Voulzie" in the isolated suburb Celle-Saint Cloud two days later, strangled her to death, and finally took her money. Weidmann already had confessed to police that he murdered four other persons for similar motives.

32 Merchants Face Arrest in $32,000 Sales Tax Quiz

Warants were issued yesterday by Municipal Judge Francis Borelli for thirty-two Chicago merchants accused of having refused to pay sales taxes owed the state. Robert M. Stowers, assistant director of the state department of finance, said they owed more than $32,000.

ARRAIGN RAPIST TODAY IN HOLDUP OF A HOUSEWIFE

Vernon Royals, ex-convict and rapist, will be arraigned today in the Felony court on a charge of robbery. He was arrested Saturday, two days after he had held up Mrs. Gladys Marinier in her home at 2942 Chase avenue and obtained $25 in currency, a watch, and a revolver. He was released from prison last July after serving five years for rape and two years of a murder sentence which was later reversed. He is 24 years old and lives at 4410 North Mozart street.

FORMER POLICE CAPTAIN FAVORS PAROLE REFORM

Attorney Murphy Assails Trend Under Board.

Support of the parole reform measure now pending in the legislature was urged yesterday by Attorney Daniel F. Murphy. In giving his views, Attorney Murphy spoke from the viewpoint of a man who served twenty years on the Chicago police department, resigning with the rank of captain, and as the father of ten children. Capt. Murphy's last police command was the Chicago avenue district in 1927.

Attorney Murphy is one of the members of the Chicago Bar association's committee on criminal jurisprudence.

Votes with Bar Group Majority.

As such he voted with the majority in a 6 to 3 ballot last Saturday to recommend passage of the Ward-Schnackenberg bill under which trial judges would be given power to fix minimum and maximum sentences for convicts.

"I voted to support the Ward-Schnackenberg law because I believe judges will do a far better job than the parole board members are doing," the attorney explained. "As a policeman I never had any sympathy for a holdup man. As a lawyer I have no different feelings.

Pleads for First Offenders.

"But I think any judge who is alive—and most of our judges are alive—will try to save a first offender and give him a short minimum and maximum sentence. In that way they will save the first offender from being overlooked by the parole board.

"There has been a growing tendency on the part of parole board members to feel they are free from obligation to the general public. That is, they seem to feel they are an extra-legal body. According to information made available to us, the board has shown a tendency to keep some young offenders in prison too long and to admit hardened criminals to parole more readily than first offenders."

FORMER COAL MINER IS DEAD.

Coal Valley, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Aaron Victor Dahlberg, 89 years old, coal miner in this part of the state many years, died last night. A native of Sweden, he came to America at age 21, and lived in the vicinity of Andover and Cable, Ill.

RECOUNT IN 39TH WARD'S COUNCIL RACE IS REFUSED

A petition for a recount of the votes cast in the 39th ward in the Feb. 28 aldermanic election was denied yesterday by Judge Albert E. Isley of Newton sitting in the County court. Official election board returns show that Ald. H. L. Brody won reëlection by polling 12,756 out of a total vote of 25,105.

Alex Koehn, one of the candidates who was defeated on the face of the official returns, filed the petition for a recount, alleging fraud in several precincts. The recount, he asserted, would show that the votes for Ald. Brody were not a majority of all the votes cast.

Judge Isley heard testimony of elght witnesses, but ordered the petition dismissed on the ground that there was no evidence of fraud. There is no appeal from the County court in cases of this kind.

TAXES ON EACH AUTO IN ILLINOIS AVERAGE $31.29

Breakdown Shows Where Road Money Goes.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Motorists in Illinois paid 57 million dollars in state license fees and the state gasoline tax last year. With the general assembly considering several bills for a reduction of the license fees, a question has been raised—what becomes of all this money?

The state highway department is opposing any of the proposed tax cuts. Its records show that the annual cost of the road system has grown until it now exceeds the revenues.

The latest accessible record of where the motorist's dollar is spent is for the year 1936. This is the latest year for which the state department has published an annual report. This record is a fairly reliable guide to today's expenditures because there has been little change in the last two years in the proportions of the revenue assigned to the main cost items.

Finance Is Complicated.

In this sample year, license fees were $18,449,527 and gas tax collections were $33,492,465 for a sum of $51,941,992. This was an average of $31.29 for each of the 1,659,750 registered vehicles.

An analysis by the Chicago Motor club today found that for each $1 of these state taxes only 37.1 cents was spent or assigned for expenditure in street and highway construction. This 37.1 cents amounted to $19,259,400.

Of the 37.1 cents of the motorist's tax dollar that went for construction the state got 17.6 cents [$9,137,500], the counties received 7.4 cents [$3,799,400], and the cities were assigned 12.1 cents [$6,322,500].

In dividing the automobile tax dollar collected by the state, the second largest division was for interest and principal on road bonds. This obligation took 22.2 cents [$11,511,900]. Most of this, 17.4 cents, was for the state's outstanding bonds on the 1918 issue of $60,000,000 and the 1924 issue of $100,000,000.

Poor Relief Bonds Claim 8.8 Cents.

Maintenance took 11.8 cents [$6,143,300] of the motorist's tax dollar. Of this 10.1 cents [$5,261,000] was spent by the state, .7 of a cent [$358,000] by the counties, and 1 cent [$524,300] by the cities.

For administration, engineering, and buildings, 8.8 cents [$4,578,000] was spent. Of this the state accounted for 7.7 cents [$3,991,100]; the counties .5 of a cent [$274,500]; the cities .6 of a cent [$312,400].

For poor relief bonds, 8.8 cents [$4,571,100] was used as follows: 6.8 cents [$3,515,500] for county issues and 2 cents [$1,055,600] for city issues. This use of motorists' tax money will continue until the last of the bonds is retired in 1953.

Five cents of the motorists' tax dollar [a total of $2,580,500] went for Chicago public schools. This money was entirely from Chicago's share of the gas tax. This annual diversion of the motorists' taxes from the road fund will end Jan. 1, 1941.

Propose Bigger Police Force.

For the state police and the state police radio, 2.7 cents [$1,420,500] was required. At the current session of the general assembly the state administration proposes to boost this appropriation to $2,000,000 and to increase the number of policemen from 350 to 500.

For purchase of rights of way, 1.9 cents [$992,300] was used as follows: By the state, none; by the counties, 1.4 cents [$751,900]; by the cities, .5 of a cent [$240,400]. The secretary of state, who sells the license plates, got 1.7 cents [$875,100].

The taxes paid by Illinois motorists will be increased slightly by the drivers' license law. The fee is 50 cents for a three years' license. After May 1 of this year it will be illegal for any Illinois resident to operate a car in this state without his individual license.

[This is another in a series of articles by the Tribune's automobile editor on proposals for a new highway construction policy in Illinois.]

JAPS SAY BARRIER TO BRITISH ZONE INTIENTSINSTAYS

Live Wire Entanglement Will Not Be Removed.

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—British officials said today the Japanese government had refused to remove a live wire entanglement from around the British concession in Tientsin, North China.

Japan's answer to three British protests against the entanglement, which was being studied at the foreign office, charged that British officials had permitted anti-Japanese elements to operate in Tientsin. The British denied this and it was understood that a sharp British note would be sent to Japan soon.

Britain delivered a formal protest on March 7. The British consul general at Tientsin and the American and French consuls had protested to Japanese authorities there on Feb. 28 on humanitarian grounds. When no answer was received the Japanese were reminded of the situation again on March 4.

Japs Capture Two Towns.

SHANGHAI, March 13.—(AP)—Japanese columns swerving southward along the Han river 100 miles west of Hankow reported capture of two towns today and the sinking of most of a small fleet of junks in which Chinese troops were attempting to flee westward across the river.

The towns reported captured were Lohanssu, on the east bank of the river opposite Shayang, and Likiawan, also on the east bank, fifteen miles north of Lohanssu.

Shayang is thirty-five miles northwest of Shasi, Yangtze port which is one of two main Japanese objectives in this region. The other is Ichang, seventy-five miles farther up the river.

Clear Out Chinese Forces.

The Japanese said that as a result of today's operations they now had wiped out all Chinese forces on the east bank of the Han and were in a position to advance toward Shasi and Ichang.

It was announced in Shanghai that a Japanese-backed daily airplane service linking Shanghai, Nanking, and Peking would be started tomorrow, replacing the service formerly run by the Chinese government.

A Japanese military spokesman announced widespread bombing activity designed to harass Chinese shipping south of Shanghai, carried out coincidentally with a vigorous "mopping up" expedition against Chinese guerrilla fighters in the region.

WOMAN LEADER LOSES FIGHT TO ESCAPE PRISON

Kansas City, Mo., March 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances S. Ryan, boss of the Tom Pendergast political forces in the 12th ward, lost today her 10 month fight to avoid serving a three year sentence for vote fraud conspiracy.

Mrs. Ryan, sentenced to the federal women's industrial reformatory at Alderson, W. Va., for her part in the Kansas City vote scandals of 1936, had applied for probation. Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis, in a memorandum opinion, said he saw no conceivable justification for granting probation.

Mrs. Ryan, superintendent of the Jackson County Parental Home, also has been convicted in a second case, now on appeal. In the last two years 237 persons have been convicted of vote fraud in Kansas City.

12 DIE, 30 HURT AS COW WRECKS FRENCH TRAINS

CHATEAUROUX, France, March 13.—(AP)—A stray cow wrecked the Paris-Toulouse express and a freight train tonight, causing the death of at least twelve persons and injuring thirty.

The cow jumped from a cattle car which was being switched to a siding to allow the express to pass. The freight train struck the cow, derailing two cars, which fell onto the main line just as the fast train approached.

The engine, baggage, and mail cars and two passenger cars of the express piled up.

BREAK IN DAM DRIVES 200 FROM MONTANA HOMES

Jordan, Mont., March 13.—(AP)—Two hundred persons were driven from their homes here tonight when a dam across Big Dry creek, a mile west, broke and sent water rushing down a valley.

No fatalities were reported. Butte Tipton, newspaper editor, said all residents of the flooded area, which he estimated was one-third of the town, had enough warning to escape.

A section of the earthfill dam about seventy-five feet long, built by the state, gave way with a roar tonight, and the pent-up water rapidly overflowed the creek banks and spread over the low section of the town. Merchants were removing stocks from basements along Main street.

At noon the leak in the dam was only a trickle, but when the large section gave way the almost dry creek was turned into a torrent sixty or seventy feet wide.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—(AP)—Alice Moore, 25 years old, daughter of Alice Joyce, was granted a divorce today from Felix Knight, singer with whom she eloped to Yuma, Ariz., in 1935. She charged desertion. Her father is Tom Moore, former star. Miss Joyce now is married to Clarence Brown, a director.

MRS. INSULL JR. INJURED AS AUTO SKIDS INTO TREE

Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., 225 River street, Geneva, was injured yesterday when her automobile skidded on a patch of ice in Roosevelt road a mile west of Wheaton and crashed into a tree. Two of Mrs. Insull's teeth were knocked out and she suffered cuts and bruises. The car was wrecked.

A similar accident resulted in injuries to Police Sergeant Richard Campbell, 10005 Prospect avenue. His motorcycle skidded at Vincennes avenue and 83d street yesterday morning and hit the curb.

Anthony Schindler, 64 years old, 4919 Warwick avenue, died in the Belmont hospital of injuries suffered Saturday night when he walked into the side of an automobile at 5432 Irving Park road. The driver was Bertram Behrens, 3316 Wilson avenue.

John Nyblan, 55 years old, 520 North Wells street, died in the Henrotin hospital of injuries suffered early Sunday. He was struck at Illinois and Clark streets by an automobile that failed to stop.

Mrs. Mary Nebel, 67 years old, died in the Woodlawn hospital of injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile March 1 in front of her home at 6138 St. Louis avenue. The driver was Mrs. Anne Cobb, 6011 Michigan avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 173 persons had ben killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 138 were killed in Chicago, where 3,580 were injured in the same period.

Lord Tredegar, Aid of Late Pope, Weds Russian Princess

SINGAPORE, March 13.—(AP)—Baron Evan Frederic Morgan Tredegar and Princess Olga Dolgorouky, daughter of Prince Serge Dolgorouky of Russia, were married here today. Lord Tredegar, who was a privy chamberlain of the sword and cape to Pope Pius XI., received a papal dispensation for marriage to the princess, who was listed in the marriage register as a divorcée.

Driver Gets 10 Days in Jail for Fleeing After Accident

Judge Jay A. Schiller of the Safety court yesterday sentenced Max Demakowski, 7321 Perry avenue, to ten days in the County jail for leaving the scene of an accident. Emmons Olson, 3646 Magnolia avenue, was sentenced to five days in the Bridewell for driving while intoxicated. Jack Kramer, 1515 Monroe street, was fined $10 for reckless driving.

ORDERS TRUSTEE TO SEEK PRIVATE SALE OF HOSPITAL

Federal Judge William H. Holly yesterday ordered Fred E. Hummel, trustee of the West Side hospital, 1850 West Harrison street, to negotiate for a private sale instead of a sale by auction, which previously had been considered. The hospital sought reorganization under section 77-B of the federal bankruptcy act soon after the health department ordered it closed last spring. Hummel reported that the hospital operated on a $2,000 monthly deficit after being reopened in mid-summer.

Tip to aspiring writers: The first thing Sinclair Lewis did when he arrived at the Ambassador for the opening of his play, Angela Is Twenty-Two, was to order a kitchen table sent to his room. He had his typewriter on it and was at work immediately. . . . A woman who had heard Lewis himself was playing the male lead but not that Philip Merivale had replaced him, commented to her companion when Merivale stepped on the stage, "My, how Mr. Lewis has changed!" . . . Mr. Lewis, in his curtain speech, said that the first world city to him, a Minnesota native, was not London, not New York, not Paris, but Chicago, so that the Sunday night opening was the real première of the play.

Strange that there was no publicity about the divorce of Leonide Massine, famous dancer, choreographer, and head of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe. He was divorced from dark eyed Delarova a couple of months ago. Wonder who got Smoky, the dog. Gossip is that he will marry Orlova, formerly of the ballet. She was out in front the last night of the ballet in Chicago on its recent engagement and backstage later, which caused talk and excitement.

Seasonal Phenomena.

A robin spent yesterday morning in the yard of a house at 1744 Newland avenue. And there are snow drops blossoming in Highland Park. The first one opened its cup on Washington's birthday, a schedule unbroken for nearly thirty years, according to Mrs. Sewall Truex, in whose yard at 300 Egandale road the snow drops are blossoming. Snakeskin hats are being made up in all colors at the town's most fashionable milliner's. Five women who move more or less in the same group have selected the same spring costume [from different avenue shops, too!]. Dark blue is beginning to make its annual spring appearance.

Winter Trips Hold Interest of Chicagoans

BY JUDITH CASS.

EVERY one seems either just to have returned from a trip or just about to take one. Winter vacations become more popular every year, but this does not mean that summer ones are diminishing in popularity. Probably the truth is that more and more people are taking two vacations a year, having found that two short ones are better than one long one.

North, south, east, and west the travelers go, for cold as well as warm places lure those seeking the sun nowadays. And whatever else a traveler desires—natural beauty, gayety, the sea, mountains, the desert—it is sunshine that tops the list of necessities for a successful vacation.

One is apt to think of the east or the west coast of Florida when some one says, "I'm going to Florida this winter," forgetting that there are delightful inland places in that state, Winter Park, for instance, which has quite a large colony of Chicagoans every season. Dr. Richard M. Genius, Mrs. Tracy L. Turner, the William Muirhead McMillans, the Hibbard Casselberrys, Mrs. Samuel Goss, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis have houses there. Among those who this year are visiting the resort and enjoying hotel life are Mrs. James R. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Welles, who are expected back in Lake Forest fairly soon; Mrs. Thomas P. Marston, the Judson Stones, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Hastings.

McMillans Visit Boca Raton Club.

The McMillans just recently returned to Winter Park after a trip to Miami and the Boca Raton club. At the latter place they met their son and daughter-in-law, the William B. McMillans of St. Louis, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Sewell Avery of Chicago. Another Chicago visitor at the club recently was John J. Abbott.

The Casselberrys and their guests, Dr. and Mrs. Frode Jensen of Winnetka, were the especial guests at a swimming party Dr. Genius gave recently at his new Spanish home in Winter Park. Mrs. Jensen and Mrs. Casselberry are sisters.

The Charles E. Browns and their schoolboy son are leaving next week for Winter Park to spend "Townie's" Easter holiday there. Mrs. Allen Whitman [Betty Brown] of New York was expected this week to visit her parents, but she is putting off her trip west until the Browns return from Florida.

Having decided to go to California in May, the Howard F. Prestons have given up the idea of visiting Natchez this spring. They were going south with their two daughters, Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody and Mrs. Harry Nacey of Knoxville, Tenn. Mrs. Peabody is leaving this week to visit her sister, and they may go on to Natchez.

Silas H. Strawns Arrive Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn will arrive at home tomorrow from a motor trip along the Pacific coast.

Edward H. Bennett left on Sunday to join Mrs. Bennett and her daughter, Miss Betty Mead, at Tryon, N. C., for the hunting season. The Bennetts will be away for two months.

Mrs. James O. Hinkley of Lake Forest, Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks, and Mrs. Charles I. Pierce were among the guests at a dinner given recently at the Bath and Tennis club in Daytona Beach, Fla., by the William B. Schrauffs of Plandome, N. Y. Mrs. Schrauff is Mrs. Hinkley's niece.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Haverkampf III. [Ilma Jane Theurer] are being congratulated on the birth of a son, John IV., on March 7 at the Passavant hospital. Mrs. Haverkampf's mother, Mrs. Peter S. Theurer, returned from California just in time to welcome her first grandchild and to assist the Haverkampfs in moving into a new apartment at 70 Cedar street.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

If you would spurn either the candy pinks or the strong reds offered in lip rouge for a spring makeup there's a new one that will fill the bill. It's a light but vivid red, with the very faintest suggestion of blue in it—a compromise between the two extremes that are offered.

You can go very pink this summer, or bright red. And we're talking about makeup, not political beliefs. The new makeups seem to aim at making us women look either sweet or surprising. Your own tastes and the colors you wear are the deciding factors.

A new lipstick shade, called dahlia, is not candy pink, as some you'll be seeing. It's a most unusual color, a b r i g h t but not a deep red, with enough blue in it to make it a slick little number with most of the lovely colors that are sprouting. It has a most attractive vividness, but it's not shocking.

It looks well in daylight on women with clear skins—complexions without yellow tones. And it's universally successful for evening. We had dozens of samples of it and not in years have we heard so much praise from women of all types for a new and different shade. It is distinctly different, but not at all freakish. We found it particularly successful for women with white hair, incidentally, and thought that rather a special point in its favor. Lipsticks for women with gray locks shouldn't be too deep, in our opinion, but the shade should have the character that is often lacking in the lighter reds and the pinkish tints.

This is a good lipstick, too, very smooth and consistent in texture. It doesn't lump, even though it has a good bit of body to it—it remains creamy, though it is not a greasy stick. And it's most inexpensive. There is a cream rouge to match, a rouge that looks much lighter in the container than it is on the skin. This too, is smooth and creamy, and easy to apply because it's moist enough to spread easily.

The dahlia shade is a conservative compromise between the pinks and the strong reds. It will last for a long time because it's perfect for the woman who wants to be smart but not extreme.

Confessions of a Slant-Eyed Girl

By MYRNA LOY.

Hollywood, Cal., March 13.—In answer to your query, "How did you succeed in changing from your early siren rôles to the modern woman you now portray?" let us hope that this will be the final answer. Time and again I have tried to bury those siren memories of the past, but, being the cat that the siren was, she apparently has nine lives. She continues to bob up from nowhere to taunt me anew.

Should you not recall, I was destined from the very beginning to slink through life with slanting eyes, plotting men's downfall and finding ignominious fates awaiting me before the final fadeouts of those silent nightmares. My very first professional job was as a sinuous dark-skinned girl in Sid Grauman's prolog to "Thief of Bagdad," and the Egyptian theater in Hollywood was the birthplace of the oriental influence that dominated me. So you see I was really the one to blame for what befell me in subsequent years.

There was no escaping it then, not even in my first motion picture job. I had been tested in a gown to be worn by Kathleen Key when the director, Christy Cabanne, suggested I play a Madonna in "Ben Hur." For three hours I was a Madonna until Betty Bronson relieved me of my halo and, instead, I became a fallen woman for $35 a day. Can't you vision that sinister ogre of orientalism pursuing me even in my youth? After "Ben Hur" came "What Price Beauty?" produced by Rudolph Valentino and Natacha Rambova, in which I remained the lady leopard, slinking through the tall grass. Lowell Sherman had seen me slinking, and he whispered in Jack Warner's ear. They needed "my type" for "Satan and Sailors," in which I vamped at my best and, for it, got my first long-term contract. I was 19 at the time.

I continued to work in many pictures, always in an oriental rôle—Malayan, Japanese, Polynesian, Hindu, and Egyptian—until I became known only as an American girl gone native in an easterly direction. I was a deep-throated desert siren in "The Desert Song"; a dangerous gal, with Alice Joyce and Richard Tucker, in "The Squall," and so on. At Fox it was the same—until a cavalcade of sympathetic men friends rode forth to liberate me. William K. Howard was the first. Feeling compassion, he promoted me to the dutiful wife in "Transatlantic." The next assistant liberator was Edward H. Griffith. He had seen me and pitied me as a Malay girl, and transformed me to a social snob in "Rebound." This rôle led to a civilized part in "Animal Kingdom," which gave me confidence in myself as a normal human being for the first time.

After "Arrowsmith," Louis B. Mayer offered me a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. They told me I would be given every opportunity to prove what I could do—and started me off in "The Wet Parade," with my name tenth down the list in the billing. Among those above me I recall Neil Hamilton, Lewis Stone, Walter Huston, Robert Young, and Jimmy Durante. A little later, while doing a minor rôle in "Emma," I became acquainted with Marie Dressler, whose kindly advice has remained with me ever since . . . "When you're really in, you have a better chance to work into what you want." Marie's counsel became a golden rule for me, and I resolved to stick to it, to struggle toward what I really wanted.

Then I was sent over to RKO as a half-caste murderess in "Thirteen Women." I had slipped back into the atmosphere of burning punk and clapping chopsticks. "The Mask of Fu Manchu" proved no deliverer for me, nor did "The Barbarian," in which I appeared with Ramon Novarro. Although I was an English girl, my past was to stalk with me when I was compelled to reveal it with the line, "My mother was an Egyptian." There I was, a half-caste again. And then I met William Powell. It was in "Manhattan Melodrama," which cemented a stanch professional friendship that has continued through the "Thin Man" pictures, "Evelyn Prentice," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Libeled Lady" and "Double Wedding," and is to be resumed in the next "Thin Man" picture.

The advent of swell Bill Powell into my life sounded the death knell for the siren that got under my skin. So you see, Ed, it was not entirely Myrna Loy who managed to make the change from an exotic actress in the silent films to the merry modern girl I seem to be today. It was a bunch of boys who whooped 'er up—Bill Howard, Ed Griffith, Woody Van Dykes, Bill Powell, many others, and, of course, a certain Mr. Arthur Hornblow Jr., who, incidentally, is my husband.

Does that answer your question?

Annual Show of Polish Arts Club Pleases

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The eleventh annual exhibition of paintings and sculpture by members of the Polish Arts club opened yesterday on the mezzanine floor of the Milwaukee Avenue National bank, 1201 North Milwaukee avenue, to continue to March 25.

The exhibit is fully up to the standards set by previous club shows. The few pieces of sculpture are excellent and the painting is uneven. The most modern canvas in the exhibit, "Mood," by Anthony Rogalski, received the important Polish National Alliance Educational department prize of $50. Rogalski's water color, "The Show Is On," is by far the better work, although it, too, is a caricature of good painting.

An artist from Boston, Roman J. Prybot, has two attractive pictures on the walls, a little landscape entitled "Autumn" and a decorative fantasy, "The Peacocks." "The Cat," by Countess Cecilia St. George, is an amusing beast, black with mysterious green eyes. Two charming still lifes of flowers, "Phlox" and "Primrose," by Stefania Kwiatkowski, are extremely pleasant and from them one goes easily to several beautifully handled water colors, "Goat and Chickens," by Adam Szwejkowski; "Gardening" and "Russian Still Life," by Janina Majewska, and "Old Barn," by Norbert Czarnowski.

"A View of Pittsburgh," by Czarnowski, won the H. S. French prize. "Dancer," by Rudolph Pen, received the Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey prize. The Dewey prize in water color went to "Back of the Barn," by Walter Mazeski, a breezy and colorful picture.

The sculpture is so charming that each piece should be mentioned: The exquisite girl's uplifted face, "Meditation," by Dr. Henry Bekier; the sweet portrait head of a little boy by Dr. Peter Czwalinski, and the exquisite mother and baby, "Serenity," by Frances Kapuscinska.

Original lithographs by Walter Sharp, and portraits in oil and crayon by a young artist, Joseph P. Nash, are on exhibition at the O'Brien galleries, 820 North Michigan avenue.

Etchings by Gene Kloss are being shown at the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue. Her prints are abundantly filled with subtle and penetrating beauty.

Reefer Coats Fulfill Every Wardrobe Need

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Reefer coats this spring solve every wardrobe problem. They're streamlined for youth, they have a good American snap and swagger, and they come in every imaginable color and fabric. Fitted reefers obligingly serve for spectator sports outfits, as an office outfit for the career girl, and go out with prints, stripes, and thin wool afternoon dresses with the same ease they complete a skirt and blouse duet—the best of the all purpose foundation coats for any one's money and wardrobe.

Thin, medium, or thick woolens assure the proper comfort. Swanky flannel in pale pastels, stripes in novelty weaves, prodigiously patterned bright checks or plaids, and the old spring favorite, navy blue, with some super slenderizing black beauties compose the current showings now at peak interest.

You'll find buttons down the front, from four to as many as eight, some in single formations, others in double. You'll find high, wide, and handsome revers, simply cut sleeves, and expertly cut collarlines. Pockets have been "t a i l o r e d i n" with superlative smoothness. Linings are slippery satin or equally smooth silks in contrast and harmonizing shades.

Spanking white pique is used with admirable restraint to achieve just enough of a telling white outline. In the striped wools a decorative design is achieved with the right angled cross of the stripe, while inverted plaits or bands detail the bold patterned plaids. Such eye-catching colors as orchid, sage green, water color, gold, crushed raspberry, champagne, daffodil yellow, and cornflower blue come in the softer tweeds and flannels. For summer you'll have white and ivory wools fashioned in this same unbeatable reefer silhouette.

Among the disappointments which pastors experience is the fact that while many Christians have a lively faith in Christ they entirely miss the essence of Christ's ministry, which was to reveal the Father. Dr. Theodore Heimarck of Evansville made this statement yesterday in his noonday address at the Erlanger theater.

"It is a mistake, I think, to say that Christ came to teach a morality or a sociology only—or at all. We fail miserably to understand the dynamic of his teaching if we do not grasp that here was God's will in action; a revelation of God's intent, purpose, plan, and nature. What otherwise would he mean when he said, 'Ye that have seen me have seen the Father'? The common mistake is to stop at Christ and overlook his revelation."

The result of this attitude, Dr. Heimarck said, was a blend of sentiment and morality that is far from the truth. The God of Christ was a God with a will which Christ accepted as authoritative and final, and his victories were victories because he bowed to that will, which, also, humanity must do.

Take Inventory Today of Your "Personality Quotient"

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"What is Your Personality Quotient?" was the title of an address recently delivered by Alice Rice Cook, officer of the American Association of University Women, before a group of young women of the Girls' Service club, New York.

She advised the girls to take inventory of themselves to determine the impression they MIGHT be making on people. Mrs. Cook's suggestions were aimed at the young business woman, particularly the young woman in search of a job, but her advice affects a larger audience, since the impression they are making on people concerns all women, in reality.

The following questions were suggested as cues to inventory-taking:

1. Is your voice easily understood?
2. Do people ever tell you they like your voice?
3. Is your facial expression USUALLY pleasing?
4. Are your clothes USUALLY appropriate?
5. Are you USUALLY well groomed?
6. Can you relax when necessary?
7. Are you USUALLY courageous in facing the future.
8. Can you face criticism?

Mrs. Cook said the less you worry about the impression you're making on people, the better. The things over which we have control are speech, manner, appearance. These are the three external factors.

The inward factor which controls the impression you make on other people is "attitude." When a girl is seeking work, knowledge is a great asset, but a pleasing personality also is of prime importance, for it attracts the job to the girl. It's not WHAT a girl says in an interview, as much as HOW she says it. A sad facial expression makes the employer sad; a pleasing facial expression makes the employer feel pleased, therefore making the employer want to hire the girl, who would be an asset to the organization. Mrs. Cook says that often a woman can create a difference of from ten to twenty years by the expression of her mouth and eyes.

Mrs. Cook further advised the girls to have the "hostess approach," which must be done on the basis of TRUE INTEREST. If a girl uses the "we" approach, instead of the "I" approach, it will help her to overcome self-consciousness. She said shyness is an insult to the other person, because it puts on the other person the responsibility of looking after the shy one.

The Blind Side

SYNOPSIS.

Ross Craddock's father, now dead, turned Craddock house into flats and installed his old maid cousins, Mary and Lucy Craddock, in a flat apiece, on either side of the one occupied by Ross. After Mary's death Lucy prepares to leave for a change of scene. Their cousin, Peter Renshaw, is staying in Mary's flat while he settles her estate. Ross orders Lucy to vacate her flat because she objects to his attentions to her foolish young niece, Mavis Grey. Lucy tells Peter she wishes Ross were dead. He advises her to take the trip. Lucy gives her cousin, Lee Fenton, permission to use he. flat while she is away. Lee, who is in love with Peter, has just escaped an unpleasant experience with a married man, Rush, the porter, admits Lee. He mutters belligerently against Ross. After Rush, Lee has a time dismissing Mrs. Green, the charwoman, who says she is ill and needs a drink of brandy. That evening Peter prevents Bobby Foster, Mavis' suitor, from making a scene in a cabaret where Mavis is with Ross. Peter is awakened in the night by a crash. He sees Mavis running from Ross' flat and Ross cut and bleeding. Mavis had thrown a decanter at him. Peter lets Mavis stay the rest of the night and he sleeps on a couch. Later he is again awakened and sees Mavis again coming from Ross' flat. She says she want to retrieve her purse. Lee awakens from a nightmare to find her night-gown and foot covered with blood. Her bloody footprints lead from Ross' door. Lee knows she walks in her sleep. In terror she washes away the blood stains and goes to tell Peter. Ross' valet arrives and finds Ross has been shot and killed. He summons the police.

INSTALMENT XIII.
A DOOR UNLOCKED.

"Get that down, Abbott," said the inspector. "Now, Rush, that revolver was fired some time last night—some time between one and four in the morning as near as the medical evidence can put it. I want to know if you heard anything that might have been the shot."

"No, I didn't—nobody couldn't down in that basement."

"And you didn't leave the basement?"

"Not before a quarter to six I didn't. I work, I do, and when I go to bed I go to sleep."

"So do I," said the inspector heartily. "Now I want to know about the outer door of this place."

"Anything wrong with that?"

"No, no. But you lock it up at night, I suppose?"

"Yes, I do."

"What time do you lock up?"

"Eleven o'clock."

"And if anyone wants to get in after that?"

"Those that lives here has their keys."

"The door isn't bolted?"

"Of course it ain't!"

"And what time do you open up in the morning?"

"Six o'clock mostly."

"Now, sergeant—this is very important. You locked up last night as usual?"

"Eleven o'clock I locked up."

"And after you locked up no one could get in without a key? And when you came to open up at six o'clock this morning the door was locked as you left it?"

"Putting words into my mouth, aren't you? Want to get me telling lies and catch me out? Because you won't! See? To start with, it was a good bit before six when I came to open up this morning, and to get on with, the door wasn't locked—it was on the jar."

The inspector leaned forward with a hand on either knee.

"But you're certain you locked it?"

"When it comes to the proper place I'll be taking my Bible oath I locked it."

The inspector leaned back again.

"If someone wanted to go out after you locked the place up could they shut that door without being heard?"

A grim smile appeared on Rush's face.

"You'd better ask Mr. Pyne in number one about that. Ten years he's been complaining about the noise that door makes when it shuts."

"Then if anyone wanted to come or go without being heard they probably wouldn't risk shutting that door. They would, in fact, be inclined to leave it as you found it, on the jar?"

Rush grunted.

"None of my business what they'd do. I locked up, and that I'll swear to."

Detective Abbott wrote this down. The inspector looked around at him, said, "I'm taking a list of the flat-holders—get it down on a separate sheet so I can have it handy," and turned to Rush again.

"Now, sergeant, just give me all those flats from A to Z."

"They don't run no more than one to twelve," said Rush.

The inspector was not to be moved from his good humor.

"Well, let's have 'em from one to twelve," he said easily.

Stiffly erect, Rush ticked them off.

"Number one—that's Mr. Pyne. Want me to tell you about 'em as we go along?"

Here at last was a subject on which he would be willing to talk. Lee Fenton could have told the inspector that.

"Well, Mr. Pyne, he's in number one—old bacheler as thinks himself an invalid—nothing to do but plan whether it's a pill or a powder he'd best be taking next. He's here all the time—bin here ten years. Number two's Mrs. and Miss Tatterley—went away a week ago. Ladies they are. And number three is the two Miss Holdsworths—and they're away—bin away since the beginning of July. And that's the first floor.

"Then second floor. Number five is Mr. and Mrs. Connell—he's a chartered accountant, he is, and she's a bit of a girl. They've gone hiking, they have—bin away two days. And number four, that's Miss Lemoine—and she's gone away with old Lady Trent out of number six—gone abroad. So that finishes the second floor.

"The third floor's all Craddocks—Miss Lucy Craddock in number seven, Mr. Ross in here, and Mr. Peter Renshaw in number nine that was Miss Mary Craddock's flat until she died three weeks ago. And Miss Lucy, she went off on a foreign cruise yesterday evening, and Miss Lee Fenton she come in with her aunt's key, so it's her that's in number seven now."

"Miss Fenton came in last night?"

"Round about seven o'clock it would be, and Miss Lucy'd bin gone some time, and Miss Lee Fenton she'd get her aunt's key—met her at the station, she said, and come in to stay till Miss Lucy gets back. And Mr. Renshaw, he's settling up Miss Lucy's affairs. Army officer he is, and Miss Mary's executor. That's the third floor.

"Fourth floor. Potters have ten and eleven—Mr. and Mrs. in eleven, governess and three children in ten. They went off to the sea first of August. Number twelve's Miss Bingham. She get back day before yesterday, and we could have done without her. Prying old maid—that's what she is."

Detective Abbott wrote that down. It occurred to him that a spying old maid might very well be the answer to a policeman's prayer.

Rush was giving particulars about Mrs. Green, the charwoman. She hadn't been with them very long, not above three months, when she took over from Mrs. Postlethwaite, who'd had the job for fifteen years. No, she didn't sleep in. She'd gone off with a bad turn last night, and he didn't expect to see her, not before the afternoon, if then.

"Drink?" inquired the inspector.

Rush shook a gloomy head.

"A silly, peter-grievous female," he pronounced.

The inspector inquired whether she would have a key to the front door, and was told certainly not.

Rush was dismissed.

. . . . . .

In Lucy Craddock's sitting room Peter Renshaw stood on the black woolly rug before the empty fireplace and mapped out a plan of campaign. Lee, sitting on the arm of the largest chair, was looking, not at him, but out of the window at a patch of hot, hazy sky. There was a very much worn Brussels carpet on the floor, its original tints of mustard and strong pink now mercifully merged in a general shabbiness. The walls, like those in number nine, were completely covered with pictures—water colors, etchings, photographic enlargements, and a family portrait or two in oils. There were at least six small tables as well as an upright piano, and a good many unnecessary small chairs. The top of the piano was quite covered with photographs in silver frames.

"It'll be perfectly all right if we keep our heads," said Peter in his most dogmatic voice.

Filmland Girls Aren't Blase About Romance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

From a Hollywood letter we learn that the screen girls are NOT blasé when it comes to romance.

"They feel just the way girls in other fields of business feel. They dream the same dreams and long for the same kind of happiness.

"They aren't self-sufficient, either! They want marriage, love, a husband, and babies just as much as any girl. Maybe more. And men shy from them because they're actresses surrounded by what we call, for lack of another term, glamor."

Here are a few examples of what the screen's fair ones expect in the men they want to marry.

Isa Miranda, mysterious, sophisticated Italian actress, whom D'Annunzio called the most glamorous woman in the world, is exacting in this desire. She demands a cosmopolite. Her mate must have diversified interests, be an interesting conversationalist, and a linquist. He needn't be rich, but she must feel that he can provide security. She'd like him to be dark.

Judith Barrett wants an intellectual. He must know more than she does about everything. He must have a terrific sense of humor. It doesn't matter much about his looks, for her Mr. Right Man will be so important that looks will be incidental. But he must dress immaculately, and be interested in sports such as tennis, swimming, and horseback riding. He must, above all, respect Judith's independence and not wish her to be a clinging vine!

Mary Carlisle, petite and blonde, is looking for a husband who is tall, dark, and handsome! She'd prefer a man who knows the motion picture business so he would not worry and wonder why it sometimes takes nine or ten "takes" to get a perfect shot of a love scene, but he doesn't necessarily have to be an actor. Mary thinks writers and producers ought to know this sort of thing, too.

None of the so-called "glamor girls" lists money as one of the requisites in her potential Prince Charming. But they are honest and clear thinking enough to realize a man couldn't be very happy if his income were meager in comparison to theirs.

Even the most conservative Hollywood screen star lives luxuriously.

Vegetables needn't always be served singly, buttered or creamed. Try combining two or more of them to make a vegetarian main dish, after the fashion of today's recipes. In most cases a combination of vegetables has better flavor than any one of the separated components.

Vegetable Chop Suey
(Serves Six)

1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup butter
1 cup shredded cabbage
5 stalks celery, sliced
2 large onions, chopped
Salt, pepper
Soy sauce

Add mushrooms to melted butter in a skillet. Add other vegetables, season to taste, and fry vegetables until almost tender. They should retain a little of their crispness. Cover the pan during cooking and stir occasionally to prevent browning. Serve with soy sauce as an accompaniment. Or add soy sauce to the vegetables just before serving.

Celery, Potato, and Nut Loaf
(Serves Four)

2 large stalks celery, sliced
¾ cup chopped peanuts
3 cups mashed potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
1 egg.
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon minced onion

Cook celery until tender in a small amount of boiling, salted water. Drain, combine with other ingredients, and pile into a greased pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes and serve hot with tomato sauce. Or bake in greased muffin tins until brown and serve with tomato sauce.

VEGETABLE SHORTCAKES.

Any combination of creamed vegetables may be served shortcake fashion with split baking powder biscuits. Here are a few good mixes: Carrots, onions, and peas; carrots, peas, and mushrooms; celery, onions, and peas; corn, tomatoes, onions; corn, mushrooms, and peas; parsnips, tomatoes, and celery; turnips, peas, and celery. When tomatoes are a part of the combination the liquid from them may be used as part of the liquid for the white sauce. Medium white sauce, 2 tablespoons each of butter and flour to a cup of milk, should be used. Cook fresh vegetables together or separately in boiling, salted water before creaming. Mushrooms, when they are fresh, may be sautéed instead of boiled.

VEGETABLE CASSEROLE.

Combine any number and variety of cooked or canned vegetables in a buttered casserole and pour seasoned medium white sauce over them. Top with fine crums which have been browned in butter and sprinkle with cheese, if desired. Brown in a moderate oven, about 375 degrees.

ent Field, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Field of Mendon, Vt., to Miles Van Valzah Hayes, son of Mrs. Christine R. Hayes and the late Alfred Hayes of Greenwich, Conn. The wedding will take place in the spring.

The late Mr. Field was business manager of THE TRIBUNE and one of the executives of the New York Daily News. Miss Field's grandfathers were Gov. Percival W. Clement and Henry F. Field, both of Rutland, Vt. Miss Field attended the Brearley and Spence schools in New York. Her fiancé prepared for Yale at the Buckley and Milton schools. He later went to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He now lives in Woodstock, Vt.

The junior board of the Northwestern university settlement will meet tomorrow at the home of Miss Harriet Pribble, 2428 Ewing avenue, Evanston. The board's publicity chairman, Mrs. Joseph Sharp, is leaving the following day for her native Cuba, to be away until June. Mr. Sharp will join his wife later.

Today the needlepoint group of the junior board will meet at Miss Margaret Schueler's, 3240 Lake Shore drive. A large exhibit of the work completed by this group will be shown at an Easter Monday card party and fashion show the senior board will give at the Evanston Woman's club. Mrs. William H. Barnes, president of the seniors, just has returned from Florida.

Drama League Will Have Breakfast Today.

Sinclair Lewis, author of "Angela Is Twenty-two," which opened at the Selwyn theater Sunday night, is to be the especial guest today at a breakfast the Drama league will give in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Members of the casts of "Angela" and "I Married an Angel" will be at the speakers' table. Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, president, will preside.

The first of four lectures on current events will be given by Clifton M. Utley at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Woman's Athletic club.

Mrs. T. Kenneth Boyd and Miss Emily Goehst will be hostesses at a bimonthly luncheon of the Chicago Wellesley club today at the University club. All Wellesley alumnae are invited to join the special college table.

Craig Lecture Will Aid Settlement.

"Danger Is My Business" is the title of a lecture Capt. John D. Craig will give at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Woman's Athletic club. The lecture will be a benefit for Association house and is sponsored by the women's auxiliary of the settlement. Miss Ellen Holt and Mrs. A. G. Bryant are co-chairmen of the committee in charge.

Capt. Craig is a deep sea diver and photographer. He will show undersea motion pictures, the pictures that gained for him the commission to photograph the salvaging of the Lusitania, work on which will start this summer.

The Evanston auxiliary of The Cradle will give a benefit tea today from 3 to 5 o'clock at the new Cradle. Tea will be served in the Eleanor Garrigue Gallagher memorial lounge and there will be a brief program of music. The party will give the auxiliary members and their guests a chance to see the new building. Mrs. Otto Mowry is chairman of the auxiliary.

For the Mature Silhouette

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

We had the larger silhouette, and all its style problems, in mind when this dress was designed, but we fashioned it with lines becoming to slender figures as well. For afternoon wear and the many social occasions of a busy woman's life, this frock is unsurpassable. It is simplicity itself, with just the right amount of femininity.

The V and surplice neckline minimizes superfluous breadth through the shoulders and bustline. The shoulder yoke gives a broadened effect that makes the waist seem slimmer by contrast. Shirring beneath the yoke lends desirable softness to the bodice. The waistline is casually draped, since designers have found that precise lines have the tendency to call attention to figure defects. The skirt is cut for flare.

The neckline may be left plain, with only pins or clips for adornment, or a flowing collar may be used. The latter is particularly effective if it's color or fabric contrast you want. Both prints and plain colors make up well.

Style No. 3250 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material, with five-eighths yard of 39 inch contrasting for the version with jabot collar.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Marine Life Is Embroidered on Cocktail Napkins

BY NANCY CABOT.

Some of the most colorful examples of marine life are illustrated in outline and embroidered on linen cocktail napkins, the edges of which are embroidered in buttonhole stitch. There are eight large designs for the center of rectangularly shaped napkins and eight smaller figures which may be used in the corners of square napkins. These hot iron transfer patterns may be embroidered in various colors, or all in the same shade.

For the hot iron transfer patterns of marine life, No. X-564, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Onofrei Able to Take Role in "Traviata"

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The tenors of the San Carlo Opera company are beginning to creep out of their sick beds. Last night Dimitri Onofrei made his first appearance in the troupe's current Auditorium theater engagement.

To an exhilarating performance of Verdi's "La Traviata" Mr. Onofrei contributed a sonorous, well inflected Alfredo. There were a few minor lapses from pitch in the first act to indicate that the well liked Rumanian tenor had not yet regained all of his composure.

While we are on the subject of the health of tenors let it be announced that Aroldo Lindi, who has been keeping Mr. Onofrei company in sick bay, will not be able to make his scheduled appearance in "Pagliacci" tonight. Sydney Rayner will take his place.

Last evening's Violetta was Lucille Meusel, one of the most intelligent sopranos of the day. Without ever descending to anything elocutionary she manages to project magnificently the thousand contradictory emotions which wrack poor Violetta from first curtain to last. She has learned that Verdi's music requires only a competent and painstaking performance and that it is quite capable, without any operatic rantings, of carrying the burden of the story.

Miss Meusel's fireworks seem smoother and more brilliant than ever this year. Her "Sempre Libera" caused quite a commotion.

Mario Cozzi sang Germont pere with little of the benignity that we associate with the rôle and in a voice which, while it has plenty of power, is neither easy of production nor rich in basic color.

At the conductor's stand, as always, was Carlo Peroni. His vigorous tempi cut several minutes from "La Traviata's" running time.

Could Your Baby Talk, Would He Be Saying This?

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright, 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"MY MOTHER."

By the Baby.

I've been thinking about my mother. She's pretty nice. And she must know a lot about babies. She certainly knows how to make me comfortable, and happy, too.

She makes me feel so safe when she's giving me a bath, for instance. She never lets me slip. I guess she knows how I hate to slip. And she never gets the teeniest bit of soap in my eyes. And she lets me kick and splash even if I get her and the bathroom all wet.

She's so good at dressing me, too. I can tell she knows how, because her touch is so firm, but she's gentle, too.

And she doesn't keep watching the clock and trying to teach me toilet habits all the time. She doesn't expect me to make connections with the bathroom as a grownup would.

And I guess about best of all is that she isn't one of these cool, impersonal, detached mothers that all the books for parents talk about so much, like Mrs. Barry next door.

Goodness, but I'm sorry for little Billie Barry! He never gets cuddled. His mother never takes him high in her arms on little journeys around the house to look at things way up on the mantel and the buffet and the big desk, and she never laughs at him and sings to him or says cozy little things while he takes his bottle or gets tucked into bed.

I've been thinking. I've got a pretty nice mother.

Is this your baby speaking?

The Winner

Congratulations, lovely lady! You've won a victory from that drawn-looking girl you were a month ago—heartbroken about your unattractive tired-out complexion. Then one lucky day you decided to try Dioxogen Cream, the only face cream that releases active oxygen right onto your skin . . .

You use this wonderful cleansing and toning cream to cleanse off your make-up. Wipe away. Then apply a little more Dioxogen Cream and leave it on a few minutes. Soon you feel its active oxygen breaking free on your skin—so refreshing and stimulating. Like a tonic on your skin! You've just given that nice face of yours an oxygen beauty pick-up. Your skin feels better! And looks better!

Try a month of tonic beauty pick-ups with Dioxogen Cream—in the evening—and before you go to bed. You'll see the radiance of a clear fresh skin reflected in the sparkle of men's eyes. Dioxogen Cream costs no more than ordinary cold cream. Get a jar at your drug store today.

For a generous trial size send ten cents to "Dioxogen Cream," 63 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I often am left in the bag with a hand similar to the one I am going to show you. This hand popped up in our bridge club the other night and I am not the only one who doesn't get his bidding straight on hands of this type. Many of my friends also get caught the same way and would like to know the answer. We all seem to disagree.

"South, dealer.

"Neither side vulnerable.

"I was South. I dealt and opened with one no trump. West passed and North bid two clubs. East passed and I bid two no trump. North then bid three clubs and here is where my question arose. I knew I couldn't get over to dummy's clubs unless partner had an outside entry. Well, I studied. Should I pass? A game in clubs did not look likely, but a game in no trump looked inviting. I took the chance and was down two tricks. What line of bidding can give knowledge of an outside entry, if any? Or, under the circumstances, should I stop thinking about no trump and proceed with partner's twice bid suit? That has had me and many others I know stumped quite often. Or shouldn't partner respond twice without an outside entry?

"West opened the nine of hearts, East covered dummy's ten, and I took in the queen. I cashed my two top clubs and then decided that the only thing that could give me the contract was to be lucky enough to drop the king and queen of diamonds in two leads and thus establish the diamond ten as an entry. As you can see, however, this plan did not work. Maybe an expert could have made it. I don't know. Mrs. A. K., New York."

First, let me set my correspondent's doubts to right on the question of whether an expert could have made the contract. He could not! Now let us get around to the question of bidding this admittedly difficult type of hand.

South's opening bid was by no means the best available. True, South had five-plus honor tricks, but for that very reason, and for the further reason that she had the ace-king of clubs blank, the approach bid of one heart would have been more logical. The upper limit of a no trump bid is five tricks, but this is the absolute limit. There should not even be an extra plus value in the hand. If one goes over the limit partner cannot be expected to realize that there is so much strength opposite him, and even five tricks usually can be better expressed with an approach bid. If South had started with one heart North's best response would have been a simple pass.

The one no trump, however, would not have been at all expensive if South's later bidding had been in accordance with the Culbertson system. After North's take-out to two clubs South's two no trump bid was a conventional rebid which is supposed to show the A K x or A Q x of the take-out suit. Since North had the club queen he could therefore [presumably] depend on South's holding the A K x and this combination would provide seven club tricks. Hence, after South's two no trump rebid North would have been justified in bidding three no trump.

The answer is that on this particular hand South should have realized that there was a better chance for game in clubs than in no trump. Actually a five club contract would have had an excellent chance for success. North would only have to find the heart ace "on side" in order to hold his loss to one heart and one diamond. He would not have been successful in this particular case, but at least would have been in a legitimate contract.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

—By WYNN—

Tuesday, March 14.

A couple of today's vibrations look rather good; but they are so mixed with this week's negative background that it will pay to be more than usually careful. Challenge everything, old and new, before leaning your weight against it.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead is personally expansive, collect if you deserve. But don't yield to foolish optimism, especially legally, and in ways that would damage reputation. Cultivate old friends. Danger: From now to April 20 and Dec. 12 to 30.

Tomorrow.

Better judgment promised; but no guarantees of best results; use caution.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? It's little wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. You won't have to endure constipation, you can avoid it. Eat All-Bran daily, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

HOLY LAND HUNTS TERRORISTS IN GERMAN COLONY

Jews Killed by Explosion of Land Mine.

HAIFA, Palestine, March 13.—(AP)—Police dogs, following the trail of terrorists who planted a land mine near the Gilbea hills, led searchers tonight to the non-Jewish German settlement, Waldheim, in the Nazareth hills twenty miles from here.

Two Jews were killed and two others gravely wounded when the mine exploded today as they were walking along a trail near the Gilbea hills.

The search halted at the door of a German blacksmith when citizens of the settlement protested against its being continued until the German consul was consulted.

Troops immediately surrounded the settlement, which dates back to the beginning of the 19th century, to await the arrival of the German consul and a high British military official.

"Final" British Plan.

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain was reported today to have agreed to the "final" British plan for controlling the future of Palestine.

The plan, which was outlined in principle to Jews at a three hour conference last night, was drawn up at a cabinet subcommittee meeting at No. 10 Downing street, where Chamberlain was said to have initialed the text.

Presence at the meeting of Admiral Baron Chatfield, minister for coordination of defense, was taken to indicate that a British proposal to increase her army reserve in Palestine probably would be adopted.

Arabs Want Own State.

Official details of the final plan were not available, but it was believed to follow original British "suggestions" which the Jews rejected as a basis of negotiations on Feb. 27 and which called for an independent Arab state in Palestine with Jews in a permanent minority.

It was expected that the plan would be put before a full meeting of the cabinet on Wednesday and submitted to Jewish and Arab delegates to the holy land peace conference on Wednesday or Thursday.

Jews raised numerous objections to the proposal at their meeting with Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald and other British officials last night, but agreed to consider it further when the government submitted it to them in writing. MacDonald conferred with Arab leaders today.

TAX RATE BOOST URGED TO OPEN SUBURB SCHOOL

A special massmeeting was held in Blue Island last night to make plans for the reopening of the Blue Island Community High school, but the school will stay closed today. About 500 men and women attended. The meeting was sponsored by the Parent-Faculty association.

The meeting recommended that the school board arrange for an emergency election calling for an increase in the school tax rate. An election is scheduled for April 8. If the election is advanced as recommended it will be held on or prior to April 1.

The high school, which accommodates 1,300 pupils, failed to open yesterday because of insufficient operating funds. School officials announced there can be no reopening without a higher tax rate. What is sought is an increase of the building fund rate from 37½ cents to 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation and a boost in the educational fund from $1 to $1.50. On three previous occasions Blue Island voters have turned down the increases.

NOTHING STALE IN THIS CRUSTY HOUSEHOLD HINT

Housewives: When putting bread on the table, leave the outer crust on top of the stack of slices. As each diner takes a slice, have him replace the crust. This will keep the whole stack fresh.

That is the advice of the American Society of Bakery Engineers, which opened its annual convention yesterday in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The ice box, the bakers said, is a good place to keep bread, because cold bread tastes better. Wherever it's kept it should be wrapped tightly in the original package or in a napkin.

Today the society will unveil a display of 1,000 varieties of cakes, pies, breads, and pastries designed by members. Roger Brandenburg, Grand Rapids, Mich., is president of the society.

JAIL FORMER SOLDIER PENDING U. S. RULING ON HIS DEPORTATION

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—A former soldier was under arrest today in connection with proceedings begun to deport him to his native Germany. He is Heinze Gerhardt Hartmann-Wrede, 30 years old. For the last week he has been in the county jail awaiting a federal hearing on a charge of illegal entry.

Heinze Hartmann-Wrede. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

"I'll never reach Germany alive, if I am deported," the prisoner was quoted. He claimed he had uncovered a German spy ring for the army intelligence, a service he said would bring him violent death if he is sent back to Germany.

Hartmann-Wrede came to the United States in 1929, applied for his first citizenship papers and then shipped for the orient as a seasan. Returning in 1936, he joined the army and subsequently was employed in the public relations department at the March Field army air base. He was said to have been honorably discharged from the army last October and to have been working since in a Hollywood studio.

AUDIT ORDERED AS FOREST PARK OFFICIALS CLASH

A political flareup among members of the village board of Forest Park resulted last night in an order for a special audit of the village books. The audit was requested by Commissioner August J. Calcagno, former head of the accounts and finance department. Calcagno said there had been a "whispering campaign" against him since he was transferred a week ago to the public property department.

Mayor Charles R. Hussey said he had not heard of the whispering campaign. Calcagno's transfer came after he tried unsuccessfully to have the board rescind the dismissal of Theodore Dannenberg, former water department collector. Calcagno said he would refuse to sign the pay roll unless Dannenberg's name was on it.

Calcagno is running for reëlection, as is Mayor Hussey and Commissioner Harry Huxhold, new head of the accounts and finance department.

ANTI-RED BILL PASSED BY N. Y. SENATE, 27 TO 20

Bars Them from Civil Service, Teaching.

Albany, N. Y., March 13.—[Special.]—The senate tonight passed and sent to the assembly the McNaboe anti-Red bill which would bar from the state civil service and teaching systems all persons who advocate overthrow of the government. The vote was 27 to 20.

The measure, identical to the bill passed overwhelmingly in the legislature last year and killed by the veto of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, was passed tonight when the solid bloc of 23 Republican senators, and Senator John J. McNaboe, Democratic author of the bill, won the support of three more members of his party, which had impeded advancement of the bill. Twenty Democrats, led by John J. Dunnigan, minority leader, voted against the measure.

Gov. Lehman contended, when he vetoed the identical bill last year, that it constituted a violation of constitutional rights.

Fight for Substitute.

In opposing the measure, which brought a break in party lines in the face of the Democratic governor's previous veto, Democratic speakers placed great emphasis on the argument that the McNaboe bill, by defining only communism, would imply that the legislature was by implication granting an acceptance of Nazism and Fascism. They argued that they favored the Devaney bill, already introduced in the assembly, which would bar all groups owing allegiance to any foreign ism.

The four bolting Democratic senators stood their ground with the Republicans despite the fact that party leaders had argued heatedly that passage of the bill would place Gov. Lehman in an embarrassing position from which he could emerge only with another veto.

Quotes Browder's Aims.

Debate was tense. On the third reading McNaboe read excerpts from a speech made by Earl Browder, head of the communist party in the United States, made at the sixth world congress of the communist internationale, in which, according to McNaboe, Browder said the object of the communist party in this country was the overthrow of the American government and the substitution of a socialized government controled by the communists.

Senator McNaboe contended that Gov. Lehman should be eager to sign the bill. He said he would introduce in the near future a measure which, he promised, will put Nazis and Fascists in the same class with communists.

A STORY ABOUT THE TIDE OF ONE MAN'S FORTUNE

Former Millionaire's Estate Is Settled.

Francis Xavier Mudd was a railroad telegrapher when he came to Chicago as a young man. But he was ambitious. Chicago was growing. He saw untold opportunities in the live poultry transportation business. He worked hard, saved his money, and founded the Live Poultry Transit company.

Business men came to know him as well to do. Soon they were speaking of him as a man of wealth. He was worth $100,000. Then $200,000. Then half a million dollars.

Mr. Mudd gave vast amounts to philanthropies, yet his fortune grew and grew.

Gives $100,000 to Seminary.

His largest gift was $100,000. He gave that in 1927 to St. Mary of the Lake seminary in Mundelein to perpetuated his name and that of his wife, Claribel, in one of the seminary buildings. The philosophy building now bears a plaque which reads: "The gift of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Xavier Mudd."

The late Pope Pius XI. honored him with knighthood in the order of St. Gregory. Cardinal Mundelein conferred the honor at the seminary.

Mr. Mudd merged his company with the North American Car company. He began to invest his wealth in other enterprises. They prospered. Those who knew him well said his wealth far exceeded a million dollars.

Forced to Give up Home.

The depression came. His fortune shrank. One by one he was compelled to give up his vast holdings. At last he had to give up his $30,000 home on Scoville avenue in Oak Park. He bought a smaller one for $6,000 at 614 Carpenter avenue in the same suburb. A few months later he found it necessary to sell that home.

In 1935 Mrs. Mudd died. On Dec. 10, 1937, Mr. Mudd died at the age of 78 years.

The final accounting of his estate was presented yesterday by Attorney Alfred J. Parker, executor of the will. Assistant Judge Joseph F. Geary approved it in Probate court. The sole heir was Miss Rosemary Mudd, 26 years old, an adopted daughter living at 213 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park.

There was $56.24 left for her.

GREEN PASTURES OPEN FOR NELLIE AS A BOY WEEPS

For the last five years Peter Stanke, 10 years old, of 1824 North Ashland avenue, met Nellie each night at Cortland street and Ashland avenue. Simon Zinkevich, Nellie's owner, operator of a cartage business, would stop long enough for Peter to give Nellie a lump of sugar and then climb upon the wagon. Both then rode to her barn at 1834 North Ashland avenue and unhitched her.

Yesterday Peter stayed home from the Burr elementary school and helped Mr. Zinkevich spread some hay and straw in the alley behind Nellie's barn. He stood rubbing Nellie's ears thoughtfully. Her injured right hind leg twitched spasmodically in pain. She had nicked it with her sharp winter shoe and an infection had developed. The night before she had kicked down the barn door in her pain.

Policeman Andrew McMahon, whom Nellie's owner had called to put her out of her misery, leveled his shotgun. Policeman George Schneider led Peter away in tears.

HAWKS KEEP THOMPSON; SEND HIM SCOUTING

INJURIES HIT CUBS; BARTELL, HACK, WHITEHILL OUT

NEW SHORTSTOP SUFFERS ATTACK OF RHEUMATISM

Splinter Forces Out Third Baseman.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 13.—Two regular Cub infielders and a veteran pitcher went to the Avalon hospital today as a result of more or less serious ailments while their mates were engaged in a routine batting and fielding drill. The cripples are Stanley Hack, Dick Bartell, and Earl Whitehill.

Earl Whitehill.

Whitehill, the 39 year old ex-American league southpaw, may be the most severely damaged of the three. Earl, who engaged in today's drill, complained of a sore ankle and immediately was rushed to the X-ray room, where the camera revealed a cracked bone in the left ankle. Because of uncertainty as to whether the injury was new, the negatives were sent to the mainland for more minute analysis.

Whitehill was to have pitched next Saturday's exhibition game against the Pirates in Los Angeles.

Splinter Stops Hack.

Dr. Don Bussey this morning removed a big splinter from the palm of Hack's right hand. The splinter was picked up several weeks ago while Stan was putting a log in his fireplace. [California Chambers of Commerce please ignore.]

The splinter didn't start acting up until after it had been hammered a week in practice. Sunday Stan played six innings and made three of the regulars' four hits off Jack Russell and Charley Root. Then he revealed a very sore mitt and was rushed to the hospital for treatments preparatory to today's digging.

Dick Says He's Numb.

While Hack's wound was being treated Bartell was led to the hospital by Trainer Andy Lotshaw. Dick complained he felt a numbness creeping over him, starting with his left heel. Following Bartell's transfer to the Cubs there were reports that the shortstop had been subject to arthritis attacks which had something to do with the Giants' willingness to dispose of the 31 year old athlete. These reports subsequently were denied and until today there had been no indications that Bartell was suffering from any sort of affliction.

Dr. Bussey said a rheumatic condition existed and that the young man would be placed under observation in a thorough medical and X-ray check-up. He was ordered to stay off his feet for several days.

Lee, French to Pitch.

In the intra-Cub game tomorrow, third and next to last of the Avalon series, Manager Gabby Hartnett will send back Bill Lee and Larry French, who held the regulars in check for a Yannigan victory in the first game, last Friday. Gene Lillard will make his second appearance in the series with the regulars and Ray Harrell, former St. Louis Cardinal, will share the pitching chore.

Woody English will play shortstop and Steve Mesner third for the regulars.

Lee and French will pitch against the White Sox in Wrigley field, Los Angeles, Friday. Lee is in excellent shape, a muscle aggravation in his side having disappeared. French's weight reduction in the off season has been little short of phenomenal. He thinks, and many share his optimism, that he is going to bounce back nobly from his unhappy experiences of last year.

THREE INDIANA WINTER SPORTS CAPTAINS PICKED

Bloomington, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Captains of three winter sports teams at Indiana university were announced tonight at a banquet honoring the basketball, wrestling, swimming, and indoor track squads.

Marvin Huffman of Newcastle, junior guard, was selected captain of the 1939-'40 basketball team. Huffman's older brother, Vernon, was co-captain of the 1936-'37 basketball team and his younger brother, Gib, is captain-elect of the University of Tennessee basketball team.

Chris Traicoff of Gary, 175 pound Western conference champion, was elected honorary captain for the past season of wrestling squad which won the conference team title. Thomas Mimfin of Honolulu, Hawaii, was elected captain of next season's swimming team.

In the Wake of the News

NORTHWESTERN will have one of the heaviest players in basketball next season when John Clawson, 225 pound center from Kankakee, reports for the varsity. He also is a full back on the football squad. . . . Charley Gehringer of the Tigers has received two automobiles and countless other gifts as a major leaguer, but no one ever handed him a traveling bag. Charley thinks that's a record. . . . Stanley Harris, manager of the Senators, who knows something about the position, says Joe Gordon is the greatest second baseman he ever has seen. . . . Only two Illinois teams since 1917 have made better won and lost records in the Western conference than the eight and four standing of the 1939 quintet. In 1935 Illinois tied for the title with nine victories and three defeats, and in 1937 the Illini, also co-champions, finished with ten and two. . . . Bill Owen, coach of the Jersey City Giants of the American Football association, has signed as an umpire with the Middle Atlantic league. . . . The 1939 University of Kansas basketball team lost seven games, all away from home. . . . Frank Filchock, former Indiana university football star, now the property of the Washington Redskins, will play baseball this summer with Beaumont of the Texas league. . . . Joey Burman, former bantamweight contender, expects to apply for a referee's license soon. . . . Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, was in charge of a Chicago bureau of investigation squad for the department of justice twenty-two years ago. . . .

The Tigers are the only major league club which never has finished a pennant race in the cellar. . . . The Athletics, by winding up eighth last season, tied the Red Sox for the American league basement championship, each having finished eighth ten times. . . . The Phillies are in a class by themselves in the National league. They have come home eighth eleven times. . . . If we are to judge by the pictures from the training camps, Jimmy Dykes is about to lose his cigar smoking title to Gabby Hartnett. The Cub chief even has been snapped with a stogie while in uniform. . . . Guard Jack Brennan is the first Michigan football player to sign a professional contract in five years. . . . Joe Louis, sitting at the ringside at the recent Tournament of Champions, was watching a blubbery heavyweight belabor his opponent. "They say he is another Galento," some one remarked to Joe. "He can whip Galento," was Joe's response. . . .

A Path to His Door.

All through the long, tiring days of toil and need,
Of disappointment and of heartache
sore,
He thought: "If I am right, some sunny day
The world will beat a path unto my door."

And so it went. The days of dreary doubt
Slowly stretched themselves out into years,
And still that star beyond the hills of hope
Gleamed faintly, O, so faintly, through his tears.

Then, all at once, it happened. It all came—Everything he'd hoped for and much more,
And then he found he didn't need the throngs,
And so he rose—and softly closed the door.

RACING OFFICIALS GET ANOTHER DAY TO SETTLE DATES

Washington, Hawthorne Continue Dickering.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Washington Park and Hawthorne race track officials made two attempts yesterday to reach a settlement of their controversy over dates for the 1939 season. Both failed. They will confer again before appearing at a meeting of the Illinois racing commission this afternoon. If they still are unable to agree the commission will take the decision into its own hands.

Yesterday's first get-together took place in the offices of the commission before Chairman Leo Spitz and Walter Peacock. The meeting had been called to allot racing dates to all Chicago area tracks, but when the argument over Labor day had reached an impasse, Spitz offered to adjourn until today if the representatives of the two tracks involved saw any prospect of an amicable settlement among themselves.

Suggestion Is Accepted.

The suggestion was accepted by Charles Krutckoff, Charles Bidwill, and Al Sabath, who presented Hawthorne's case, and Walter Gregory and Ben Lindheimer, Washington Park's representatives. This group went into a private conference in Lindheimer's office. After considerable discussion, the meeting broke up, but no hope for a settlement was held out when the officials agreed to talk it over again today before putting it up to the commission.

Washington Park has applied for Aug. 1 to Sept. 4, while Hawthorne seeks Sept. 4 to Oct. 7. Labor day, with its prospect for big holiday crowd, is the crux of the dispute.

Offers to Trade Meetings.

During the commission meeting the Howthorne delegation offered to give Labor day to Washington Park if that track would take the September meeting. Hawthorne's representatives said that they would be willing to operate in August without the holiday, but not in September because of uncertain weather conditions in early autumn.

Washington Park officials replied that the location of the tracks was a factor that should be taken into consideration. Hawthorne, within taxicab distance of the loop, is better able to stand uncertain weather than a track out in the country, the Washington Park contingent held.

Other Controversies Arise.

Other controversies arose in the course of yesterday's meeting, but it is generally believed that none is as serious as that involving Labor day.

Aurora has asked for May 1 to May 30 and Lincoln Fields for May 22 to June 24, Memorial day being the main issue in this case. Col. Matt Winn of Lincoln Fields offered to split the disputed days with D. C. Burnett of Aurora.

Sportsman's Park, which was represented yesterday by Thomas E. Nash, has applied for Oct. 2 to Oct. 31. This involves a conflict with Hawthorne over the first week of October. Arlington Park's request for June 26 to July 29 is uncontested.

Applications follow:

Aurora—May 1 to May 30; 26 days.

Lincoln Fields—May 22 to June 24; 30 days.

Arlington Park—June 26 to July 29; 30 days.

Washington Park—Aug. 1 to Sept. 4; 31 days.

Hawthorne—Sept. 4 to Oct. 7; 30 days.

Sportsman's Park—Oct. 2 to Oct. 31; 26 days.

Hayes Limps, but Sox Hear His Ailing Knee Is Improving

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 13.—Jack Hayes, the regular White Sox second baseman who underwent an operation for the removal of roving bits of bone and cartilege from his right knee last fall, was optimistic today as he issued his daily bulletin on his physical state.

Hayes still limps. In fact, the limp is more pronounced than when he first appeared in camp. Today the joint was extremely painful as he went through practice, but Dr. Ad Schacht, the trainer, who is pretty good at forecasting the outcome of mishaps to athletes, whether they be hocky performers, baseball players, or boxers, listened to the Alabama boy's report and advised him to quit worrying.

Good News, but He Limps.

The soreness had moved from within the knee joint to the muscles immediately below. Schacht declared this was a development indicating that the original complications were disappearing and that the pain in the new spot is merely the result of favoring the leg. Hayes thought it good news, but went right back on the field and resumed his limping.

The trainer's prediction does not mean that Hayes is over the hill to recovery from the last of his numerous baseball accidents. Neither does it mean that he has a better chance than he had three weeks ago to appear in the opening day lineup. Manager Jim Dykes isn't even considering this as a remote possibility. The manager's real concern, although he tries to hide it, is whether the second baseman will be his former self before the American league race has closed. One thing is certain, and that is that Hayes will not be ordered to play. He'll be the final judge of his physical state.

It's McNair or Bejma.

With Hayes out for an indefinite period the second base affair may develop into a knock down competition between Eric [Boob] McNair and Aloysius Bejma. Dykes admits McNair, his former companion with the Athletics, isn't especially skilled in the handling of double plays, but nevertheless judges he might be better than Bejma, who has a similar weakness. But Bejma has his quota of voluble admirers in camp and Dykes is willing to forget his first guess and abide by what happens during the spring tour.

What the regulars, who were present for four innings, did in yesterday's first exhibition, surprised the manager. It was a pleasant surprise. They hit the ball. Of course, the competition wasn't much on paper, but the regulars hadn't seen much serious pitching since last fall, whereas their throwing opponents have been in trim all winter. If the game produced nothing else it added strength to the manager's previous contention that his squad is two weeks ahead of the conditioning program he had laid out. More will be known about this when they meet the Cubs in Los Angeles on Friday.

It's An Easy Workout.

The workout wasn't strenuous. Most of the fellows were inclined to loaf and the manager refused to get excited. Gerald Walker took over the direction of the daily calisthenics, Herr Schacht having abandoned the rôle because of a twisted thumb incurred during one of Ted Lyons' playful moments.

Thornton [Lefty] Lee, who suffered a turned ankle last week, was back in pitching practice, apparently none the worse for the mishap. John Whitehead also furnished evidence that he had forgotten about a bruised knee suffered when hit by a batted ball.

NEW YORK PICKS GOLDEN GLOVES SQUAD TONIGHT

Winners to Box Chicago Team March 29.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13. — Thirty-two amateur boxers, six of them from Philadelphia, remain in the New York Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions. For five hours tonight in the two rings 119 boys from seven states along the Atlantic seaboard fought before 9,335 in Madison Square Garden to stay in the battle for places on New York's Golden Gloves squad which invades Chicago March 29 for the twelfth inter-city match.

Fifteen thousand are expected to attend the semi-finals and championship bouts that comprise tomorrow night's program. And this remarkable attendance, mind you, comes only one week after a capacity throng of nearly 19,000 saw New York's Metropolitan Golden Gloves tournament.

Philadelphia Boys Are Good.

New York tied Philadelphia in number of contestants entering the semi-finals, but Manhattan's boxers made no such impressive showing as those from the Quaker city. Without question, on the basis of tonight's battles, Philadelphia had the outstanding boxers in the first three weight classes, and their other boys in the lightweight, middleweight, and light heavyweight classes are above average. Charlotte, N. C., and Newark, N. J., followed in qualifying four amatures each.

Buddy Moore of New York's Salem Crescent club, regarded as the outstanding heavyweight in the tournament, had no opportunity to demonstrate his skill this evening. He drew a bye in the first round and then won by a technical knockout in less than two minutes in the second round when his opponent, Jim Dechard of Washington, D. C., suffered a deep gash on the forehead.

A Soldier Comes Through.

Moore's rivals in the semi-finals will be Emory Brooks, a soldier from Fort Benning, Ga., representing the Atlanta Journal; Joe Golombeck, sophomore full back from Elon college, representing Charlotte, N. C., and Vince Pellegrini of Westchester county.

The list of semi-finalists follows:

112 POUNDS—C. Sokoloski, Newark, N. J.; Basil Jones, New York; John Hanlon, Passaic, N. J., and John Forte, Philadelphia.

126 POUNDS—Bob Fisher, Charlotte, N. C.; Ray Robinson, New York; Mario Centi, Passaic, N. J., and Eddie O'Leary, Philadelphia.

135 POUNDS—James Butler, Atlanta, Ga.; Benny Williams, Newark, N. J.; John Noce, Philadelphia, and Ennis Johnson, Richmond, Va.

147 POUNDS—Rus Goulding, Hudson,

MANAGER OFF TO SIGN CANADA'S AMATEUR STARS

Voss Leads Squad Against Boston.

Games Tonight

Chicago at Boston.
N. Y. Americans at Toronto.
N. Y. Rangers at Detroit.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Paul Thompson stepped up confidently yesterday, took a pen in hand and, with a flourish, signed a contract to organize a hocky team for Maj. Frederic McLaughlin in the National league. Thompson signed a one year contract as manager of the Blackhawks, but the Blackhawks he will manage next season are expected to bear no resemblance, either in personnel or ability, to the hapless crew he sent east yesterday under the care and protection of Carl Voss, his assistant. Before leaving Voss signed a one year agreement to continue in his present capacity.

Paul Thompson.

Thompson will go west this morning to attend the amateur cup playoffs in western Canada, where the leading senior and junior organizations of the dominion begin final competition for the Allen and Memorial cups, respectively. Voss will direct the Hawks against the Bruins in Boston tonight, in Montreal, where they play the Canadiens Thursday and will close the season with them in Detroit against the Red Wings Sunday night.

Paul's Not Surprised.

"I am not especially disappointed in the team's showing this year," Thompson said, discussing the club which won the world's championship last year and has been able to gain only twelve decisions in forty-five starts this season. "I knew pretty well what to expect. The Blackhawks have gone to seed. We need new men. Every amateur, whether he is a senior or a junior, who gives any indication of having professional hocky ability will be given a contract and taken to training camp next fall. I hope to have forty men in training when we assemble in Champaign or wherever else we decide to pitch a camp.

"We do not expect to get a hocky team or even a player for our 1939-'40 squad out of this western junket," he continued. "It is possible that one or two men may be sufficiently advanced to warant carrying them next year, but our chief interest is obtaining likely prospects and developing them. That has been the Blackhawks' trouble all along. In fact, it is a fault that has resulted in the deplorable condition of five teams in the league today. Those who have had the patience to develop players and the foresight to round them up several years in advance—meaning, of course, the Rangers and Bruins—have good hocky teams. The others have collapsed and are forced to start from scratch.

The Players Wear Out.

"Toronto didn't do anything about strengthening its club because it scored 151 goals last year and reached the Stanley cup finals. The famous Leaf shot makers didn't make 151 goals this year and where is Toronto in the standings today? We banked on Earl Robinson, Russ Blinco, and Baldy Northcott to give the lift necessary to keep us a championship contender. All are over 30. All are veterans. And none came through. We are the same club we were last year, except that a couple of the other teams aren't forcing us into the playoffs as they did last March."

Negotiations are being carried on

They'll Fight Again

Many Golden Glove fans failed to get tickets to the finals before the sellout. Now they have another chance to see those great fighters in action. Chicago's Golden Gloves team will battle New York's on March 29 in the Stadium and only one price class is sold out so far. There's still time to get seats.

Tickets on sale in Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn Street and Tribune Tower lobby. Mail orders may be addressed to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, making checks or money orders payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

PRICES ARE:
$3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55 cents

NEW JERSEY BAN ON PASTOR MAY BE LIFTED TODAY

Strickland Bout Depends on Verdict.

The National Boxing association, which suspended Bob Pastor last year for failure to go through with a scheduled fight with Red Burman in New Jersey, has notified John Owen, secretary of the Illinois boxing commission, that Commissioner Abe J. Greene of New Jersey will determine the New York heavyweight's status at a meeting in Paterson today.

Pastor is said to have agreed to post $1,000 with Greene this morning to back up his promise to fulfill an agreement to box one of three opponents in New Jersey.

In that event the way will be cleared for a proposed ten round engagement between Pastor and Maurice Strickland in Chicago Stadium March 31.

Discuss Foe for Comiskey.

Last week Chairman Joe Triner and Commissioner Sheldon Clark of Illinois refused to approve Pastor because of the ban. Illinois has a working agreement with the N. B. A.

Triner discussed a possible opponent for Patrick Edward Comiskey, highly publicized young heavyweight of Paterson, N. J., who is booked to appear on the Stadium card.

Triner said Arturo Godoy, Chilean fighter, who whipped Tony Galento on the Joe Louis-James J. Braddock title program in Comiskey Park, June 22, 1937, may be too good for the lad, but he expressed the opinion that Tony Musto would be a suitable foe. When apprised of the report that the recent conqueror of Henry Wacker is not available, the chairman suggested Lem Franklin of Cleveland or Lee Savoldi of St. Paul.

Tenth Stadium Anniversary.

The Stadium, which has not conducted a show since Louis defended his championship against Harry Thomas last April 1, will be observing the tenth anniversary of boxing in the west side arena. In the Stadium inaugural Tommy Loughran retained his light heavyweight crown in a ten round encounter with Mickey Walker, March 28, 1929.

An amateur boxing show will be held in Savoy arena, 47th street and South Park avenue, and a professional wrestling card will be presented in Trinity auditorium, 1467 Division street, tonight. . . . F. M.

NEW YORK RULES TODAY ON LOUIS, GALENTO BOUT

New York, March 13.—(Special.)—Even though John J. Phelan, as chairman of the state athletic commission may decide that New York does not want the Joe Louis-Tony Galento world heavyweight championship fight, the Orange, N. J., bartender will be welcome in San Francisco during the world fair.

Promoter Tony Palazzia has offered Tony a $2,000 guarantee for a four-round exhibition and a promise of five other appearances on the Coast.

The New York commissioners will decide tomorrow whether they will sanction the Galento-Louis match scheduled for June 29 in Yankee stadium.

Galento celebrated his twenty-ninth birthday yesterday in his usual carefree manner. He assumed, as do those close to Promoter Jacobs, that Phelan will rule in his favor tomorrow.

Stagecraft, Stagehand's Dam, Dies in Kentucky

Lexington, Ky., March 13.—(AP)—Stagecraft, 18 year old dam of Stagehand, last year's biggest money winning race horse and champion of the 3 year olds, died today at the Elmendorf farm of her owner, Joseph E. Widener. An unborn colt by Blenheim, the horse that cost a syndicate of American sportsmen the record sum of $250,000, died with her.

Continue Second Round Play in A. A. U. Basketball

Second round play will continue tonight in the second annual central A. A. U. Greater Chicago Basketball tourney in the St. Sabina Community center, 78th street and Racine avenue. The schedule:

7:30—Acme Steel vs. St. Kilian.
8:30—Sacred Heart vs. Garcia Grande.
9:30—De Paul freshmen vs. Leo High.

MUNGO PITCHES, BUT HIS MANAGER WRECKS THE DAY

Durocher's Error Helps Yanks Whip Dodgers.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13.—[Special.]—Van Lingle Mungo made his first pitching appearance of the year with the Brooklyn Dodgers today, but a wild throw by his manager, Leo Durocher, wiped out a Brooklyn lead and opened the way for a 6 to 5 triumph for the world champion New York Yankees.

Mungo relieved Presnell in the eighth with the Dodgers leading, 3 to 2. He held the Yanks scoreless in this inning, and in the ninth the Dodgers added two more runs to lead, 5 to 2. But three Yankee runs came in on Durocher's error in the ninth to tie the score.

Wicker went in for the Dodgers in the tenth and got through the inning safely, but in the eleventh Gallagher's double scored Keller with the winning run. Score:

Brooklyn [N.]	101	001	002	00	—4	14	3
New York [A.]	110	000	003	01	—6	13	4

Batteries—Tamulis, Presnell, Mungo, Wicker and Phelps, Hartlet, Haley, Hadley, Hildebrand, Murphy and Rosar.

CARDINALS, 6; REDS, 3.

Tampa, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds outhit the Cardinals today, but St. Louis won the exhibition game, 6 to 3, with a four hit, three run rally in the fourth inning. Orengo tripled, Martin and Moore followed with doubles, and Johnny Mize singled to rout Jim Weaver.

St. Louis [N.]	110	301	000	—6	8	1

Batteries—Warneke, Weiland, C. Davis and Padgett, Franks; Weaver, E. Davis, Barrett and Wilson, West.

ALLEN'S ARM O. K.

New Orleans, La., March 13.—(AP)—Johnny Allen tried his arm today for the first time since the removal of a bone chip from the elbow last August and pronounced it "perfect."

The temperamental speedball pitcher on whom rests much of Cleveland's hopes in the American league pennant race hadn't intended to test the arm this early, but as he pointed out afterward: "The sun was so hot and I felt so good that I couldn't wait."

Allen said that there hadn't been the slightest twinge, not even when he fired in his fast one.

C. C. Slapnicka, vice president of the Indians, said tonight that the Philadelphia Athletics had offered Bill Werber, third baseman, in an even trade for Earl Averill, the Tribe's holdout center fielder. Slapnicka indicated Cleveland felt this would be giving away more than it was getting, but said a deal involving the two players still was a possibility.

NEWSOM LEAVES CAMP.

San Antonio, Tex., March 13.—(AP)—Buck Newsom, the St. Louis Browns' stubborn holdout, made good a previous threat tonight and checked out for Hartsville, S. C., after another unproductive conference with Vice President Bill DeWitt.

Newsom, who won 20 of the 55 games the Browns won last year, is asking about $20,000 while the Browns are reported offering something close to $15,000.

RED SOX TEAMS TIE.

Sarasota, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Manager Joe Cronin's long hit with the bases loaded in the sixth and last inning scored two runs today and enabled the Red Sox regulars to gain a 3 to 3 tie with the yannigans.

Jimmy Foxx and Chet Morgan, newly acquired outfielder from Detroit, each hit safely twice.

BEES' REGULARS WIN.

Bradenton, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—The Bees' regulars whipped the yannigans, 12 to 11, in seven innings. Johnny Pezzullo, promising rookie southpaw pitcher, was effective until a combination of five hits and several errors enabled the regulars to clinch victory in the seventh.

WHITEHEAD STARTS HITTING.

Baton Rouge, La., March 13.—(AP)—Burgess Whitehead showed signs of rounding into form today as he slammed out three hits, one a double, in the New York Giants' intra-camp game. Despite his slugging his team lost, 10 to 2. Whitehead played third base and handled four chances perfectly.

Ken O'Dea, former Cub catcher, led the winners' attack with a home run and a triple.

ROWE IS EFFECTIVE.

Lakeland, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Schoolboy Rowe held the Detroit Tiger yannigans to three hits and one run in four innings today. Bill Rogell, playing third base for the regulars, collected two doubles and a single. The game was a 4 to 4 draw in seven innings. The regulars got ten hits off Al Benton and John Tate. Rookie Dutch Dietz, relieving Rowe, yielded five hits.

SPIDER BITES PHIL CATCHER.

New Braunfels, Tex., March 13.—(AP)—Norman Whitten, former Auburn university athlete and candidate for catcher with the Philadelphia National league team, underwent an operation today for a leg infection doctors said resulted from a spider bite. He was bitten about five days ago but did not report the injury until his knee became inflammed.

Nuggets and Phillips Win A. A. U. Games

Denver, Colo., March 13.—(AP)—Two of the national A. A. U. basketball tournament's most powerful teams—the Denver Nuggets and Bartlesville, Okla., Phillips—tonight triumphed in second round games.

The Nuggets, Missouri valley A. A. U. champions, were given a blistering first half battle by the Salina, Kas., Motors, who trailed by one point at the intermission, but the Denver five started moving in the second half and rolled up a 59 to 36 victory. Bob Gruenig scored twenty-six of the Nuggets' points.

Phillips routed the Butte, Mont., C. Y. O., 78 to 24. One Missouri Valley league team, the Tulsa Fruehaufs, was eliminated in a first round contest by the Reading, O., Hotzes, 36 to 32. Scores:

LOYOLA LEAVES TODAY FOR N. Y. BASKET MEET

Loyola university's basketball team, undefeated in twenty games, will leave for New York this afternoon to participate in the Metropolitan Basketball Writers' association tournament in Madison Square Garden. Drawing a bye in the first round, Loyola will not play until Monday, when it meets the winner of the St. John's-Roanoke game tomorrow night.

The Chicagoans will compete on Wednesday, March 22, for either the championship or third place, depending on the outcome of their Monday night game.

Coach Lennie and Mrs. Sachs, the Rev. Father William A. Finnegan, S. J., dean of the college of arts and sciences, who will act as faculty moderator, and Player-Manager Bob Hofherr will accompany the eight man squad composed of Forwards Bill O'Brien, George Hogan, Vinny Graham, and Ed Schell; Center Mike Novak, and Guards Wibs Kautz, Jack Driscoll, and George Wenskus. O'Brien, Hogan, Novak, Kautz, and Wenskus comprise the starting lineup.

The team will leave from the Union station on the Pennsylvania railroad at 3:15 p. m. and will be quartered at the Lincoln hotel.

RICHARDS MAY RETIRE AS HEAD OF DETROIT TEAM

Detroit, Mich., March 13.—(AP)—Officials of the Detroit Lions of the National Football league left tonight for Palm Springs, Cal., to confer with Owner George A. Richards, who, it is reported, may retire as club president because of illness.

Richards has been at his Palm Springs home since late last summer. It was on the coast that he signed Gus Henderson to succeed Dutch Clark as coach next fall.

Reports said William A. Alfs, vice president, would be named president. The group leaving for the conference with Richards included Alfs, P. M. Thomas, club treasurer, and Leo Fitzpatrick, board member.

Bride Makes Carnera Wait Hour in Mountain Church

SEQUALS, Italy, March 13.—[Special.]—After waiting an hour at the church for his bride, Primo Carnera, former world's heavyweight champion, was married today to Pina Cavazzi. The ceremony was performed by a parish priest. The bride's tardiness was the result of a trafic jam along the mountain roads where well-wishers gathered to see her white gown with its eight yard train. Carnera wore a tuxedo.

The Austin Delegation Meets Its New Coach

Wildcats Open Drill

Forty-five freshmen, comprising the vanguard of Northwestern's football squad, reported for spring practice at Dyche stadium yesterday. This group will be augmented next week by upper classmen.

During the coming week Coach Lynn Waldorf and his aids will put the freshmen through a series of drills to acquaint them with the Wildcat style of play. Yesterday's workout consisted principally of kicking and passing.

The central figure was Bill De Correvont, whose sensational running led Austin High school to the city championship in 1937. Four other members of Austin's championship team enrolled at Northwestern. They are Al Bauman, tackle; Don Johnson, center; Sonny Skor, quarter back, and Charles Feingarten, guard. Bud De Correvont, Bill's brother, a tackle, and George Maggos, guard, who were graduated from Austin two years ago, also were among the candidates. Bud entered school in February.

Principal objective of the five weeks' spring practice will be to develop replacements for the nine lettermen who will be lost by graduation in June. The practice will terminate with an intrasquad game between two picked teams.

Fight Decisions

At Marigold Gardens—Marty Simmons and Nate Bolden drew [10]; Clarence Brown beat Joe Lubin [5]; George Kontopoulos beat Fernie Baca [4]; Al Globe knocked out Pete Atkins [4]; Larry Cisneros beat Young; Armando Santiago [4].

At New York—Paul De Bello beat Carl [Red] Guggino [8]; Label Shapson knocked out Pat Conley [1].

At Pittsburgh, Pa.—Joey Ferrando beat Tommy Cross [10].

ONE DAY TOO OLD MAY BE PLAINT OF ROODHOUSE STAR

Roodhouse, Ill., March 13.—(AP)—If Roodhouse gets through the early rounds of the state high school basketball tournament, the great-grandson of the town's founder is going to wish he had been born a day later.

Byron Roodhouse, rugged guard on the Roodhouse team making its first bid for a state title at Champaign this week-end, will be twenty years old Saturday, final day of the tournament. His age would bar him from semi-final games that day.

Coach Mason Campbell said it would be a "tough break" for both Roodhouses—the player and the town—because the team has counted heavily on Roodhouse's scoring and defense ability. Big and fast, he stands an inch over six feet and weighs 185 pounds.

His ancestor, John Roodhouse, was the man for whom this town of 2,700 was named. Contributing eight points to his team's 24 to 22 overtime victory over Quincy, Byron helped bring the town its greatest athletic triumph in winning the Quincy tournament.

He's an all around athlete, having played full back on the Roodhouse team that won the Illinois Valley conference title last fall.

What's a Broken Leg When State Title's at Stake?

Lincoln, Neb., March 13.—[Special.]—Bob Heinzelman, a little sophomore substitute, narrowly missed a long basket that cost Falls City High a first round game, 33 to 32, in last year's state basketball tournament. With tears in his eyes, he said:

"We'll show 'em next year. We'll come back and win the state championship."

Saturday night Heinzelman shot a free throw that tied the championship game, then sank a basket that won it. Seconds later he was carried off the floor with "a very extensive compound fracture above the ankle."

Temple Baseball Coach Dies of Heart Attack

Philadelphia, Pa., March 13.—[Special.]—James A. Usilton, head basketball coach at Temple university for thirteen years, died of a heart attack at his home today. He was 44 years old. Usilton was ordered to bed when he returned with the Temple team after its closing game with Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh last Friday.

Augustana's Five Victor in National Meet

Kansas City, Mo., March 13.—[Special.]—Augustana college of Rock Island, Ill., won its first round game today in the fourth annual national intercollegiate basketball tournament, defeating Louisiana Normal of Natchitoches, La., 49 to 43.

Glenville State college, Glenville, W. Va., relied on long shots in the first half and setups in the final period to defeat Simpson college, Indianola, Ia., 49 to 34, in the first night game.

Peru [Neb.] Normal upset the strong High Point College Panthers, 55 to 46, in the last of the first round games. High Point, tri-state champion and holder of the Carolinas A. A. U. title, trailed, 30 to 27, at the half.

First round scores:

Culver-Stockton, 53; Winona Teachers, 40.
Westminster, 38; Delta State, 32.
Augustana [Rock Island, Ill.], 49; Louisiana State Normal, 43.
East Texas Teachers [Commerce, Tex.], 65; Southwest Missouri Teachers [Springfield, Mo.], 43.
Northwest Missouri Teachers [Maryville, Mo.], 35; Nebraska Teachers [Wayne, Neb.], 30.
Glenville State college [Glenville, Ia.], 49; Simpson [Indianola, Ia.], 34.
Southwestern [Winfield, Kas.], 39; Eau Claire State Normal [Eau Claire, Wis.], 30.
Peru [Neb.] Normal, 55; High Point, N. C., 46.

BOLDEN EARNS 10 ROUND DRAW WITH SIMMONS

Nate Bolden, 1937 Chicago intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner, fought a ten round draw with Marty Simmons of Saginaw, Mich., in Marigold Gardens last night before 1,251 spectators.

Bolden's feat was quite an achievement, for Simmons held Champion Solly Krieger to a ten round draw in Milwaukee Jan. 2. Referee Johnny Behr voted for Bolden; Judge William Battye scored for Simmons, and the other judge, Capt. Romaine A. Goudie, called it a draw.

Bolden rallied after having been floored for a two count in the first round.

Clarence Brown, south side Negro heavyweight, punched out a decision over Joe Lubin of the west side in the five round semi-windup. George Kontopolous, Chicago welterweight, beat Fernie Baca, Los Angeles, in a four rounder. Al Globe, Los Angeles light heavyweight, knocked out Pete Atkins of Chicago in four rounds, and Larry Cisneros, Detroit lightweight, won the four round opening bout from Armando Santiago of Chicago.

BRADLEY BEATS N. Y. U., 61 TO 52, FOR 18TH VICTORY

Peoria, Ill., March 13.—(AP)—Bradley Tech closed its regular basketball season tonight by defeating New York university, 61 to 52. The victory gave Tech eighteen victories in twenty games for the season.

Illinois Bowler Loses First Place in A. B. C. Singles

Cleveland, O., March 13.—[Special.]—Henry Wolf of Bendix, N. J., took the lead in the singles division of the American Bowling congress this afternoon when he bowled 233—231—217 for a 681 total. This mark displaced by a single point Al Barney of Pekin, Ill.

Wolf, paired with Otto Lang, previously had taken second place in the doubles with a total of 1,249. V. Maurer and A. Graham of New Philadelphia, O., are leaders with 1,307.

There was a new leader today in the team event, the Simmons Company No. 1 team having rolled 2,876 pins late last night to displace a five man team from New Philadelphia, O.

Competition today was divided between contestants from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Missouri, and West Virginia. Leaders:

CHAMACO WINS TWO CUE GAMES; STRETCHES LEAD

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Joe Chamaco of New York, leader in the national three-cushion billiards tournament, added two more victories to his record today against Charles McCourt of Cleveland. After winning the afternoon match, 50 to 37, in 51 innings, Chamaco scored by a 50 to 42 count in 48 innings tonight.

ALLEN HALL WINS TWO.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 13.—(AP)—Allen Hall of Chicago took two matches today from Frank Scoville of Buffalo. Hall scored a 50-46 victory in 63 innings in the afternoon and won tonight's session, 50 to 37, in 53 innings. Hall had a high run of eight in the afternoon.

BOZEMAN WINS TWICE.

Kenosha, Wis., March 13.—(AP)—Jay Bozeman defeated Art Thurnblad twice today in the three cushion billiard tournament, 50 to 45 and 50 to 31.

THOMPSON SIGNS YEAR'S CONTRACT TO LEAD HAWKS

Scouts Canadian Meet for New Players.

with several minor league teams in an effort to establish a farm system, Thompson said. Every likely prospect under contract after Thompson selects his National league squad next fall will be placed with a minor league team for seasoning. Several of the veterans may be traded to other clubs, but rival owners will have to change their minds if this comes about, for, at present, there doesn't appear to be any one in a Chicago jersey other National league teams want. It would take at least $7,500 to get any man on the Boston roster. There are five players on the Hawk roster no hocky manager will take in a job lot for $4,000.

The rebuilding process will start in Boston tonight, where Voss will look over Ab de Marco, a right wing and center, who has been producing headlines in the International league for the Providence Reds. De Marco is a former Baltimore amateur in whom the Rangers were greatly interested. The Hawks acquired him after a controversy in which several other clubs figured and which had to be threshed out in the league meeting. They sent him to Providence, with whom they have a working agreement, and there under Bun Cook, the old Ranger star, he established a reputation as a stick handler and shot maker.

Voss will look him over in Boston and in Montreal, then send the young man back to Providence for the International league playoffs. De Marco will be among those Thompson will take to camp next fall when he starts his first full season as a manager.

BLAKE HOLDS LEAD

MONTREAL, Que., March 13.—(AP)—Toe Blake of Montreal retained his lead over Sweeney Schriner of the New York Americans last week in their duel for the National Hocky league scoring championship.

Each picked up 3 points. Blake scored three goals for a total of 21 and has 22 assists. Schriner's 11 goal total was unchanged, but he drew 3 assists for a total of 30 to give him 41 points.

Red Horner, with 79 minutes in penalties, continued in the leading "bad man" rôle. Leading scorers:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Blake, Montreal	21	22	43
Schriner, Americans	11	30	41
Anderson, Americans	12	26	38

"THE BEER"
Richard Seibold invites you to try Meister Bräu Draft Beer—Made with the same care—Ask at your favorite Bar

When horseback riding enthusiasts were asked to taste Meister Bräu bottled beer and compare it with other brands at the Shoreline Riding Club, 1330 North Dearborn St., Chicago, 6 out of every 7 said, "I prefer this to any other bottled beer."

Astonishing Popularity Analyzed by Independent Investigator

When beer retailers were asked by Chicago Newspapers what brand of bottled beer leads in sales, they reported Meister Bräu. Figures ranged from 2 to 1 leadership to as high as 10 to 1. The Reuben H. Donnelley Corporation was asked to check and analyze this amazing popularity by holding taste-and-compare tests where groups of men and women gather.

The investigator finds that the true old-time beer flavor of Meister Bräu explains its tremendous popularity, and that Chicagoans appreciate the all-grain flavor which Richard Seibold, Meister Bräu Brewmaster, preserves by refusing to add sugars or syrups to the brew, or to change his method of bottling with natural draft-beer carbonation, only.

BLAST CAPITAL'S BARRIER AGAINST MIDWEST'S MILK

Regulations Splitting U.S., Congressmen Charge.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Protests were made in both houses of congress today over barriers which prevent the importation of milk from the central west into the District of Columbia.

The district was said to present an example of trade regulations that eventually will divide the nation into forty-eight countries. Congressmen were told that if it were not for artificial barriers, Washington could have milk at 9 cents a quart, 4 cents lower than the present price, "and the finest milk in the world from the middlewest."

The issue was raised as the result of the recent arrest of the head of a dairy concern here and several employés after 2,000 gallons of Indiana cream arrived here in a Michigan truck. The incident was described by protestors as an example of the barriers erected between states that are proving ruinous to the country's commerce.

Senate Inquiry Proposed.

The senate was asked by Senator Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] to appropriate $10,000 to investigate the barriers. He introduced a resolution to create a senate committee to make a complete investigation and said Washington would be a good place to start the inquiry.

"The milk situation in Washington in the last few days has brought this situation to the attention of the people in a dramatic fashion," Senator Wiley said. "If Washington were to sell milk at 9 cents a quart, there would be three times the amount of milk consumed. It would be possible to have shipped into the district, in glass lined refrigerator cars, the finest milk in the world from the midwest."

Wiley's resolution said that state and District of Columbia laws in many instances "actually result in the establishment of artificial and unconstitutional barriers to free flow of trade and commerce among such states and between such states and the District of Columbia." In recent years, he said, tarif walls built in the name of police powers are threatening "the very life of the nation."

Demand Quiz in House.

Immediately after the incident involving the midwestern cream, Wisconsin members of the house demanded an investigation to determine why western milk and cream are barred from the district. Most of Washington's milk comes from Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia.

The house directed its district committee to make a sweeping investigation of the Washington milk situation, including the feasibility of permitting producers in any part of the country to ship their products into the district under proper regulation.

The decision followed more than two hours of debate in which midwestern members charged a barrier had been raised locally against milk from their part of the country.

QUINTS WILL BOW TO KING, QUEEN FATHER DECIDES

Will Meet Rulers in Toronto May 22.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., March 13.—The Dionne quintuplets, now nearly 5 years old, are going to meet King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of England. The meeting will take place at a provincial legislative assembly here on May 22 while the royal visitors are on a tour of Canada.

It will be the first trip away from home for the world-famed girls who will be 5 years old on May 28.

The 180 mile trip from Callander, home of the Dionne family, to Toronto will be made in two special railway cars provided by the Ontario government. They will travel the 2½ miles from their nursery to the Callander railway station by automobile.

Dr. Dafoe May Make Trip.

With them probably will be Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, and their nurses and teacher.

Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, accepted the invitation to meet the king and queen today after talking it over with Mrs. Dionne.

"I am in favor of it," he said, adding that he would like to take his entire family of 12 children on the trip.

Papa Dionne's announcement today was a reversal of the stand he took a week ago. Then, he looked on the plan with disfavor and said he could not "see why the government can not arrange to have their majesties visit the nursery."

Sends Acceptance Note.

The message he sent today to Harry Nixon, Ontario provincial secretary, however, said: "Mrs. Dionne and myself are pleased to accept your kind invitation."

Never before have the quintuplets been more than 100 yards away from the famous farmhouse where they were born. They were moved from the little house on Sept. 22, 1934, when they were less than four months old, to the Dafoe nursery across the road and have been within the boundaries of the nursery ever since.

750 HOMELESS IN DANVILLE FLOOD; 2 BRIDGES CRASH

Danville, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Danville and vicinity was recovering today from the worst flood in its history. With more than 100 families driven from their homes by high waters that roared through Stony Creek and the North Fork river bottoms Sunday, 750 persons were being given temporary shelter.

The damage in Danville alone was estimated at a quarter of a million dollars. Two bridges over Stony Creek were washed out by the flood waters and two others damaged and declared unsafe.

Several hundred WPA workers, working on projects which are temporarily closed because of high water, are assisting in clearing away debris in the flood area.

MRS. M. V. STRONG, FORMER CHICAGO RESIDENT, DEAD

Mrs. Mary Vincent Strong, formerly a resident of Chicago for many years, died last night in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph S. Barker, in Cincinnati, O. She was 75 years old.

Mrs. Strong, the former Miss Mary Lee Ridgely, was born in Springfield, Ill., the daughter of Charles Ridgely, an early banker there. She was married to William A. Vincent, famous lawyer. During the Cleveland administration he served as chief justice of New Mexico and also as chief justice of Montana. He came to Chicago and practiced law with the late Clarence Darrow.

Judge Vincent died in 1919, and in 1923 Mrs. Vincent became the wife of James Edmund Strong, millionaire shoe manufacturer. He died in 1926. Mrs. Strong is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Barker and Mrs. Katharine Canby, and two sons, Charles R. and John A. Vincent, the latter three of Chicago.

RUSSIAN GRAND DUKE AT WORK IN MOTOR SHOP

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 13.—Grand Duke Vladimir, 22 years old, claimant to the Russian throne, is working at the Diesel Motor works in England, it was learned here today.

In a letter explaining his action he said that "all Russian youths in exile should try to extend their knowledge experience to the fullest possible limit, for Russia will need our practical experience."

The grand duke's decision to work was contrary to the advice of his "court," who wanted him to attend some university. Other Russians, however, compare his action with that of his ancestor, Peter the Great, who worked as a ship's carpenter in Holland.

Arthur R. Ames, founder and president of the Ames Supply company, died early yesterday in his home at 114 6th avenue, La Grange. He was 62 years old. Mr. Ames had served as a village trustee and as village president of La Grange. Surviving are his widow, Jessie; two daughters, Mrs. Sally Bills and Mrs. Dorothy Marvil, and two sons, Hazen and Arthur R. Jr. The funeral will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the La Grange Baptist church. Burial will be in Oak Ridge cemetery.

BULK OF GREEN TAX IS WON BY MASSACHUSETTS

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Massachusetts won in the Supreme court today the right to the bulk of inheritance taxes on the 36 million dollar estate of Col. H. R. Green, son of the picturesque financier, Hetty Green. The court ruled the Bay state was his legal residence.

The decision, which came after a long legal struggle with three other states, was interpreted as meaning that Massachusetts can levy on all of Green's real estate here and on intangible property, of which the estate consisted largely, wherever it may be found.

The other states involved — New York, Florida, and Texas—may levy on real estate within their borders. This would give only negligible sums to the other states compared to the approximately 5 millions in taxes Massachusetts will be authorized to levy. The federal government already has collected $17,500,000.

DARIUS MILLER'S WIDOW LEAVES $2,750,000 ESTATE

Mrs. Susanna Brown Miller, widow of Darius Miller, former president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, left an estate valued at $2,750,000. This estimate was made yesterday in an inventory filed and approved in the Lake county Probate court at Waukegan. Mrs. Miller died last Oct. 17 in her home at 1510 Green Bay road, Lake Forest.

Mrs. Miller's will provides that income from the bulk of the estate be shared by a sister, Mrs. Hannah Kaye Cherrier of Los Angeles, Cal., and a brother, Joseph H. Brown of Little Rock, Ark. Other bequests include $10,000 each to the Home for Destitute and Crippled Children, Chicago; the Alice Home hospital, and the Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest, and the Chicago Sunday Evening club.

Executors of the estate are J. E. O'Shaughnessy and the First National bank of Chicago.

LEANDER DAVIS, VETERAN TITLE ATTORNEY, DIES

Funeral services for Leander L. Davis, veteran attorney for the Chicago Title and Trust company, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in St. Catherine of Siena church, with burial in Calvary cemetery. Mr. Davis died on Saturday in the Washington Boulevard hospital. He was 80 years old and lived at 111 North Mayfield avenue. He was born in Jefferson county, N. C., and was graduated from the University of Kansas. He is survived by two sons, Allen and Edgar, and two daughters, Mrs. Louis Lyle Lane and Pauline.

Julius Ettelson Bequeaths $140,000 to Seven Children

The will of Julius Ettelson, retired clothing manufacturer, leaving an estate estimated at $140,000 to four sons and three daughters, was admitted to probate yesterday. Mr. Ettelson died Feb. 23 at the age of 79. He lived at 451 Melrose street.

He had been ill for some time, but his death was unexpected. Until March 6 he had been at his Florida home on Useppa Island. His widow and one son, Barron G. Jr., were with him when he died.

Collier was known as the largest land owner in Florida and at the time of his death was the head of several corporations and a director in many others.

Headed Several Firms.

He was president of Barron Collier, Inc.; Street Railways Advertising company; Collier Advertising Service, Inc.; Florida Gulf Coast Hotels, Inc.; Collier Florida Coast Hotels, Pacific Railways Advertising company, and Philadelphia Advertising company, among others.

In 1923, when the state of Florida named a county for him, he announced he would spend $10,000,000 in west coast improvements. A year later he signed a contract for advertising in the B. M. T. subway system here at a minimum of $15,000,000 a year.

At one time he was owner of Luna Park, famed amusement center at Coney Island.

Active in Scout Work.

Also active in philanthropic and civic activities, he was acting president of the Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York, a director of the Boy Scouts of America, a founder and director of the museum of the city of New York, and commissioner in charge of foreign relations of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. He was a member of numerous clubs and societies.

From 1922-'25 Collier himself held public office as a special deputy police commissioner in charge of the public safety bureau here.

Besides his Florida home, he maintained residences here and at Pocantico Hills, N. Y. Born in Memphis, Tenn., he attended school and started his career in the advertising brokerage business there. He married Juliet Gordon Carnes of Memphis in 1907, and she and three sons, Barron, Samuel, and Miles, survive.

BIG COMPANIES REPORT RISING BUSINESS TREND

Improvement Begun Late Last Year.

Although last year produced less satisfactory financial results for most corporations reporting yesterday, executives of three major companies reported an upward trend since last fall.

James F. Fogarty, president of the North American company, one of the country's largest public utility corporations whose subsidiaries operate in a number of states, including Illinois, told stockholders:

"Better business conditions in the fourth quarter of 1938, when our subsidiaries established new high records in electric output, have continued so far in 1939."

North American's consolidated 1938 net earnings were $15,109,007, equal to $1.55 per common share, compared with 1937 net earnings of $18,502,480, or $1.95 a share.

Volume Expands This Year.

The combined statement of the North American company and the North American Edison company, a subsidiary holding company liquidated last month, showed 1938 net income to $15,770,312, equivalent to $1.38 a share on common stock. The 1938 total was $18,843,462, or $1.74 a share.

North American's electrical production during the first two months of 1939 was 11 per cent above the January and February level in 1938, Fogarty said.

Reporting to shareholders of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, A. W. Robertson, chairman, and G. H. Bucher, president, said:

"There are definite signs of an improvement in business. We expect the improvement to continue during the year."

The Westinghouse report termed the taxation problem "a matter of considerable concern" which had "threatened seriously to affect operating results."

Net income for 1938, as previously published, was $9,052,773. This was equal to $3.38 a share on common stock and compared with 1937 net income of $20,126,408, or $7.66 a share.

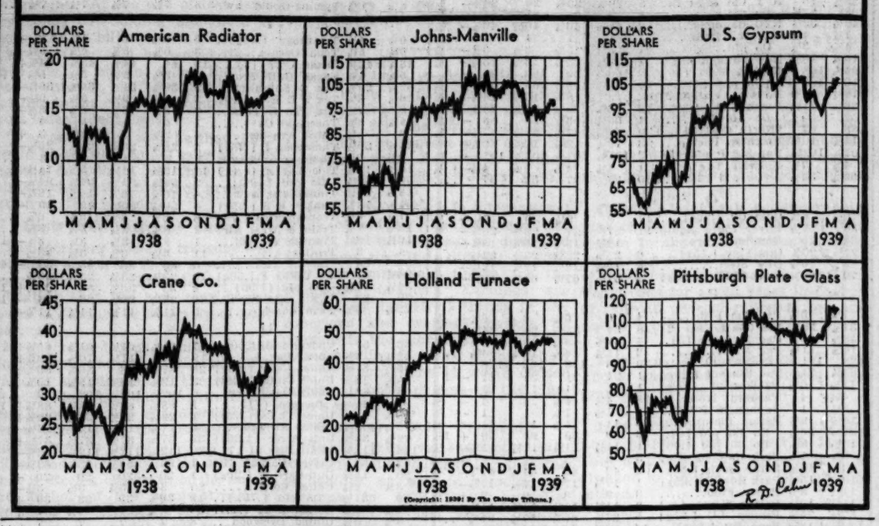
Du Pont Has Big Gain.

Business of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. in January and February topped the first two months of 1938 by 25 to 30 per cent, W. S. Carpenter Jr., chairman of the company's finance committee, told stockholders at their annual meeting in Wilmington, Del.

General Motors Acceptance corporation, financing agency owned by the General Motors corporation, reported 1938 net income of $11,656,801. This was equal to $23.31 a share and compared with 1937 net income of $14,592,238, or $29.18 a share. Business handled in the United States and Canada in 1938 totaled $823,981,556.

J. W. Andrews, addressing a Liggett & Myers Tobacco company shareholders' meeting in New York, said business of the company had been "fair" during the first two months of 1939.

Leading Building Material Stocks Since March 1938



Loss Reported by Stewart-Warner Corp.

The Stewart-Warner corporation reported net loss of $294,323 for 1938 in a statement issued to stockholders yesterday by James S. Knowlson, chairman of the board, and J. E. Otis Jr., president. This compares with net income of $1,241,847, equal to $1.48 per share, in the preceding year.

The corporation manufactures automotive equipment, radios, and electric refrigerators.

Reflecting conditions last year in the three major industries in which it engages, Stewart-Warner sales declined approximately 27 per cent, to $22,561,450. In 1937 sales totaled $30,960,718. Sales in the automotive, refrigeration, and radio industries last year were off 47 per cent, 54 per cent, and 48 per cent, respectively.

Sales Improve This Year.

During the first two months of 1939 sales were "appreciably" ahead of those in the corresponding period last year, the statement said. Fourth quarter profit for 1938 was $244,566.

The company's ratio of current assets to liabilities stood at 4.89 to 1 at the end of 1938, against 2.83 to 1 the year before, it was reported. Cash was increased by $425,353 during the year, and bank loans amounting to $1,600,000 were paid.

Losses in 1938 were attributed partly to repossessions of merchandise sold in previous years on extended terms. Unemployment was the major reason given for repossessions.

"From both a social and selfish viewpoint, to provide employment for people is an obligation no corporation may disregard," the statement said. "A considerable volume of special contract work was taken practically at cost and somewhat distorts the sales picture."

Gives Tax Figures.

Taxes paid by the company, exclusive of income taxes, amounted to $874,851 during the year. This was equivalent to 3.9 per cent of sales. At the close of the year approximately 48 per cent of the company's current liabilities, exclusive of purchased materials, were for taxes.

In a proxy solicitation the corporation announced intention to elect Irving S. Florsheim a director. Florsheim is president and director of the Florsheim Shoe company. He would succeed S. F. Briggs, chairman of the board of Briggs & Stratton corporation, Milwaukee.

Stockholding of the director candidates on March 13 and the compensation paid principal officers of the corporation in 1938 were as follows: J. S. Knowlson, chairman, 2,100 shares with remote beneficial interest in 1,000 shares, compensation $23,333; J. E. Otis Jr., president, 33 shares, compensation, $32,667; R. J. Dunham, 100 shares; I. S. Florsheim, 1,100 shares with remote beneficial interest in 996 shares; Ralph M. Shaw, 2,601 shares; T. T. Sullivan, 762 shares; and Gardiner Symonds, 100 shares in addition to 7,400 shares owned by Chicago corporation of which he is a vice president.

HEAD OF FHA WANTS LARGER FUNDS; FEARS MORTGAGE 'RACKET'

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing administrator, told a senate banking subcommittee today that elimination of the FHA's authority to insure mortgages on existing homes would bring a return of "unsound practices, including the second mortgage racket," and high interest rates.

He made the assertion at a hearing on legislation which would double the present $3,000,000,000 limit on FHA mortgage insurance and continue the agency's authority to insure mortgages on existing construction, due to expire June 30.

He expressed the opinion that "opposition to the pending bill originates largely among a comparatively small group of lenders apparently deeply interested in maintaining home financing costs at rates higher than those permitted under the FHA regulations."

Among those who had opposed the measure was John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Loan bank board. He contended FHA was designed primarily to encourage new construction.

Chicago Area Factory Output Climbs in Value

The value of products manufactured in the Chicago metropolitan area in 1937 showed an increase of 23.6 per cent, as compared with 1935, according to an analysis made yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The association's study covered a census report on manufacturing issued by the United States department of commerce. The report includes all manufacturing activities in Cook, Du Page, Kane, and Lake counties in Illinois and Lake county, Indiana.

For 1937 the value of manufactured products was $4,711,428,323, compared with $3,316,851,321 in 1935. The number of wage earners averaged 538,775 in 1937, compared with 421,397 in 1935. Wages paid totaled $740,159,996, compared with $494,037,000.

Fewer Plants in 1937.

However, the number of industrial establishments in the area showed a decline. In 1937 the total was 9,019 and in 1935 it was 9,302.

The following lines showed increases in employment, money spent for materials, and in the value of products: Blast furnace products, bookbinding, boots and shoes, paper boxes, bread and bakery products, caskets, chemicals, drugs, forgings, foundry products, furs, machinery, machine shop products, meat packing, vegetable oils, paint and varnish, petroleum refining, printing and publishing, pumps, roofing, smelting and refining, stamped metal products, steel works and rolling mill output, and surgical appliances.

Leading Industrials Listed.

Industries in which products were valued at more than $50,000,000 in 1937, in order of size, were: Steel works and rolling mill products, $547,762,733; meat packing, $479,062,550; petroleum refining, $226,211,542; electrical machinery, apparatus, and supplies, $211,090,222; blast furnace, $123,974,622; printing and publishing, book, music, and job, $131,246,568.

Also printing and publishing, newspaper and periodicals, $112,384,121; bread and bakery products, $107,244,582; machinery not specially classified, $105,179,922; confectionery, $89,804,972; cars, electric, and steam railroad, $89,639,504; machine tool accessories and machinists' precision tools, $79,082,923; paints, pigments, and varnishes, $77,138,741; tin cans and other tinware not specially classified, $75,673,922; radios, radio tubes, and phonographs, $69,490,588; furniture, including store and office fixtures, $61,286,453; heating and cooking apparatus, except electricity, $57,128,749.

END PRESIDENT'S GOLD POWERS, CREDIT MEN ASK

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—The New York Credit Men's association today opened a national campaign to prevent the renewal of President Roosevelt's power to change the gold content of the dollar. This power will expire June 30 unless congress extends it.

The association sent an appeal to the other 115 credit organizations affiliated wtih the National Association of Credit Men to join in the campaign. It urged that they deluge congress with protests when the emergency act, under which the power was granted, comes up for reënactment.

Manipulation of the dollar's gold content has not accomplished what backers promised it would do in 1933 and 1934, and it has had the effect of demoralizing normal credit relationships, the New York association said in a resolution.

CHIEFS OF SEC CITE ABILITY TO PREVENT FRAUD

Convicts Long List of Swindlers.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Chairman William O. Douglas of the Securities and Exchange commission and his associates point with pride to the fraud convictions brought about by the agency during the five tempestuous years of its existence.

In general, the SEC is empowered by law to regulate trading in the securities markets and control issuance of new securities.

The police record of the SEC is bringing many business leaders to the conclusion that the SEC is achieving some needed results. At the same time the consensus is that other phases of the SEC system, such as the prohibitive costs of registration, the delays, and red tape are factors in retarding business recovery.

Broad Powers Misused.

Aside from hunting down the crooks the commission has been guilty of persecution for political reasons by misuse of its immense powers and has damaged some innocent firms through inquiry on mere suspicion. But that is another story to be developed in a subsequent article. This is an attempt to assay the good work done by the commission as described by Chairman Douglas and other officials. It is the SEC's side of the story.

Up to date the commission has obtained the conviction of a motley crew of stock swindlers numbering 206. Of this group 165 went to jail and 41 received suspended sentences. Currently there are 72 languishing in jail cells or on the rock pile.

The most prominent swindler of all, however, Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock exchange, was bagged by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York county.

Musica Brothers Indicted.

The three surviving brothers of F. Donald Coster, late president of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., unmasked as the ex-convict Philip Musica, were indicted for violating the SEC laws.

Through its many stringent regulations, the SEC claims to have raised havoc with the bucket shops. The SEC declares that it has eliminated pools in which operators get together with insiders in a corporation, work

U. S. Holds 90 Pct. of Stored Butter in Price Peg Venture

In its effort to support the market for butter, the government has acquired 90 per cent of all the butter now held in the country's cold storage plants, a report of the federal bureau of agricultural economics revealed yesterday.

The price stabilization efforts was abandoned last Wednesday when the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation announced it would discontinue "for the time being" its activities in the wholesale market.

Since then the market has been "on its own." Without the artificial government "peg," the wholesale quotation on the 92 score grade has tumbled to 21¾ cents a pound, from the stabilized price of 25½ cents maintained by the government for several months. Declines ranging from ¼ to ½ cent a pound in various grades yesterday cut the wholesale price to the lowest in five years.

92,800,000 Pounds Stored.

The agricultural bureau's report showed 92,800,000 pounds held in warehouses as of March 1, compared with a ten year average of 21,083,000 pounds. The total at the beginning of this month was down more than 18,000,000 pounds from the level of Feb. 1, a reduction of greater than seasonal proportions. However, the March 1 figure was the largest on record for that date, by a wide margin, and was four times as large as on March 1, 1938.

Combined holdings of the FSCC, the Dairy Products Marketing association and state relief agencies were given as 83,942,000 pounds, or 90 per cent of the warehouse supply.

Commercial holdings, or the amount of butter stored by private business agencies in their normal operations, were reduced to 8,858,000 pounds as of March 1, the lowest March level since 1936. These stocks were reduced in anticipation of a change in the government's policy toward butter, according to trade sources.

DPMA Has 69,538,000 Pounds.

Holdings of the DPMA, which is a private organization financed by a $33,375,000 government appropriation, totaled 69,538,000 pounds on March 1.

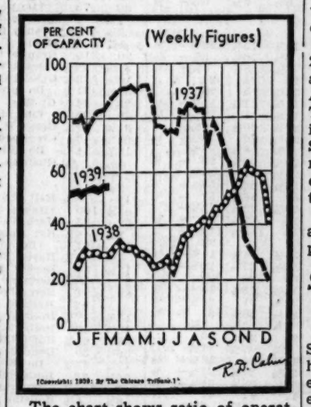
The FSCC's holdings were not disclosed, but the combined supply held by federal and state relief agencies was lumped together at 14,404,000 pounds, a reduction of 5,421,000 pounds during February.

Consumers have reaped virtually the full benefit of the sharp reduction in wholesale prices. Some of the large stores yesterday sold 92 score butter at two pounds for 49 cents.

Butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange were unchanged to ¼ cent lower.

STEEL OUTPUT RATE WILL BE SLIGHTLY HIGHER THIS WEEK

The production rate of the steel industry was scheduled yesterday at 55.7 per cent of ingot capacity, an increase of 0.6 point from a week ago, the American Iron and Steel institute reported.



The chart shows ratio of operations to mill capacity:

BARKLEY-GROW IS ACQUIRED BY GEN. AMERICAN

The aircraft company in which the General American Transportation corporation has acquired a controling interest is the Barkley-Grow Aircraft corporation of Detroit, company officials disclosed yesterday. Reference to the acquisition had been made in the General American annual report, which did not make known the name of the company.

General American bought about 227,000 shares or slightly more than a majority of the 425,000 $1 par class A shares from investing companies. These were the First Income Trading corporation and the Continental Securities corporation. Officials did not report the cost, but investment circles estimated that it amounted to less than $100,000.

Senator Gillette to Ask U. S. Insurance for Corn

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—Senator Gillette (D., Ia.) said today he will introduce a bill to extend federal crop insurance to corn. At present the crop insurance plan applies only to wheat, "which was used as a guinea pig," he said.

DEFEAT ON DEBT BOOST ADMITTED BY MORGENTHAU

Drops Plea to Hike 45 Billion Limit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today admitted defeat of the administration's effort to raise the public debt limit from 45 to 50 billion dollars at this session of congress.

This confirmed the prediction made in THE TRIBUNE March 4 that the administration would bow to the determined opposition of conservative Democrats and Republicans and not press agitation for a boost in the legal debt limit.

Morgenthau was the administration spokesman who first asked for such an increase when he appeared before the house appropriations committee in January. He said the administration wanted the additional margin for debt expansion and a 50 billion dollar debt would not hurt the country.

Economy Bloc Solidified.

This evidence of a continued administration policy of borrowing and spending brought a strong reaction in congress. The reaction helped to solidify an "economy bloc" which is achieving increasing influence in the consideration of administration sponsored bills.

In withdrawing his request for the debt limit boost Morgenthau told his press conference he will be satisfied if congress will just increase the legal limit for treasury bond issues. The last session of congress increased the bond limit from 25 to 30 billion, but left the total of treasury obligations permissible unchanged at 45 billions. All other treasury borrowing must be in the form of short term notes and bills.

May Balk Sept. 1 Issues.

Morgenthau said treasury experts believe that unless the 30 billion limit on bonds is raised or removed the treasury will be unable to issue any bonds after Sept. 1. This will apply,

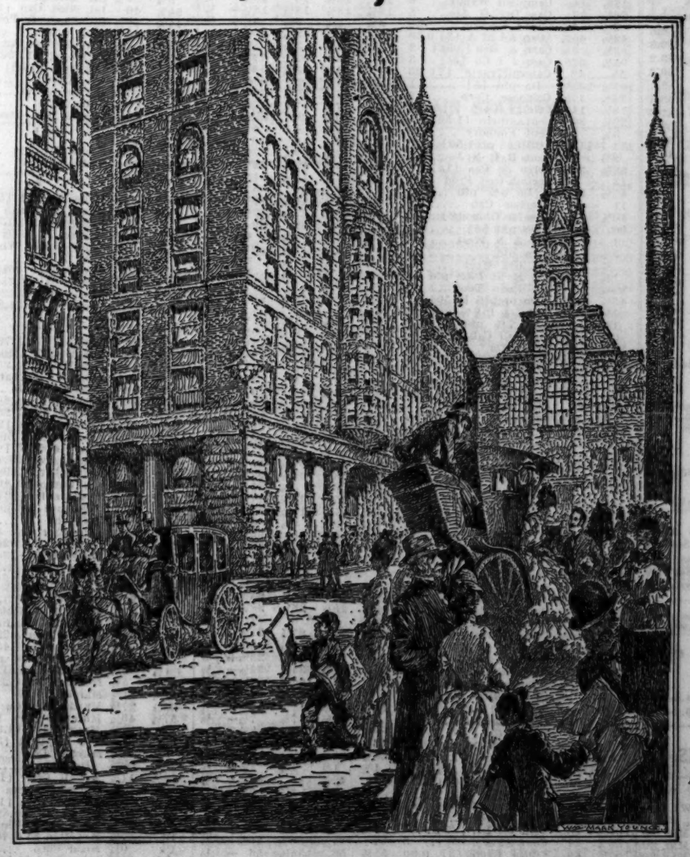
Fifty Years of Adherence to the Principles of our Founders



LaSalle Street, as The Northern Trust Company saw it in 1889

"The quality of friendliness need not be foreign to business relationships." So said the founders of The Northern Trust Company many decades ago. And it was this belief in friendliness, together with strict adherence to sound banking principles, which early won for this institution the confidence and respect of the community.

This year The Northern Trust Company is celebrating its Fiftieth Anniversary. The growth and progress that have come with the years have not shaken the principles which have always guided it. Nor have they altered the practice of giving friendly, individual service. In the decades that lie ahead, this heritage of friendliness and sound thinking will continue to be the cornerstone of customer relationships at The Northern Trust Company.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—The stock market was depressed today. Fresh apprehension over the central European situation was described as the chief reason for the lower tendency of prices. Fractional declines were the rule, but several standard industrial stocks dropped as much as two trial stocks dropped two points or more.

Trading dwindled to 647,760 shares. Most of the day's activity was ascribed to professionals.

Coppers again were active and lower. Anaconda lost 1 point and Kennecott ⅞ point. Phelps Dodge dropped 2¾ points. American Smelting and International Nickel were other weak spots.

United States Steel led the steel section lower, losing ¾ point. Youngstown lost a similar amount. Bethlehem dropped 1¼ points.

Chrysler was heavy in the motors, giving up 1¾ points. General Motors lost a minor fraction. United States Rubber, Goodyear, and Goodrich slipped fractionally.

New York Bonds.

New York, March 13.—(AP)—The bond market, with medium-priced rails slipping the most, closed fractions to around 3 points lower today. Traders attributed the decline to profit taking.

In the foreign dollar list, Brazilian issues showed wide drops. Profit taking was held to be the prime factor, as many of the Brazilian loans nearly doubled in value last week on news a trade agreement had been effected between Brazil and this country.

United States governments moved irregularly, with final prices 10-32ds of a point higher to 4-32ds lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks sold generally at slightly lower levels yesterday. The Chicago Tribune average closed at 11.73, compared with 11.77 Saturday.

Commonwealth Edison, the volume leader, improved a fraction. Borg-Warner also was fractionally higher. Bendix Aviation declined a point, reflecting publication of its 1938 report, showing a sharp recession in profits. Abbott Laboratories improved a small fraction and Kentucky Utilities 6 per cent preferred moved ahead a point, both to new 1939 high levels.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks weakened slightly in light trading yesterday. Dealers reported a fair demand for First National stock, which closed $1 higher. Shares of the Chicago Title and Trust company declined $1 and Continental Illinois 50 cents.

DRIVE LAUNCHED TO EXPAND LARD USE IN NATION

Wilson Bids for Market with New Product.

With America's foreign market for lard sharply curtailed, Wilson & Co., Chicago packers, will attempt to make up for at least a part of the loss by increasing home consumption, Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the board, announced yesterday.

The low price weapon to be used in meeting lard's competition is a new package lard—a product of the company's research department. Among the claims made for the product are uniformity of quality and ability to maintain its freshness when kept in proper refrigeration.

"The nation's foreign lard business is down two-thirds," Wilson said. "This has created a difficult situation for farmers and those in the packing industry because it has resulted in a huge surplus of lard.

Expects Near Normal Hog Crop.

"This situation promises to become more acute because in 1939 our supply of hogs from the farms will be close to normal. That means we must find a market for the lard produced as well as for meat products.

"For various reasons the per capita consumption of lard in this country has dropped sharply. We hope through our efforts to help increase home consumption.

"America's farm population is much interested in seeing the lard market broadened—both the growers of hogs and the growers of corn to feed the hogs. We now have a situation resulting from our inability to reduce the lard surplus in which this product is selling at $1.25 per hundred weight below hog prices per hundred weight. In the ten year period, 1924 to 1933, lard sold at about $2 per hundred weight above hog prices.

Warns Much Is at Stake.

"Unless the market for lard is increased, the incentive of the swine grower will be smothered, and others all down the line, the farmer who grows corn and all those concerned with the production of hogs, will be adversely affected."

The Wilson company has launched a nation-wide campaign to develop lard sales. In this it is seeking the cooperation of groups interested in helping to promote agriculture.

MIDWEST'S BANK CHECK VOLUME LOWER IN WEEK

Checks written against individual deposit accounts in banks in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district totaled $993,067,000 in the week ended March 8, a decrease of 17.6 per cent from the preceding week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. The report covered 159 banks in forty-one leading clearing house cities of the district.

As compared with the corresponding week of last year, when the total was $937,272,000, checks written increased 6 per cent.

The amount written against accounts in Chicago banks totaled $570,446,000, against $556,392,000 in the corresponding 1938 week.

Drops Plea to Hike 45 Billion Limit.

he said, to baby bonds and savings bonds, as well as other long term obligations. At the end of last January bonds outstanding amounted to more than 26 billions.

Morgenthau said he would like to have the 30 billion dollar limit removed entirely, but "definitly" would not like to see complete removal of a gross federal debt limit.

"Personally," he said, he thought it would be sensible to act now on raising the debt limit, but that the administration will no longer press for action at this session.

Hints New Attempt Later.

The secretary said the treasury will not need authority to go beyond the present ceiling in this calendar year, indicating that the plea may be renewed in January or February of next year.

It was regarded as significant that Morgenthau announced the administration's withdrawal of the request after he had had lunch with President Roosevelt and a conference between officials of the treasury and federal reserve board.

Included among the latter was Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board and author of the administration's "spending to prosperity" theory, which puts no special limit to spending in looking toward an 80 billion dollar national income. The national income is now about 60 billions a year.

Bankhead Asks Study.

Meanwhile Senator John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.], introduced a joint resolution in congress to create a committee of both houses to study the government's monetary policy. The committee would be directed to investigate the causes of price fluctuations, foreign systems of currency management and governmental controls.

Senator John G. Townsend Jr. [R., Del.], also introduced into the record a letter from Eccles denying the assertions of members of the silver bloc that silver certificates have an advantage over federal reserve notes because they require no interest payments.

FORD MOTOR CO. ASKS TO PROVE AMITY TO LABOR

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—The Ford Motor company asked the labor relations board today for permission to offer new testimony to prove its friendliness to labor and its innocence of wrongdoing in the May, 1937, fight at Ford's River Rouge plant.

"For over twenty-five years," it said in a general statement of policy, "respondent and its predecessor companies have been pioneers in paying higher wages, in shortening working hours, and in bettering working conditions."

Asking for permission to submit new evidence the company said this was needed to establish that Henry Ford, "in stating that, although his men are free to join a union or not as they choose, he believes they would be better off without one, and that hespondent, in making similar views known to its employés, was exercising in a reasonable manner the constitutional rights of freedom of speech and freedom of the press."

INT. NICKEL'S PROFIT CUT BY WORLD SLUMP

1938 First Year Since 1932 to Show Drop.

Reflecting the downward trend of world trade in 1938, the net profit of the International Nickel company last year for the first time since 1932 failed to show a gain over the preceding year, Robert C. Stanley, president, told stockholders yesterday.

He said the setback in international trade caused by the European war threats last autumn has so disrupted conditions that it is difficult to forecast the immediate future for the company's business. Earnings are affected by industrial trends in the American and overseas market, by changes in the exchange value of the pound sterling in terms of the dollar, and by fluctuations in world copper prices. [Copper is one of the company's products.]

Company "Fully Prepared."

"Taking these various factors into consideration, and assuming that the probability of war is remote, our business in 1939 should parallel closely that of last year," Stanley said. "At least it may be said that the company is fully prepared in all particulars to continue its progress in this troublesome period."

International Nickel, one of the largest corporations with worldwide activities, had a net profit for 1938 of $32,399,470, equal to $2.09 a share on the common stock. In 1937 net profit was $50,299,623, equal to $3.31 a share.

"The decrease of nickel consumption occurred principally in the United States markets," Stanley said, Finds Trend Encouraging.

"In the United States markets the consumption was larger in the latter half than in the first half of the year, giving encouraging evidence of improvement in the industrial situation."

The company produced 197,424 ounces of platinum in 1938, compared with 128,874 ounces in 1937; 82,086 ounces of gold and 2,470,509 ounces of silver. Stanley commented that most of its silver sales were made to the Bank of Canada, which in turn resold the metal to the Federal Reserve bank at New York.

The company's capital expenditures in 1938 totaled $10,750,707, compared with $7,924,204 in 1937. Estimated disbursements for 1939 total $10,600,000, including a $4,300,000 nickel mine development in Finland.

ALLEGHANY ASKS BANK SURRENDER IMPOUNDED CASH

New York, March 13.—(AP)—The New York Sun said today that Alleghany corporation had made formal demand upon Guaranty Trust company for approximately $613,350 in deposited cash to be used for corporate purposes, including approximately $90,000 for attorneys' fees, $35,000 for a proxy solicitation, and expenses of about $120,000.

The money was part of about $2,400,000 impounded as collateral under one of three indentures covering issues of Alleghany bonds. Approximately the amount asked was not needed on the basis of current stock market prices to make the collateral value 150 per cent of the face value of the bonds.

Bank officials would not comment on the story, and Robert R. Young, chairman of Alleghany corporation, was reported to be out of the city.

EASTMAN KODAK TO MAKE LARGE STOCK OFFERING

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Eastman Kodak company today announced it would offer stockholders 225,092 shares of authorized but unissued common stock for subscription at the rate of one share for each ten held as of April 6.

A registration statement for the proposed issue will be filed tomorrow with the Securities and Exchange commission and the company said it expected the statement to become effective April 3. Stockholders will be informed of the subscription price late in March.

Frank W. Lovejoy, president, said the proceeds from the issue "would be available, with other cash held by the company [1] for additions and betterments to plant and equipment from time to time [2] to provide for additional working capital, and [3] to maintain for a period of time a greater cash and marketable security position than exists at present."

Business Bits

Leigh B. Block.

Leigh B. Block, son of Leopold E. Block, has been elected a vice president of the Inland Steel company in charge of purchases. He succeeds his uncle, Emanuel J. Block, who died March 5. His father is chairman of the company's board. In 1924 Leigh Block started in the Indiana Harbor works of the steel company and ten years later had risen to the post of assistant vice president and assistant manager of sales in the flat rolled steel division.

Charlton MacVeagh, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee in the last presidential campaign, has joined the New York staf of the firm of Jackson & Curtis. MacVeagh was for seven years in charge of railroad general research and statistical work for J. P. Morgan & Co.

Pierce C. Ward, director of B/G Foods, Inc., has been elected vice president of the company.

J. M. Wellman, manager of the St. Louis plant of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco company, has been elected a director to replace D. F. Green, who retired.

Jacob L. Kesner has been elected a director of the 12th Street store.

BANK MYSTIFIED AS ITALIAN PAPER LIRE FLOOD N. Y.

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—A new mystery is intriguing New York foreign exchange and banking circles. An apparently inexhaustible supply of freshly engraved Bank of Italy lira notes is being poured into this market at a discount of nearly 40 per cent from prices quoted in regular dealings with banks.

In this over-the-counter bank note market lira notes are quoted mostly around 3.20 cents, against 5.26 cents for "regular" exchange. Some quotations are as low as 2½ cents.

Warnings are being heard in Wall street that buyers of the notes face the possibility of loss, just as German mark purchasers lost in the early 1920s.

Talk of an approaching Italian currency devaluation is becoming more general.

STORAGE MEATS SECOND LOWEST FOR ANY MAR. 1

Reserve stocks of meat held in cold storage on March 1 were second smallest on record for that date, the department of agriculture disclosed yesterday. The total at 659,750,000 pounds compared with 720,979,000 on the same date last year, and with 1,079,166,000 on March 1, 1937. The five year average stands at 829,716,000.

The small stocks carried by packers do not mean that production is down, however. Packers merely are not storing as much meat from month to month as they usually do.

It is the general opinion in the trade that because farmers are raising more hogs this year an increase in slaughtering this summer may make it unprofitable to carry meat, especially pork, into the spring and summer markets.

Referee Reserves Decision on Cargill Grain Evidence

After all day arguments by opposing counsel, Referee S. Abbott Maginnis reserved his decision yesterday on the admissibility of disputed evidence in connecton with the case of Cargill, Inc., against the Chicago Board of Trade. It involves manipulation charges.

OCEAN SHIP LINES ASSAILED BY LAKE STATES AT PROBE

Atlantic Group Contract Cause of Strife.

The North Atlantic shipping conference was accused of interfering with shipping from Great Lakes ports to Europe in a hearing yesterday before the United States maritime commission. The hearing, presided over by Chief Examiner G. O. Basham, was held at the Morrison hotel. It will be resumed this morning.

It was called as the result of a complaint against the conference filed with the commission last fall by the attorneys general of Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana.

The complaint was directed at a clause in conference contracts which requires that shippers, to get low rates, must send all of their exports and imports on conference ships through Atlantic seacoast ports. The conference includes all important Atlantic steamship lines.

Charge Clause Is Illegal.

A joint resolution from both houses of the Michigan state legislature asking for the removal of that clause from shipping contracts was introduced at yesterday's hearing. The resolution described the restriction clause as "artificial and illegal."

Harry C. Brockel, secretary of the board of harbor commissioners of Milwaukee, testified increased shipping direct from Great Lakes ports to Europe would benefit Milwaukee.

R. F. Malia, secretary of the Great Lakes Harbor association, said the Great Lakes are open for foreign shipping five months of the year. To get favorable shipping rates from Atlantic ports for the other seven months, he said, shippers from Great Lakes ports must accept the "Great Lakes" clause in the conference contracts.

Asks Ocean Port Status.

"We are willing to contract to use conference ships when possible, but we believe the Great Lakes ports should be regarded as ocean ports," said Malia. "Since conference ships do not serve our ports, we want the right to use other lines and not be penalized."

James Sinclair, chairman of the North Atlantic conference, claimed that the Great Lakes shippers benefit through the binding clause in conference contracts. "Such a clause insures the Atlantic lines of a constant income," he said. "Such an income is necessary to maintain large fleets and give proper service to inland shippers when the Great Lakes are not open to shipping."

GRAINS DECLINE AS HEAVY RAINS BENEFIT WHEAT

Grain markets showed an easy undertone yesterday. Soaking rains were received in parts of Kansas and Nebraska over the week-end, which were regarded as favorable for the wheat crop. Closing trades on wheat and corn futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel lower.

Lack of export demand counted heavily against the Winnipeg wheat market, where futures declined ⅛ to ⅝ cent a bushel. October wheat sold at a new seasonal low price. Liverpool wheat futures were ¼ to ½ cent a bushel lower.

Grain traders here and abroad paid little attention to the less favorable political news from central Europe. Importing countries are showing no interest in forward supplies of cash wheat.

CHIEFS OF SEC CITE ABILITY TO PREVENT FRAUD

Many Security Swindlers Are Convicted.

the market up, and unload their holdings at artificially high prices.

Through its rigid registration requirements, the commission has halted the issuance of about a half billion dollars worth of securities since its inception. One high ranking official expressed the belief that most of these issues were fraudulent. The issues were blocked by commission stop orders or by the consent of the corporations involved.

The issues were blocked because the issuing companies refused to divulge information demanded by the commission or because the facts that were reported showed on their face evidence of fraudulent intent.

In this connection one high official pointed out the commission cannot disapprove or approve the actual issue but is concerned only in the "full disclosure" of information deemed pertinent by the commission.

So far nearly 15 billion dollars worth of stocks and bonds have gone through the registration mill at the SEC during the last five years. Thirty-nine hundred registration statements were filed.

Many Injunction Suits.

By the middle of last year the commission had named 694 firms and individuals in injunction suits. Of this number 470 were under permanent injunction, enjoined from carrying out acts and practices in violation of the SEC regulations. Sixty were under temporary injunction. The remaining suits were abandoned, dismissed or vacated.

Officials of the commission also profess to have strengthened the accounting procedure and prompted investment bankers to make a more meticulous examination of proposed issues.

Commission spokesmen denied that the cost of registering a security worked a hardship on the small corporation. Many in the financial community believe that the little fellow is being prohibited from borrowing money for plant expansion or other new capital purposes.

Deny Small Business Harmed.

"Fifty per cent of the small business corporations registering with the SEC sell only 10 per cent of their issues, anyway," declared a top official. "The small business man would not be better off if the SEC were repealed in its entirety."

This same individual replied to charges that the SEC had injured the business of some honestly managed corporations because it moved on suspicion. He declared the SEC moves with the greatest caution and never gives publicity to a case until it has been thoroughly prepared. If the honest partners in a firm were injured through the ferreting out of one crook in their midst that was the "inevitable consequence of law enforcement," he said.

Stock Exchanges Seek Changes.

Meanwhile representatives of the leading stock exchanges of the country went into meeting here today to iron out recommendations for modification of the federal securities statutes administered by the SEC. John M. Hancock, a partner in Lehman Brothers and head of the New York Stock exchange committee on stock list, was selected as presiding officer of the conference.

Out of these meetings, which are secret and will continue for several days, the stock exchange representatives hope to agree on a program to present to the SEC. They conferred on an agenda containing five principal objectives for liberalizing the existing restrictions on securities dealings.

These objectives included:

1. Simplification of registration and reporting forms required by the SEC of corporate issuers.

2. Reduction of expenses involved in floating new securities.

3. Improvement in stock market liquidity and narrowing of the spread between bid and offer prices.

4. Increase in the total of stock trading to promote "recovery" for brokers.

5. Clarification of SEC regulations and elimination of some of the detail now handled by the commission.

[This is the second of a series of articles on the SEC by Mr. Fulton.]

5 ROOMS, 2 BATHS
Just a half block from the drive, you will find in this smart elevator building an unusual modern apartment of five sunlit rooms. There is a real wood burning fireplace, two tile baths, an abundance of closet space, including a good sized cedar closet. Although the rooms are not large, the clever arrangement and lake view gives one a feeling of spaciousness. The price is $110 per month and there is a resident manager at the building.

OUR BUSINESS IS GOOD

Our used car sales are increasing enormously and there is a reason. Word has spread from one person to another that COMMUNITY MOTORS is offering something new in used cars, and that is true.

COMMUNITY RENEWED cars are reconditioned by a new process and the prices on these cars are no higher than you would pay for average cars.

It will pay you to visit any one of our stores and see for yourself the remarkable condition of our cars and the unusual prices we are offering.

Ask for our free booklet "WHAT EVERY USED CAR BUYER SHOULD KNOW."
